PREFACE

Part I of this volume adds four new ancient witnesses (4803–4806) from the third and fourth centuries to the manuscripts of the Gospel of John. This Gospel remains the best-represented book of the New Testament in the papyri from Egypt, although its preponderance, especially in relation to Matthew, has been overestimated by some.

Part II offers a passage (4807) from a lost play by Sophocles on the Theban cycle, Epigonoi, in which a chorus pensively recounts preparations for war; a primitive handbook of hellenistic historians (4808) and an elegant disquisition on hellenistic monarchs (4809); a rhetor's declamation aping speeches from Thucydides (4810); and a lost novel (4811) in which a protagonist inflicts declamations on his girlfriend in (perhaps) an Ionian setting. Some of these novelties contribute solutions of long-standing problems: thus 4807 restores the context of two Sophoclean verses much parodied in Attic comedy; 4808 may be thought to settle at last the date of the historian Clitarchus.

Part III publishes a further group of papyri (4813–16) of the Iliad, and related Homeric texts, including 4817, a paraphrase of Iliad I (its text transmitted verbatim by at least two previously published papyri), and two closely related scholia minora to Iliad I (4818–19), together with more detailed commentaries on books III and XV of the Odyssey having some claim to scholarly credentials (4820–21). The erudition and educational interest evinced by many of these texts is complemented by 4812, a lexicon rich in foreign, especially 'Eastern' (e.g. Persian) words, additionally-identified portions of a papyrus first published by A. S. Hunt in vol. XV (1802).

In the documentary section we note especially 4822–5, declarations of livestock, further illustration of an administrative process that goes back to the reign of Augustus. In 4827 of AD 173/4 an ex-highpriest leases land to an Alexandrian citizen, a high-level transaction; among leases of the fifth and sixth centuries, we find an apartment being leased to one woman by another, and city property being leased to a woman by the church of St Mary (4832–3). 4828–9 show the practice, not uncommon, of copying loan documents in duplicate on the same sheet. 4834 and 4835 relate to the Apion archive, the latter a notably illiterate loan contracted by one of the family's retainers. 4835–7 attest dating formulae that hint at dynastic confusions under Justin II, Tiberius, and Maurice.

Part V records, and assigns series numbers to, a group of drawings (patterns for weaving and a sketch of a man) already published elsewhere.

The texts edited by Dr Yuan formed part of her doctoral thesis, supervised at UCLA by Professor Haslam. Dr Hatzilambrou's contribution includes items from her doctoral thesis, supervised at University College London by Professor Maehler.

The award of a British Academy Visiting Fellowship to the Revd Professor J. Chapa helped him to complete the work here published in Section I.

We are indebted to Mr Amin Benaissa for his sterling work in revising texts and compiling the indexes, and to Dr Daniela Colomo for her valuable help with copy-editing and proof-reading.

The Editors record their usual debt of gratitude to Dr Dean for expert and expeditious typography and to The Charlesworth Group for efficient production, as well as to the Arts and Humanities Research Council and the British Academy for facilitating the ongoing editing, imaging, and conservation of the papyri.

NOTE ON THE METHOD OF PUBLICATION AND ABBREVIATIONS

The basis of the method is the Leiden system of punctuation; see CE 7 (1932) 262–9. It may be summarized as follows:

$\alpha\beta\gamma$	The letters are doubtful, either because of damage or because they are otherwise difficult to read
...	Approximately three letters remain unread by the editor
[$\alpha\beta\gamma$]	The letters are lost, but restored from a parallel or by conjecture
[...]	Approximately three letters are lost
()	Round brackets indicate the resolution of an abbreviation or a symbol, e.g. ($\acute{\alpha}\rho\tau\acute{\alpha}\beta\eta$) represents the symbol $\overline{\alpha\tau}$, $\epsilon\tau\rho(\alpha\tau\eta\gamma\acute{o}\epsilon)$ represents the abbreviation $\epsilon\tau\rho\zeta$
[[$\alpha\beta\gamma$]]	The letters are deleted in the papyrus
$\overset{\prime}{\alpha\beta\gamma}$	The letters are added above the line
$\langle\alpha\beta\gamma\rangle$	The letters are added by the editor
$\{\alpha\beta\gamma\}$	The letters are regarded as mistaken and rejected by the editor

Bold arabic numerals refer to papyri printed in the volumes of The Oxyrhynchus Papyri.

The abbreviations used are in the main identical with those in J. F. Oates et al., Checklist of Editions of Greek Papyri and Ostraca (BASP Suppl. no. 9, ⁵2001); for a more up-to-date version of the Checklist, see <http://scriptorium.lib.duke.edu/papyrus/texts/clist.html>.

I. THEOLOGICAL TEXTS

4803–4806. NEW TESTAMENT: GOSPEL OF JOHN

These four fragments (P^{119–122}) follow on the publication in LXV 4445–4448 of four other papyri of the Gospel of John (P^{106–109}), and bring the total number of published papyri of this gospel to 31. Thirteen of these 31 fragments are known with certainty to come from Oxyrhynchus, which is the provenance of 51 New Testament papyri out of the 122 (out of perhaps 118 separate manuscripts). For the figures and a survey of the socio-cultural and intellectual context of the early Christian manuscripts in Oxyrhynchus, see E. J. Epp, JBL 123 (2004) 5–55, esp. 12–14 = Perspectives on New Testament Textual Criticism (2005) chap. 24, where further references to the significance for textual criticism of the Oxyrhynchus findings are given. See also P. M. Head, Tyndale Bulletin 51 (2000) 1–16, with a summary of the main contents of the recently published papyri of John on pp. 10–12, and J. K. Elliott, Novum Testamentum 41 (1999) 209–13.

The preponderance of manuscripts of John among the earliest Christian papyri has already been the object of discussion and speculation (see T. C. Skeat, L 3523 introd.). In 1967, K. Aland suggested, on the grounds of the preference for the Fourth Gospel among Gnostics, that this preponderance of manuscripts of John would favour W. Bauer's thesis that early Christian Egypt was dominated by Gnosticism. However, as Skeat pointed out, following C. H. Roberts, Manuscript, Society and Belief (1979) 52, the Gnostic nature of the Egyptian Church may be questioned in view of the fact that hardly any specifically Gnostic texts have been found among pre-fourth-century papyri unearthed in Egypt. Aland's argument was also challenged by S. R. Llewelyn in New Documents Illustrating Early Christianity vii (1994) 242–8, who demonstrated that there is no significant difference between the proportions of papyri of John in the earlier and later periods. If Gnosticism accounts for the number of papyri in the earlier period, we would need an explanation for the same popularity in the later period. Moreover, we do not know whether John was more popular in Egypt than anywhere else and whether Gnostics preferred it to other New Testament writings. C. E. Hill, The Johannine Corpus in the Early Church (2005), has recently contended that throughout the second century the Gospel of John retained a prominent place within 'orthodox' Christianity and was only marginally useful to Gnosticism. Among his arguments he combines the high number of papyri of John with evidence from early Christian iconography to show that the Fourth Gospel was known and very highly valued among the 'orthodox' churches, even at Rome, at least by the latter part of the second century (pp. 148–66). In any case, the question concerning its popularity does not argue for or against the 'orthodoxy' of its readers. Christians of all tendencies in the early Egyptian Church might have had a preference for the Fourth Gospel.

It should also be noted that the alleged preponderance of manuscripts of John is not overwhelming. If we compare the number of extant papyri of John to those of Matthew, we find that the difference is not great. Of the 31 papyri of the Fourth Gospel published to date, seventeen are assigned dates ranging from the second century to the beginning of the fourth. From the same period we have sixteen papyri of the Gospel of Matthew, out of a total of 24.

The twenty-three papyri of John published prior to 1998 are collected and collated in W. J. Elliott and D. C. Parker, The New Testament in Greek, iv: The Gospel according to John, i: The Papyri (1995); note also C. E. Hill's short note in TC: A Journal of Biblical Textual Criticism [<http://purl.org/TC>] 7 (2002), in which some minor errors in \mathfrak{P}^{90} (L 3523) and 0232 (P. Ant. I 12) are noticed, and P. M. Head, Biblica 25 (2004) 399–408, on singular readings in the early Johannine papyri.

The supplements in the transcriptions and the information in the notes are taken from Nestle–Aland, Novum Testamentum graece (27th edition, 1993). The texts are collated with Nestle–Aland²⁷; Tischendorf, editio octava critica maior; Elliott–Parker (quoted above); and A. Jülicher, Itala: Das Neue Testament in altlateinischer Überlieferung, iv: Johannes-Evangelium (1963). Abbreviations and symbols are those of Nestle–Aland²⁷, except that the letters that designate Old Latin manuscripts are prefixed by Lvt MS.

I am indebted to the Revd Professor David C. Parker for most valuable suggestions and criticism.

4803. GOSPEL OF JOHN I 21–8, 38–44

114/106 (a)
 \mathfrak{P}^{119}

2.7 × 11 cm

Third century
Plate I

Two joining fragments containing traces of sixteen lines from the bottom of a leaf of a papyrus codex. The script is that of an expert scribe, written in a black ink now rather faded. Letters are loosely placed with generous space before and after. No ligatures are visible, except for the middle horizontal of ϵ , which tends to project towards ι and ρ . The hand shows a combination of broad and narrow letters with η , ν , and μ considerably broad. γ sometimes has a sinuous tail. The bowl of ω is almost flat, α is written in two strokes, as a semicircle closed by a diagonal, o is sometimes small and suspended. This manner belongs within the upright branch of Turner's 'Formal mixed' group (*GMAW*² p. 22), characteristic of the third century. It is close to LXVI 4498, a papyrus of the Epistle to the Hebrews, compared by the editor to I 23, which should be dated before 295, and XVII 2098, probably written in the first half of the third century (GLH 19b).

Inorganic diaereses are visible over initial v and i in ↓ 12, 15 and → 7. Organic diacresis, whose use does not become common before the second century AD (Z. Aly, L. Koenen, Three Rolls of the Early Septuagint (1980) 7), occurs in ↓ 7 (ηκαι[αα]). Nomina sacra are not attested (but assumed for κυριος, ιησους, and χριστος in the lost parts of the text).

A bottom margin of 1 cm remains visible. Since no lateral margins survive, the position of the text within the leaf is uncertain, and the line-divisions of the supplemented text are arbitrary. If we use the Nestle–Aland²⁷ edition to restore the lost text, the average number of letters to the line is 33 on both sides. Thus, between the last letter of ↓ and the first of → c.24 lines must have been lost, which gives a page of approximately 40 lines. The height of the written area would have been c.23.5 and the width c.12 cm. The size of the page would have been at least 14 × 25 cm, which falls within Turner's group 8 (Typology of the Early Codex 95). Considering that the expected number of words for a normal text from the end of ↓ to the end of → is 281, and that the Gospel of John has 15,635 words, the codex would have occupied around 55 pages. Since the fragment begins at mid-page and, according to the Nestle–Aland²⁷ text, the number of words missing from the beginning of the gospel to the first word of the fragment is 289, which would roughly correspond to one page in length, it is very likely that the gospel began at mid-height on a right-hand page. It was therefore probably part of a codex that contained other books as well. This is the case with \mathfrak{P}^{75} , where the Gospel of John follows the Gospel of Luke on the same page.

Parts of the text overlap with \mathfrak{P}^5 , \mathfrak{P}^{55} , \mathfrak{P}^{59} , \mathfrak{P}^{66} , \mathfrak{P}^{75} , \mathfrak{P}^{106} and 4804. 4803 has some affinities with \mathfrak{P}^5 (note especially the omission in i 25 (↓ 9) and 27 (↓ 14)). It also shows, however, some minor differences: \mathfrak{P}^5 seems to omit εγω in i 27 (↓ 14), and 4803 adds Πετρον after Cιμωνος in i 40 (→ 6).

1-2 ηρωτησαν αυτον τι ουν εν ηλιας ει και λεγ[ει restored with most MSS. However, since some MSS add παλιν after αυτον (so X W^s), and some omit εν after ουν (so X C L) and και before λεγει (so X), it is not possible to determine on the grounds of spacing what the papyrus might have read.

3-4 Spacing suggests that the papyrus probably did not read εν before τις (so Ψ^{66c} Ψ⁷⁵ ρς, with the support of Lvt MSS c and *r*¹).

8-9 It is unclear whether the papyrus omitted οι before απεσταλμενοι with Ψ⁶⁶ Ψ⁷⁵ X^{} A^{} B C^{*} L T Ψ 086 ρς and Origen; spacing is indecisive. οι is added by X² A^c C³ W^s X Θ 0234 f^{1.13} 33 ℵ.

9 και ηρωτησαν αυτο]ν τι. Almost all MSS read και ηρωτησαν αυτον και ειπαν αυτω τι ουν (X T, supported by two Lvt MSS (a c) and sy^c, omit και ηρωτησαν αυτον). The papyrus probably omitted και ειπαν αυτω. This also seems to have been the case in Ψ⁵ and is supported by Lvt MS l.

10 Ηλ]ιας: so Ψ^{66*} X A C, but it could equally be Ηλε]ιας (so Ψ^{66*c} Ψ⁷⁵ B D L). The spelling in the most important majuscule codices varies between the two forms, the former prevailing in later MSS (cf. Blass-Debrunner-Rehkopf § 38.2).

11 Ι]ωανν[ης with Ψ⁵ and most MSS. This is also the spelling of Ψ⁴⁵ Ψ⁶⁶ in the verses where the name is preserved. The spelling Ιωανης is attested by B and, inconsistently, by Ψ⁷⁵, where the scribe sometimes wrote Ιωανης (i 6; iii 27), sometimes corrected Ιωανης to Ιωαννης (as is the case here and at x 40), and sometimes wrote it with double nu (as at i 28). Inscriptions and papyri attest both spellings (cf. also Blass-Debrunner-Rehkopf § 40.3).

11-12 Most MSS read λεγων εγω βαπτίζω εν υδατι, which is too short for the space. The lacuna suggests that the papyrus read μεν after εγω (so 063^f 13 pc) and υμας after βαπτίζω (so N Δ Θ 063 086^(vid)), supported by Lvt MS Π²). βαπτίζω εις μετανοιαν (cf. the parallel of Matthew iii 11 and Luke iii 16), which is supported by several Lvt MSS, does not seem to fit the space: moreover, εις μετανοιαν would probably go after υδατι.

12 Spacing suggests that the papyrus must have read μεεος δε with A C² W^s Θ Ψ *f*¹ 33 063 ℳ, and the MSS that read μεν after εγω. Ψ⁵⁹ Ψ⁶⁶ Ψ⁷⁵ ℵ B C* L 083 pc omit δε.

13 ο]υκ οιδατ[ε ο οπισω. This is the reading of Ψ^{5(vid)} Ψ⁶⁶ Ψ⁷⁵ ℵ² C* L N T W^s Θ 083^f 1 33-579. 1241 al, with the support of Lvt MS a, sy^{s,c} and the Coptic tradition (ℵ B pc omit ο). Spacing guarantees that the papyrus did not read αυτος (ουτος) εστιν before ο οπισω μου with A C³ (Ψ) *f*¹³ ℳ, part of Lvt, the Vulgate, and sy^{p,h}.

14 The length of the line shows that the papyrus did not read ος εμπροσθεν μου γεγονεν after ερχομενος with Ψ⁵ Ψ⁶⁶ Ψ⁷⁵ Ψ¹⁰⁶ ℵ B C* L N* T W^s Ψ 083^f 1 33-579 al, supported by two Lvt MSS (b l), sy^{s,c} and the Coptic versions, a harmonization with John i 15 and i 30. It is added by A C³ (Θ) *f*¹³ ℳ, supported by Lvt, the Vulgate, sy^{(p),h} and some Bohairic MSS.

ουκ ει]μι εγω α[ξιος. εγω is also read by Ψ^{66c} B N T W^s Ψ 579 pc and is omitted by 4804^(vid) Ψ^{5(vid)} Ψ^{66*} Ψ⁷⁵ ℵ C L *f*¹³ 33-565 al with two Lvt MSS (aur* q). εγω ουκ ειμι is read by A Θ *f*¹ ℳ with the Vulgate and part of Lvt.

α[ξιος. Ψ⁶⁶ Ψ⁷⁵ and a few MSS read ικανος instead of αξιος, perhaps through harmonization with Matthew iii 11 and parallels. The alpha in the papyrus is damaged, but the remains of a curve rule out iota.

14-15 The lacuna suggests that the papyrus did not read with Ψ^{66*c} λυσω τον ιμαντα του υποδηματος αυτου.

16 Spacing suggests that the papyrus probably read Βηθανια instead of Βηθαβαρα or Βηθαραβα (see 4804 n.).

1 The traces of ink here are so slight that they cannot be matched with certainty to any particular reading.

3 οψεσθ]ε. This is the reading of Ψ^{5(vid)} Ψ⁶⁶ Ψ⁷⁵ B C* L W^s Ψ^c 083^f 1 33-579 pc (Ψ* illeg.) and Origen (in part). ℵ A C³ Θ 063^f 13 ℳ, the Latin tradition and Origen (in part) read ιδετε. The lack of lateral margins makes it impossible to determine on the grounds of spacing what the reading of the papyrus might have been. Moreover, it is also possible that the papyrus omitted ουν before και ειδαν (so Ψ^{5(vid)} *f*¹ ℳ). The addition of ουν is attested by Ψ⁶⁶ Ψ⁷⁵ ℵ A B C L N W^s Θ Ψ *f*¹³ 33-579-892 and Origen (in part).

4 ℵ C² Ω 0233 and the majority of MSS add δε after ωρα, but given the fragmentary condition of the papyrus nothing definitive can be said.

6 Πε]τρον. This seems to be omitted by Ψ⁵.

10 A blob of ink above ε in εστιν is probably accidental.

10-11 The restored text is that of Ψ^{66*} Ψ⁷⁵ Ψ¹⁰⁶ ℵ B L 579 pc, which is supported by Lvt MS b. The length of the restored line does not support the addition of και before ηγαγεν with A W^s Θ Ψ *f*¹³ 33 ℳ and the Latin and Syriac traditions. Unlikely for the same reason would be ουτος ηγαγεν with Ψ^{66c} G *f*¹ pc, the Bohairic versions and Epiphanius.

11-12 After προς τον Ιησουν most MSS read εμβλεψας αυτω ο Ιησους ειπεν. Here the supplement π[ρος τον ιη̄ν (or ῑν) εμβλεψας αυτω]ω (so Ψ⁶⁶ ℵ A B K L Γ Ψ *f*¹ 565-579^(vid) 700 pm sy^s; Ψ¹⁰⁶ omits τον) seems too short for the space, even if the papyrus read και εμβλεψας with W^s pc (εμβλεψας δε is read by Ψ⁷⁵ Δ Θ *f*¹³ 33-892-1241-1424 pm). There are no other attested variants at this point. The reading εμβλεψας δε ο ιη̄ς (or ῑς) ειπεν αυτω]ω is the most tempting restoration (cf. Matthew xix 26 εμβλέψας δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς εἶπεν αὐτοῖς).

¹² Spacing suggests that the papyrus read υιου ιωαννου: so \mathfrak{P}^{66} \mathfrak{P}^{75} \mathfrak{P}^{106} \mathfrak{X} B^* W^* 33 pc, with most of the Lvt MSS and the Coptic versions; υιου ιωρα is read by A B^2 Ψ $f^{1,13}$ \mathfrak{R} , with three Lvt MSS (aur e q), the Clementine Vulgate, the Syrian tradition and one Bohairic MS.

 \mathfrak{P}^{120}

3.5 × 6 cm

Fourth century
Plate II

Three fragments, the largest from the top and the other two from the foot of a leaf from a codex, written in a Biblical Majuscule, strictly bilinear with the exception of ϕ (the obliques of λ in 34 are also extended under the line, but elsewhere kept to it; \times and ψ are not attested). The script is upright, rather small, written by a professional scribe, who made an effort to keep an even right margin (the letters become smaller towards the end of the line, so that the script on the → side seems much larger). The hand shows a fondness for straight lines and sharp angles. π is almost square, the angles of μ , ζ and α are sharp, o sometimes small and suspended, c a perfect semicircle, τ a right angle. The top of α is curved to the left over the first stroke. The oblique strokes of γ are short and meet the vertical at a rather high point. ϵ is somewhat narrow. Letters are made separately but sometimes space between them is almost non-existent.

The hand shows some similarities with early examples of Biblical Majuscule (see for example LXV 4442, dated by the editor to the early third century, a papyrus from the book of Exodus, written in a hand described as Biblical Majuscule influenced by the 'Severe Style'). It can be compared with P. Mich. III 138 (\mathfrak{P}^{38}), a codex of Acts, assigned by Roberts and Skeat to the third/fourth century, and with P. Chester Beatty IV [961], Genesis (R. Seider, Paläographie der griechischen Papyri ii 56), assigned to the fourth century (a line added in the upper margin of f. 24v, written in a semi-cursive hand of a type well known in the first half of the fourth century, confirms this; see G. Cavallo, Ricerche sulla maiuscola biblica 50-51). A date not later than the fourth century would suit.

There are several spaces between words. A paragraphos projects into the margin between 28 and 29, marking perhaps a reading section (cf. Turner, Typology of the Early Codex 84-6). A diaeresis and an apostrophe occur in 54 ($\beta\eta\theta'$ $\epsilon\alpha\iota\delta$ [a]). Inorganic diaereses over ι and υ are found in 3, 5, 6, 27, and 31. The nomina sacra attested are $\overline{\theta\upsilon}$ (28) and $\overline{\iota\eta\tau}$ (34). There is a iotacism (ι for $\epsilon\iota$) in 3.

Compared with the size of the letters, the interlinear space is very generous. Margins of 1.5 cm at the top and 1.3 cm at the foot of the page are preserved. 1.5 cm of the outside lateral margin is visible on each side. On ↓ the average number of letters to the line is 28 on the upper part of the page, which seems to decrease as the lines become closer to the bottom, being c.26 in the last four lines. Assuming the Nestle–Aland text and 27 letters per line (where the most common nomina sacra were used and leaving aside a nomen sacrum for ουρανου and ιερηλ), the page would have contained 27 lines. On → the average number of letters to the line is 28.5, which would also give a page of 27 lines. (This suggests that the script might have run more deeply into the spine, and perhaps reduced its letter size at line-ends as in ↓.) Thus the written area would have been c.8.5 × 17.5 cm. The size of the codex, allowing for lateral and vertical margins of 2 cm and 3 cm respectively, would have been c.11 × 20.5 cm, which falls within Turner's group 8 (Typology of the Early Codex 95). The leaf would have contained c.330 words, and the whole codex would have consisted of approximately 95 pages. There are c.357 words missing between the beginning of the Gospel and the beginning of 4804, which means that, if only one page is missing and the fragment was part of pages 3 and 4 of the codex, the first page must have had a couple of lines more on each side. But it is also possible that the gospel followed another book as part of a larger codex (see 4803 introd.).

Parts of the text overlap with Ψ^5 , Ψ^{55} , Ψ^{59} , Ψ^{66} , Ψ^{75} , Ψ^{106} and 4803.

2-3 ο Ιωαν]νης εγω βα[πτιζω. Nearly all MSS read λεγων after Ιωαννης, which the papyrus omitted with $\Psi^{75} f^1$ ρc and Lvt MS e. For the spelling Ιωανης or Ιωαννης, see 4803 ↓ 11 n.

εγω βα[πτιζω . . . με]ρος υμων. εγω βαπτιζω εν υδατι μερος υμων is the reading of $\Psi^{59} \Psi^{66} \Psi^{75} \aleph B C^* L$ o83 ρc . μερος δε υμων is the reading of A C² W^s Θ Ψ f^1 33 \aleph . εγω μεν . . . μερος δε is read by 4803^(vid) o63 $f^{13} \rho c$.

Spacing suggests that the papyrus read βα[πτιζω υμας εν υδατι with 4803^(vid) N Δ Θ o63 and o86^(vid). εις μετανοιαν after υδατι (cf. Matthew iii 11 and Luke iii 16), which is supported by various Lvt MSS, is too long.

3-4 ι[στηκει (l. ειστηκει). This is also the reading of $\Psi^{75} \rho c$, supported by the Vulgate and one Lvt MS (f). στηκει is read by B L o83 $f^1 \rho c$ and Origen (in part). The most common reading is εστηκεν: so $\Psi^{66} A C T^{(vid)} W^s \Theta \Psi f^{13}$ 33 \aleph and Origen (in part). \aleph reads εστηκει.

4 ουκ οιδ]ατε ο οπισω with $\Psi^{5(vid)} \Psi^{66} \Psi^{75} \aleph^2 C^* L N T W^s \Theta$ o83 f^1 33. 579. 1071. 1241 al, one Lvt MS (a), sy^{s.c} and all the Coptic tradition. ο is omitted (probably by accident due to the following omicron) by $\aleph^* B$ and a few MSS. αυτος (ουτος) εστιν ο οπισω is read by A C³ (Ψ) f^{13} 565 \aleph , with the support of part of Lvt, the Vulgate, and sy^{p.h}.

5 ερχομενος ου ουκ ει]μι with $\Psi^5 \Psi^{66} \Psi^{75} \Psi^{106} \aleph B C^* L N^* T W^s \Psi$ o83 f^1 33. 579 al, supported by two Lvt MSS (b l), sy^{s.c} and the Coptic versions. Numerous MSS (so A C³ (Θ) f^{13} \aleph , part of Lvt, the Vulgate, sy^{(p)h} and some MSS of the Bohairie tradition) add ος εμπροσθεν μου γεγονεν after ερχομενος.

ουκ ει]μι αξιος. Instead of αξιος, $\Psi^{66} \Psi^{75}$ and a few MSS read ικανος, perhaps through harmonization with Matthew iii 11 and parallels. The omission of εγω before αξιος is also attested by $\Psi^{5(vid)} \Psi^{66*} \Psi^{75} \aleph C L f^{13}$ 33. 565 al, and two Lvt MSS (aur* q). εγω is added by 4803 $\Psi^{66c} B N T W^s \Psi$ 579 and a few MSS. Spacing does not suggest the reading εγω ουκ ει]μι αξιος (so A Θ f^1 \aleph with the Vulgate and part of Lvt).

6-7 Spacing shows that papyrus did not read with $\Psi^{66*c} \lambda u c w$ τον μαντα του υποδηματος αυτου.

7]α εγενετο. The following variants are attested at this point:

ταυτα εν Βηθανια εγενετο $\Psi^{75} A B C L W^s$ 579 pm, with the support of the Latin, and most of the Syriae and Bohairie versions.

ταυτα εγενετο εν Βηθανια $\Psi^{66} \aleph$ with most of Lvt.

ταυτα εν Βηθαβαρα εγενετο C² K T Ψ e o83 f^{1-13} 33 pm sy^{s.c}, the Sahidie tradition and Origen.

ταυτα εν Βηθαβαρα εγενετο \aleph^2 892^{v1} ρc (sy^{hmg}).

Βηθαβαρα is a 'conjecture' by Origen, In Joh. 6, who admits that almost all MSS known to him read Βηθανια, but rejects it on the grounds of his geographical knowledge (he could not find a Bethany near the river Jordan), and goes on to propose Βηθαβαρα. It is assumed that the MSS supporting Βηθαβαρα attest the success of Origen's conjecture.

Spacing suggests that the papyrus did not read $\tau\alpha\upsilon\tau]a \epsilon\gamma\epsilon\nu\epsilon\tau\omicron$ [$\epsilon\nu$ $B\eta\theta\alpha\nu\iota\alpha$, and that it probably had $\tau\alpha\upsilon\tau\alpha \epsilon\nu B\eta\theta\alpha\nu\iota]a$ instead of $\tau\alpha\upsilon\tau\alpha \epsilon\nu B\eta\theta\alpha\beta\alpha\rho]a$ or $B\eta\theta\alpha\rho\alpha\beta]a$.

26 Spacing suggests that the papyrus, with nearly all MSS, did not add $\kappa\alpha\iota \pi\upsilon\rho\iota$ after $\alpha\gamma\iota\omega$, as is found in C*, supported by the Sahidic tradition and Origen (in part).

27 $\omicron \nu\iota\omicron\varsigma \rho$. The article after $\nu\iota\omicron\varsigma$ is not attested by other MSS. $\nu\iota\omicron\varsigma$ is the reading of \aleph^c and most MSS, supported by the majority of Lvt, the Vulgate, and other versions.

$\Psi^{106(\text{vid})}$ and \aleph^* , with the support of some Lvt MSS (b e ff^{2*}) and sy^{s,c}, the Sahidic versions, as well as Ambrose and Augustine, read $\omicron \epsilon\kappa\lambda\epsilon\kappa\tau\omicron\varsigma$ (electus filius in Lvt MSS (a) ff^{2c}).

28 Most MSS read $\pi\alpha\lambda\iota\nu \epsilon\iota\sigma\tau\eta\kappa\epsilon\iota$. Spacing suggests that the papyrus omitted $\pi\alpha\lambda\iota\nu$ with $\Psi^{5(\text{vid})}$ Ψ^{75} Γ Ψ $\rho\varsigma$, supported by three Lvt MSS (b e r¹), sy^{s,c} and one Bohairic MS. It is not possible to know whether the papyrus omitted \omicron (so Ψ^{75} B L and a few MSS).

31 $\text{̄}\delta\epsilon \omicron$ [$\alpha\mu\nu\omicron\varsigma$. The lacuna suggests that the papyrus does not read $\text{̄}\delta\epsilon \omicron \bar{\chi}\epsilon \omicron \alpha\mu\nu\omicron\varsigma$ with G L f¹³ b $\rho\varsigma$ sy^c, the Sahidic and Armenian versions, and Epiphanius.

31-2 $\kappa\alpha\iota \alpha\kappa\omicron\upsilon\sigma\alpha\nu] \tau] \epsilon\varsigma \omicron\iota \delta\nu\omicron \mu[\alpha\theta\eta\tau\alpha\iota$. There are several variants at this point:

$\kappa\alpha\iota \eta\kappa\omicron\upsilon\sigma\alpha\nu \alpha\upsilon\tau\omicron\upsilon \omicron\iota \delta\nu\omicron \mu\alpha\theta\eta\tau\alpha\iota$ A C³ Θ f^{1,13} \aleph , with part of Lvt tradition, the Vulgate and sy^h.

$\kappa\alpha\iota \eta\kappa\omicron\upsilon\sigma\alpha\nu \omicron\iota \delta\nu\omicron \alpha\upsilon\tau\omicron\upsilon \mu\alpha\theta\eta\tau\alpha\iota$ Ψ^{66} Ψ^{75} C* L W^s Ψ 083. 33. 579 $\rho\varsigma$.

$\kappa\alpha\iota \eta\kappa\omicron\upsilon\sigma\alpha\nu \omicron\iota \delta\nu\omicron \mu\alpha\theta\eta\tau\alpha\iota \alpha\upsilon\tau\omicron\upsilon$ $\Psi^{55(\text{vid})}$ B (892) $\rho\varsigma$ and one Lvt MS (b). $\alpha\upsilon\tau\omicron\upsilon$ is probably omitted by Ψ^9 .

The papyrus probably read $\kappa\alpha\iota \alpha\kappa\omicron\upsilon\sigma\alpha\nu] \tau] \epsilon\varsigma \omicron\iota \delta\nu\omicron \mu[\alpha\theta\eta\tau\alpha\iota \alpha\upsilon\tau\omicron\upsilon \lambda\alpha\lambda\omicron\upsilon\nu\tau\omicron\varsigma] | \eta\kappa\omicron\lambda\omicron\upsilon\theta\eta[\varsigma\alpha\nu \tau\omega \text{̄}\eta\eta\upsilon$ (cf. Matthew xx 24 $\kappa\alpha\iota \acute{\alpha}\kappa\omicron\upsilon\varsigma\alpha\nu\tau\epsilon\varsigma \omicron\iota \delta\acute{\epsilon}\kappa\alpha \eta\gamma\alpha\nu\acute{\alpha}\kappa\tau\eta\varsigma\alpha\nu$). It certainly did not have $\omicron \alpha\iota\rho\omega\nu \tau\eta\nu \alpha\mu\alpha\rho\tau\iota\alpha\nu \tau\omicron\upsilon \kappa\omicron\varsigma\omicron\mu\omicron\upsilon$ (cf. John i 29) after $\omicron \alpha\mu\nu\omicron\varsigma \tau\omicron\upsilon \theta\upsilon$ with Ψ^{66*} C (W^s) 892* 1241 $\rho\varsigma$, and three Lvt MSS (a aur ff²).

33 Spacing suggests that the papyrus had $\delta\epsilon$ with most MSS. $\delta\epsilon$ is omitted by \aleph^* Γ 083 al.

50-51 $\eta\theta\epsilon\lambda\eta] \varsigma] \epsilon\nu \epsilon\acute{\xi}\epsilon\lambda[\theta\epsilon\iota\nu$. With all early witnesses, and against the later majority text, the papyrus omitted $\omicron \iota\eta\varsigma\omicron\upsilon\varsigma$ after $\eta\theta\epsilon\lambda\eta\varsigma\epsilon\nu$, and probably included it after $\alpha\upsilon\tau\omega$ in 52.

54 $B\eta\theta' \text{̄}\alpha\iota\delta]a$ (so nearly all MSS) or $B\eta\theta' \text{̄}\alpha\iota\delta]a\nu$ (so Ψ^{66} \aleph^* 8. 127).

Third century
Plate I

This small fragment comes from the bottom of a leaf of a papyrus codex. The text is written with a narrow pen in a right-sloping and mostly bilinear rapid script close to the 'Severe Style'. A distinctive serif is visible on the vertical of κ . The suspended \omicron is particularly small; μ is rather broad; ϵ is not as narrow as in later samples of 'mature Severe Style'. The hand has similarities with manuscripts of the late second century or early third. See, for example, XIII 1604 or XV 1788, assigned to the late second century, XXII 2341 (= GLH 19c), dated to 202, or II 223 (= GLH 21a), written on the back of a document of 186. Among New Testament texts, 4805 is close to LXVI 4497, a small fragment of St Paul's letter to the Romans, assigned to the third century.

There are no lectional signs attested. The blank space before $\bar{\iota}\bar{\epsilon}$ in $\downarrow 2$ probably serves as punctuation. An organic diaeresis occurs over ι in $\rightarrow 2$, and an inorganic one is found in $\downarrow 2$ (in a iotacism). The nomina sacra attested are $\bar{\iota}\bar{\epsilon}$ ($\downarrow 2$) and $\bar{\mu}\bar{\rho}\bar{\cdot}$ ($\downarrow 4$). A horizontal above the ν in $\rightarrow 3$ suggests that the scribe wrote $\overline{\epsilon\sigma\phi\alpha\nu}$ for $\acute{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\acute{\alpha}\upsilon\rho\omega\sigma\alpha\nu$.

If we use the Nestle–Aland²⁷ text, the average number of letters to the line can be estimated at 22–3 on the \downarrow side. The restoration of the text on the \rightarrow side offers some problems because there is only one line whose length can be estimated (27 letters). Margins are not preserved, except for a lower one of 2.5 cm. If we supplement the Nestle–Aland²⁷ text from the beginning of $\rightarrow 4$ to the beginning of $\downarrow 4$, there are 860 missing letters. With an average of 23/24 letters to the line and ordinary use of nomina sacra, this would give a single-column codex of approximately 37 lines. If so, the written area would have been c.10 × 24 cm. Assuming Turner’s rule that the proportion of the lower margins to the upper margins is 3 : 2 (Typology 25), the top margin would have been c.1.5 cm and the height of the page c.28 cm. If we allow for lateral margins of 1 cm the size of the codex would have been approximately 12 × 28 cm, which falls within Turner’s group 8 (Typology of the Early Codex 95). The whole gospel would have occupied about 82 pages. It must be noted however that, considering the size of the fragment, all these figures are very tentative.

Other papyri containing these sections of the Gospel of John are Ψ^{60} and Ψ^{66} . The line-divisions of the restored text are arbitrary, for there are no surviving lateral margins.

3-4 []α εντευ[θεν. All MSS read και μετ αυτου αλλουc δυο εντευθεν και εντευθεν. Spacing does not allow [εντευθεν κ]α<ι> εντευ[θεν, and it is very difficult to think of a good restoration with an ending in alpha. [εν]α εντευ[θεν και ενα εντευθεν would be a remote possibility (cf. Mark xv 27 καὶ ἐν ἀντῶ σταυροῦσιν δύο ληστὰς ἕνα ἐκ δεξιῶν καὶ ἕνα ἐξ εὐωνύμων αὐτοῦ; LXX Ex xvii 12 Ααρων καὶ Ωρ ἐστήριζον τὰς χεῖρας αὐτοῦ ἐντεῦθεν εἰς καὶ ἐντεῦθεν εἰς).

1]οπα και Μ[αρια. The traces are very slight. The expected text is Μαρια η του Κλωπα και Μαρια η Μαγδαληνη, but, at the beginning of the line, a curving trace suggests ο rather than ω. The papyrus might have read Κλοπα for Κλωπα (see Cyril, In Ioann. in loc. 3.89 (ed. Puscy); cf. Gignac, Grammar i 276f.). The reading Κλε]οπα cannot be ruled out, for the confusion of Κλεοπας (Lk xxiv 18) with Κλωπας is not rare (see Synop. Script. Sacr., PG 28.404).

The supplement could be Μ[αρια or Μ[αριαμ. The latter is the reading of Σ (L) Ψ 1. 33. 565. l 844 pc.

2 ῑτ̄ is omitted by Σ and introduced by Σ^a.

ουν with all Greek MSS; δε is the reading of Σ^a.

4 μ̄ρ̄. The expected reading is the nomen sacrum μ̄ρ̄ι (ῑτ̄ is attested in ↓ 2, and spacing suggests that μ̄ρ̄α was probably used in the same line), but after rho there is only a tiny trace of an oblique stroke at the base of the line, which does not suit iota, but rather alpha. αυτου after μητρι is added by A Θ f^{1.13} ℣, supported by part of Lvt, the Vulgate and sy, whereas Ψ^{66(vid)} Σ B L W Ψ 1. 565. 579. l 844 pc with the support of Lvt MSS (b e) omit it. The scribe may have skipped the iota by mistake and read μ̄ρ̄ α[υτου.

Fourth/fifth century?
 Plate I

There are only two other papyrus fragments containing sections of the last chapter of the Gospel of John: Ψ¹⁰⁹ (LXV 4448) (third century) and Ψ⁵⁹ (P. Ncs-sana II 3) (seventh century). 4806 is the first papyrus evidence to preserve verses 11 and 22.

The text is written in a rather irregular and cramped heavy upright hand, with a slight tendency for contrast between thick and thin strokes. This kind of script is difficult to date. Some of its features may suggest an early period, but some letters (especially μ, κ, and ε) may point to a hand influenced by Coptic style. In fact, the script could be described as a poor attempt at 'Biblical Uncial', made by an inexperienced scribe. It may be compared to P. Chester Beatty IV [961] (R. Seider, Paläographie der griechischen Papyri ii 56), a codex of Genesis assigned to the first half of the fourth century (see 4804 introd.). However, considering its Coptic traits, a date in the fourth or fifth century is perhaps more likely.

A very narrow margin of 5 mm at the lower end of the ↓ side shows that the text belongs to the foot of the page of a codex. The average number of letters to the line is 27 on the ↓ side and 25 on the → side. Assuming the Nestle–Aland²⁷ text, the number of lines missing from the end of ↓ 11 to the beginning of → 3 would have been approximately 35. This would give a page of c.44 lines and a written area of c.10 × 24 cm, which falls into Turner's Group 8 (see Typology of the Early Codex 95). The page would have contained about 245 words, and the whole gospel would have occupied some 64 pages. Given how often the restored text seems too short for the space, we should probably assume that the right-hand margin was not kept regular rather than infer otherwise unattested variant readings.

There is no evidence for punctuation, orthographical signs or corrections. A probable textual error occurs in → 6. There is an elision of final ε in δευτε before α in ↓ 5 and confusion of τ for θ in → 4. Iotacism (ι for ει) occurs in → 4 and 6. The nomen sacrum for ιησους appears twice (↓ 5, 8) (κ̄τ̄ and ῑη̄τ̄ have been restored in ↓ 7 and → 7). The number 153 is written as a figure in ↓ 3 (see Roberts, Manuscript, Society and Belief 18–19; Turner, *GMAIW*² p. 15). As lateral margins do not survive, the line-divisions of the restored text are arbitrary.

Professor Parker has pointed out that the text of 4806 is rather close to that of W (032). Although the sample is too small to conclude, he notes that some of the lacunae of the papyrus might be better filled by readings of W (see ↓ 5 and → 10) than of other manuscripts.

2 ε]ις τ[ην γην. This is the reading of Σ A B C L N P W Δ Θ Ψ 33. 1241. l 844. l 2211 al. The Byzantine text has επι της γης, whereas D f^{1.13} 565. 1424 pc read επι την γην.

2-3 ιχθυων μεγαλω]ν. Restored with Σ B C, but μεγαλων ιχθυων]ν (so W, with A D L 1. 33) would be equally possible.

5 α[ριστησατε restored with most MSS. W reads αρισταται (l. -ε), which may be a better supplement here, considering the affinities of this manuscript with 4806 and the spacing (perhaps too long for αριστησατε).

5-6 It is not possible to tell whether the papyrus omitted ο before ιη̅ς̅, here restored exempli gratia. This omission is attested by B (note the shared omission of ο by 4806 and B in 8: ερχεται ιησους). The same applies to δε in 6, omitted by B C.

8 ερχε]ται ιη̅ς̅ with B D W; ο is added before ιησους in Σ C L Ψ 1. 33. 565. 700. 892^s. l 844. l 2211 al; ερχεται ουν ο ιησους is read by A Θ f^{1.13} 33 and the Byzantine text.

9 κα]ι διδωσιν with most of the MS tradition; D and three Lvt MSS (d f r¹), supported by some MSS of the Vulgate and sy^s, read και ευχαριστησας εδωκεν.

10 The line as restored seems to be too short (but see also 7). It is possible that the papyrus had δε after τουτο, as is read by Σ L N Θ 33. 700. l 844. l 2211 pc. See also next note.

11 εφανερω]θη τοις μ[αθηταις. Nearly all MSS read εφανερωθη ο Ιησους τοις μαθηταις (so Σ A (^s L) Θ Ψ f^{1.13} 33 ℵ). εφανερωθη Ιησους τοις μαθηταις is read by B C D and εφανερωθη τοις μαθηταις ο Ιησους by L, a reading that cannot be excluded here. Likewise, the papyrus might have read ο ιη̅ς̅ | εφανερω]θη τοις μ[αθηταις, even if there is no attestation for it. W omits ο Ιησους.

1-2 The traces are too scanty to allow any attempt at restoring the lines.

4 ακολ]ουτι (l. ακολουθει). For confusion of dentals in documentary papyri, see Gignac, Grammar i 92.

μοι ακολουθει is the reading of Σ A B C* D W 1. 33 pc; ακολουθει μοι is read by C² Θ Ψ f^{1.13} ℵ.

5-6 Spacing guarantees that the papyrus did not have the reading of D, αδελφους και εδοξαν οτι.

6 εκινου (l. εκειν-). All MSS read εκεινος. It is surely an accidental mistake by influence of the following ουκ.

7 ουκ ειπε]ν δε with ℥^{59(vid)} Σ B C W 33 pc, supported with slight variations by one Lvt MS (c) and sy^{s-p}; και ουκ ειπεν is the reading of A D Θ Ψ f^{1.13} 33 ℵ with the support of the Lvt tradition, the Vulgate and sy^s.

8-9 The supplement seems rather short for the space, but other alternative readings are not attested at this point.

9-10 Spacing suggests that the papyrus read τι προς σε, with most of the MSS tradition (Σ¹ A B C* W Θ Ψ f^{1.13} 33 ℵ, supported by part of the Lvt tradition, the Vulgate and sy^{p.11}). Some MSS (Σ C² 1. 565 pc, supported by Lvt MSS a and e, and sy^s) omit it. D reads προς σε.

II. NEW LITERARY TEXTS

4807. SOPHOCLES, Ἐπιγονοί

87/110(a)

11.2 × 7.8 cm

Third century
Plate III

A fragment of a papyrus roll with remains of two columns written along the fibres. Top, bottom, and right margins are lost, leaving only several line-ends of col. i, but a substantial portion of the line-beginnings in col. ii, to a minimum line-length of 7.6 cm (ii 5). A kollesis runs between cols. i-ii, where the intercolumnium as preserved measures c.2 cm. The back is blank.

The hand is a generously-spaced variation of the Formal Mixed (or 'Severe Style') type, slightly sloping to the right, with letters written separately (ει almost connected in ii 2; cf. 7), and well executed, if irregularly so. c more or less rounded (as ο), yet larger, but sometimes straight-backed on the model of ε; ρ and γ both with and without finial at the bottom; ο variously sized, both tiny and floating between the lines, and full-sized on the model of ε and c; θ at full height but narrow, and with a cross-stroke protruding from either side of the bowl; γ more or less upright, with different lengths of tail. ζ, φ, and ψ regularly, and γ and ρ sometimes, project downwards (but not τ). Decoration includes occasional slight finials on feet of verticals (ι, ρ, γ, ψ) and hooks on tops of obliques (α, λ, where the right element surpasses the left at the apex in both). ζ (ii 2, 10) is informally executed, with the lower component being unconnected to its horizontal top-line. Cf. IX 1174 (*GMAW*² 34), XXVII 2458 (*GMAW*² 32). Of objectively dated papyri, I 23 (pl. vi; Plato, Laws ix) is roughly similar (earlier than 295 on the basis of scribe practising imperial titulature on the back); comparable hands with assigned dates: XXXIX 2890 (ppl. ii and iv, Aeschin. Socr., Miltiades, codex, assigned to the middle of the second to end of third century), XXX 2519 (pl. vi, Antimachus, Thebais?, assigned to the first half of the third century), and P. Chester Beatty XI (GBEBP 2b; LXX, Ecclesiasticus, assigned to the early fourth century). A date in the third century may therefore be assigned; a date in the late second or early fourth centuries cannot be excluded.

Lectional signs: two paragraphoi for speaker change (after ii 5 and 10) and one apostrophe marking elision (ii 11), all by the original scribe. Elision is made tacitly elsewhere (ii 5, 8, 12); iota adscript is written in ii 11, the only place where we expect it. The text shows a relatively high rate of error: erroneous readings in ii 6 αφανοι and ii 10 ευδοξαντας (for ευδοντας), and a copying error in ii 9 κινουσοκο (for κινουσιχο: see note); iotacistic orthography in ii 7 φουινεικο-; correction currente calamo in ii 3.

Col. ii contains anapaestic lines separated into dimeters (as expected in manuscripts of this date: R. Pfeiffer, History of Classical Philology i (1968) 231–3; M. L. West, BICS 24 (1977) 89–94). A play of Sophocles is indicated by an overlap with an existing quotation: ii 9–10 κερκίδο[.]υ[. .] | η τους ευδο{ξα}ντας εγειρ[.]ι overlaps with (and may be restored from) S. inc. fab. F 890 Radt (quoted in an ancient comment on Ar. Pl. 541: στιβάδα χορίων κόρεων μεστήν, ἢ τοὺς εὐδοντας ἐγείρει). Which play of Sophocles? The manuscripts of Plutus have different versions of the scholion: schol. 541b, in M. Chantry, Scholia vetera in Aristophanis Plutum = Scholia in Aristophanem iii 4a (1994) 97: Ἦ Κοφοκλέους τὸ ἡμιτίχιον· †ἐπειγομένων οὐ† κερκίδος ὕμνους, ἢ τοὺς εὐδοντας ἐγείρει; E Barb ἐκ Κοφοκλέους δράματος· κερκίδος ὕμνους, ἢ τοὺς εὐδοντας ἐγείρει; N ἐκ Κοφοκλέους δράματος and τοῦ Κοφοκλέους τοῦτο. Most scholars have assumed that the corrupt words ἐπειγομένων οὐ provided by the Venetus were part of the quotation; cf. the conjectures listed by Radt on S. F 890 (p. 573). This is now excluded by the papyrus text (already A. C. Pearson, Fragments of Sophocles iii (1917) 81, and Chantry, Scholia p. 97, concluded that ἐπειγομένων οὐ belong to the ancient commentator). Pearson's conjecture ἐπὶ τῶν ἐγειρομένων, however, leaves οὐ unexplained and doubles ἐγείρω. On the other hand, Chantry's ἐπειγομένων τοὺς does not produce good sense. Therefore, it seems likely that ἐπειγομένων οὐ represents a corrupt citation of the title of the drama. The most obvious correction of ἐπειγομένων is Ἐπιγόνων, a title attested for one of Sophocles' plays, which may have become επειγονων by itacism and then wrongly been corrected to επειγομενων. The same error occurs in Cert. Hom. et Hes. 258 Allen = p. 42.33 Wilamowitz εἶτα ἐπειγομένου, where Joshua Barnes corrected to Ἐπιγόνου (the parallel is due to Sir Hugh Lloyd-Jones). Dramatic titles are often corrupted by similar phonetic errors; cf., e.g., S. F 19: Athen. cod. ἐνγαι ~ Αἰγεί; S. F 25a: Hsch. cod. αἰγί ~ Αἰγεί?; etc. In this case οὐ could go back either to an abbreviated οὔ(τω) (cf. K. McNamee, Abbreviations in Greek Literary Papyri and Ostraca (BASP Suppl. 3: 1981) 74f. s.v. οὔτω[ς]: οὔ, ουῷ) or to τοῦτο. For similar wordings in scholia, see schol. Ar. Ach. 8a ἔστι δὲ τὸ ἡμιτίχιον ἐκ Τηλέφου Εὐριπίδου ἔχον οὔτως (REGLh); schol. Ar. Vesp. 1074a ὁ εἰς τὸν Εὐριπίδου ἐκ Θενεβοίας (VI³LhAld); schol. Ar. Thesm. 21 ἔστι δὲ Κοφοκλέους ἐξ Αἴαντος Λοκροῦ (R). Thus the original text could have been, e.g., Κοφοκλέους τὸ ἡμιτίχιον ἐξ Ἐπιγόνων τοῦτο or Κοφοκλέους τὸ ἡμιτίχιον ἐξ Ἐπιγόνων ἔχον οὔτως. The words ἐξ and ἔχον might have been omitted by a saut du même au même (ἐξ επ-, -ων -ον), but in any case (as J. R. Rea suggests) they are not necessary: cf. LXVII 4547 ii 63–6 Ἀριστομένους Διονύσου Ἀσκητοῦ τοῦτὶ τοῦγκώμιον.

It will be noted that Aristotle says that the 'voice of the shuttle' (κερκίδος φωνή) was used as a recognition device in the Tereus of Sophocles (Poet. 1454b30 = S. F 595). Nauck regarded this as a paraphrase of Sophocles F 890 κερκίδος ὕμνους (*TGF*² p. 261 [= p. 319 Radt] on fr. 538 [= F 804]) which appears in 4807 at ii 9. But already Thomas Tyrwhitt correctly inferred that Aristotle had taken the expression κερκίδος φωνή directly from Sophocles' play (Aristotelis de poetica liber (1794) 162, quoting Ach. Tat. 5.5.4f. as a paraphrase that explains the image appropriately in the play: ἡ γὰρ Φιλομήλας τέχνησι σιωπῶσαν εὔρηκε φωνήν· ὑφαίνει γὰρ πέπλον ἄγγελον καὶ τὸ δρᾶμα πλέκει ταῖς κρόκαισι, καὶ μιμεῖται τὴν γλώτταν ἢ χεῖρ, καὶ Πρόκνης τοῖς ὀφθαλμοῖσι τὰ τῶν ὄτων μηνύει καὶ πρὸς αὐτὴν ἃ πέπονθε τῇ κερκίδι λαλεῖ). It is sufficiently clear that the contents of col. ii in 4807 do not suit the ἀναγνώρισις of Tereus, which was the original context of the expression κερκίδος φωνή according to Aristotle.

The use of the paragraphoi (as well as the content of the second column) suggests that the roll contained a whole play and not an anthology. The recitative character of the anapaests in col. ii is shown by their Attic vocalization (ii 5 είδηρον; ii 9 σοφής) and regular caesura after each metron (except ii 8 and perhaps ii 12, where the caesura occurs after the first short of the next biceps, which is not exceptional; see the instances listed by D. Korzeniewski, Griechische Metrik (1968) 88 n. 19, and further Fraenkel on A. Ag. 52). The paragraphoi may further indicate an anapaestic-recitative dialogue, possibly between the chorus and an actor or between two actors; but as the speakers seem mainly to be listing different kinds of arms and armour-making, they might be more than two sections of one chorus (paragraphoi are so used e.g. in cod. M in Aesch. Septem 875–960). Although one expects extended anapaestic sections above all near the beginning of a play (cf. Ai. 201–62, Ph. 144 ff., OC 135 ff.; see W. Nestle, Struktur des Eingangs (1930) 72–6, on the development of anapaests at the beginning of an Attic tragedy, and J. F. Davidson, BICS 22 (1975) 163–77, on the form of the parodos of Ai.), Sophocles uses them at any point of the dramatic action (cf., e.g., Tr. 974–1003, Ant. 929–43). Anapaests that include change of speaker are found near to or at the end of plays (Ai. 1402–20, Tr. 1259–78, OT 1297–1311, Ph. 1409–71, OC 1751–79).

Reconstruction (allowing for the relatively high degree of error in copying) allows a number of possibilities, of which the following seems to be most convincing.

The text describes preparations for war: several components of hoplite armour are mentioned (5 είδηρον, 6 κυναῖ, 8 θωρακοφόροις), supplemented by the chariot (11 ἄρματος), and there are indications that these are in the process of production (3 πρίστις?, 5 θήγους?, 8 ὑφαντή[ρες], 9 κερκίδοις, 11 κολλᾶι with parts of the chariot). For other descriptions of marching out to battle cf. the pre-battle scene in E. Ph. 784–800 (with a completely different perspective, however, in emphasizing Ares, μόχθοι, and πήματα), the arming of Abradates in Xen. Cyr. 6.4.2, Hell. 7.5.20, Hermippus Μοῖραι fr. 47 K–A (see on ii 3), fr. 48.1f. K–A χλανίδες δ' οὐλαὶ καταβέβληνται, θώρακα δ' ἅπας ἐμπερονᾶται; descriptions of such preparations seem to have been a topos. On the whole, this scenario seems preferable to a description of a post-war period amidst the disappearance of symbols of war (i.e. in ii 8–10, cf. song and music associated with peace: Il. 18.493–5, Theogn. 773–82, Pi. P. 1.1 ff.).

Apart from three fragments certainly assigned to Sophocles' Ἐπίγονοι (F 188–90 Radt) and three hesitantly assigned fragments (F 185–7), Philodemus explicitly refers to its plot (De musica I 35.31–46 Rispoli = IV 20.1–27 Neubecker, from Diogenes of Babylon fr. 84f. SIF III 232.20 v. Arnim; Radt, TrGF IV p. 184, questions the exact meaning of the reference). The fragments of Accius' Epigoni, perhaps composed closely on the model of Sophocles' play (as a corrupt passage in Cicero's De opt. gen. or. suggests: §18), may contain further indications of the plot. Apart from these, several mythographic sources recount how Alcmaeon led the expedition of the Ἐπίγονοι against Thebes, that he murdered his mother Eriphyle before or after the campaign, avenging his father Amphiaraus, and refer to adventures he encountered later to purify himself from guilt and free himself from the Erinyes of his mother: see in particular Asclep. Tragil. FGrHist 12 F 29 (cf. Jacoby, FGrHist I 489), Diod. 4.66, Apollod. 3.80–95. However, none of these texts can be referred to the Sophoclean play with certainty.

There are treatments of the story by other dramatists (on which see Radt, TrGF IV 149, 184), and Sophocles himself used the myth in other plays, namely Ἐριφύλη and Ἀλκμέων. Several scholars have tried to reconstruct the argument of the Ἐπίγονοι from this material (F. G. Welcker, Griechische Tragödien i (1839) 269–78; O. Ribbeck, Römische Tragödie (1875) 487–96; O. Immisch, JbbClPh Suppl. 17 (1890) 180f.; Pearson i 129–33; A. Kiso, GRBS 18 (1977) 207–26 = The Lost Sophocles (1984) 20–50, 133–9; D. F. Sutton, The Lost Sophocles (1984) 37–42; on all of these, see the criticism of S. L. Radt, Gnomon 59 (1987) 351f.). One presupposition has been to treat Ἐπίγονοι and Ἐριφύλη as two titles of the same play, although without any positive evidence (for criticism cf. Radt, Entretiens Fondation Hardt 29 (1982) 188f. = H. Hofmann (ed.), Fragmenta dramatica (1991) 81f., and Sutton, Lost Sophocles 37). Or the Ἐριφύλη could have been an early play dealing with an earlier stage of the myth, i.e. the bribery of Amphiaraus and the corresponding instructions to his sons, as was suggested long ago by Jacobs (see Pearson i 132) and more recently by J. Schwarze, JÖAI 67 (1986–87) 54, on the basis of vase paintings. Even the trilogies Ἐπίγονοι – Ἐριφύλη – Ἀλκμέων or Ἐριφύλη – Ἐπίγονοι – Ἀλκμέων cannot be entirely excluded (cf. Lloyd-Jones, Sophocles iii (1996) 73).

Some points, however, can be reasonably assumed. The title (assuming that Ἐπίγονοι is in fact the correct title: see above) attests that the expedition of the Ἐπίγονοι against Thebes was one subject of the play. The chorus may have consisted of soldiers belonging to them (though this is not certain: citizens of Argos are also possible). If F 187, hesitantly assigned to Sophocles' Ἐπίγονοι, is from this play, the murder of Eriphyle as well as a dispute about it between Alcmaeon and Adrastus could have occurred. The fragments of Accius' Epigoni allow for a further scenario: fr. 1–II R³ seem to point to a quarrel between supporters and opponents of the expedition (Thersander and Alcmaeon?). Amphilocheus, brother of Alcmaeon, appeared on stage (fr. iv), as well as probably Demonassa, daughter of Eriphyle (fr.

xi). The murder of the mother was discussed (fr. vi). Perhaps Alcmaeon's expulsion from Argos after the murder was mentioned (fr. xvi, though corrupt).

4807 fits easily enough into what little is known of Ἐπίγονοι. If preparations for war are under discussion, one would certainly put the text near the beginning of the play, presumably before the parodos, or part of it (like the anapaests in the parodos of Ajax and, especially, Antigone?). If the text dealt with the beginning of peace, one might expect the anapaests to have stood at the end of the expedition against Thebes. Whether this stage of the action was not achieved until the end of the play, we do not know. The anapaests would even be possible at the end of the play if the murder of the mother happened in between. F 890 (= ii 9–10) and thus all of col. ii could come from a discussion between Alcmaeon and Eriphyle about bribery and the character of women in general.

In addition to Ar. Pl. 541 (στιβάδα χοίρων κόρων μεστήν, ἢ τοὺς εὐδοντας ἐγείρει), there are at least two other comic parodies of verses from Sophocles' Ἐπίγονοι. Like Ar. Pl. 541, both absurdly adapt the wording of S. F 890 (= ii 9–10), which might suggest that the scene, together with its unusual diction, was a memorable one. The first is from Aristophanes' Ὀλκάδες, a play περὶ εἰρήνης, datable to 423 BC (see Kassel–Austin, PCG III.2 226f.): it contained the anapaestic tetrameter (fr. 427 K–A) σπυρὶς οὐ μικρὰ καὶ κωρυκίς, ἢ καὶ τοὺς μάττοντας ἐγείρει. It follows that the play (presumably Ἐπίγονοι) contained in 4807 must have been produced before 423 BC. Second, in Eupolis' Ἀστράτευτοι (of uncertain date, but produced at a time when the playwright could poke fun at those who were thought too weak to participate in war; see Kassel–Austin, PCG V 314), someone said μή ποτε θρέψω παρὰ Περσεφόνῃ τοιόνδε ταῶν, ὅς τοὺς εὐδοντας ἐγείρει (fr. 41 K–A; see p. 318 on Pylampes as a possible speaker). Since both fragments derive from the lexicographical tradition, their original context is unknown. Nevertheless, they give further indication that the habit of the tragic poets of styling the sounds of the loom as 'songs' was subject to parody by the poets of Old Comedy. So Aristophanes lampooned Euripides' parallel expressions κερκίδος ἀοιδοῦ (Meleagros, F 528a K) and οὐ τάδε πῆνας, οὐ τάδε κερκίδος ἱστοτόνου παραμύθια Λήμνια (Hypsiphyle, F 752 f. 9f. K) in his parodic cento of Euripidean choral lyric (Frogs 1309–22 at 1315f.: ἱστότονα πηνίσματα, κερκίδος ἀοιδοῦ μελέτας). The three comic parodies of S. F 890 (= ii 9–10) described above, however, are different in that they all seem to poke fun at the banality of the words ἢ τοὺς εὐδοντας ἐγείρει and thus at Sophocles' characterization of the κερκίς as musical, in connection with being awakened in the morning (see note on ii 10).

Thanks are due to Professors Richard Kannicht, Sir Hugh Lloyd-Jones, Stefan Radt, and Alan Sommerstein for their suggestions and criticism, as well as to the German Academic Exchange Service for its award of a scholarship to Oxford.

col. ii [A.] '... For ... a sharp ... saw (?) ... gobbling ... of the whole ... sharpening the flashing iron.' — [?B.] 'And ... the helmets ... are shaking their purple-dyed crests, and for the wearers of breast-plates the weavers are striking up the wise shuttle's songs, that wakes up those who are asleep.' — [A.] 'And he is glueing together the chariot's rail (?) ... and the juncture (?), the fellow ...'

2-5 could contain one whole, or two separate main sentences; in the former case, we could also have a dependent clause followed by its main clause. 2 is a beginning (γὰρ), 3 βρυκου, a presumably a participle (see n.), so that the subject of the sentence should be feminine; 2 ὀξεία probably refers to it. The main verb of this sentence should then be in the singular and could not be 5 θήγους', which could be another participle in the nominative or a further main verb. One finite verb seems to stand at the beginning of 4, one subject somewhere in 2, perhaps in 3 πρίστις. The sense of the whole should be appropriate to 6ff., i.e. a description of the production (or disappearance?) of some weapon, and this seems to follow, too, from 5 θήγους' αἴθ[ω]να κίδηρον. (J. R. Rea suggests preparations to stand a siege in Thebes, with a Theban chorus hobnobbing with the enemy.) If 3 πρίστις is right and actually means 'saw' (as Lloyd-Jones suggests), the whole might give some description of the production of something (wooden components of a sword or spear? whetstones?) by saws and of sharpened swords by whetstones; e.g. δι]ὰ γὰρ στ[υπ]έων ὀξεία π[ρ]ί[στ]ις | πρίστις ῥ[ο]θίου βρύκουσα δ[ί]κην, | [ε]ὔ ρεῖ δ' ἀκ[ό]νης πάσης ἔρ[ρον] | θήγους' αἴθ[ω]να κίδηρον, 'for right through the stems the sharp saw passes, gobbling like the surge, and each whetstone's work is flowing well for those who are sharpening the flashing steel'.

2]α. Demanded by metre is - or ~-. If two letters are missing and one of them should be ι (see palaeographical notes), then δι]ά, ἴε]α, ἴν]α are possible.

στ[1-2].ων ὀξεία . . [. If δι]ά is read at the beginning of the line, we could have a noun in the genitive plural; one broad or two rather narrow letters are missing, resulting in one of the metrical word shapes ~- or -. While δι]ὰ γὰρ στ[έρ]ων suggests itself (cf. E. Trö. 156 [anap.] διὰ δὲ στέρνων φόβος αἴσεν; S. Ant. 639 οὐτως γὰρ, ὦ παῖ, χρὴ διὰ στέρνων ἔχειν with Jebb's note), it does not seem to suit the required sense. An adjective in the genitive is possible, combined with a substantive now lost in the break, e.g. $\epsilon\tau[\epsilon\rho]\xi\acute{\omega}\nu$ with $\lambda\acute{\iota}\theta\omega\nu$ or sim. at the end of the verse, which would give a plausible context if the production of whetstones were the subject of these lines (cf. Od. 19.494 $\epsilon\acute{\xi}\omega\ \delta'\ \acute{\omega}\varsigma\ \acute{\omicron}\tau\epsilon\ \tau\iota\varsigma\ \epsilon\tau\epsilon\rho\acute{\eta}\ \lambda\acute{\iota}\theta\omicron\varsigma\ \eta\acute{\epsilon}\ \epsilon\acute{\iota}\delta\eta\rho\omicron\varsigma$; 23.103 $\kappa\omicron\iota\ \delta'\ \alpha\iota\epsilon\acute{\iota}\ \kappa\rho\alpha\delta\acute{\iota}\eta\ \epsilon\tau\epsilon\rho\epsilon\omega\tau\acute{\epsilon}\rho\eta\ \acute{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\iota\ \lambda\acute{\iota}\theta\omicron\iota\omicron$). The feminine $\acute{\omicron}\xi\acute{\epsilon}\iota\alpha$ may yield a suitable context if it refers to $\pi\rho\acute{\iota}\epsilon\tau\iota\varsigma$: 'the sharp saw' or 'the piercingly sounding saw'. Although $\acute{\omicron}\xi\acute{\upsilon}\varsigma$ and its compounds are mainly used metaphorically by Sophocles (see Ellendt–Genthe, Lex. Soph. (1872) 530 s.v.), $\acute{\omicron}\xi\acute{\upsilon}\theta\eta\kappa\tau\omicron\varsigma$ seems to appear in Ant. 1301 (an admittedly corrupt verse). However, the other feminine cases of $\acute{\omicron}\xi\acute{\upsilon}\varsigma$ except the genitive plural cannot be excluded.

3 $\pi\rho\acute{\iota}\epsilon\tau\iota\varsigma$ (after which we should expect word-end) seems unavoidable (later a 'saw-fish': cf. D. W. Thompson, A Glossary of Greek Fishes (1947) 219) assuming a single word; if two, something like $\tau\rho\acute{\iota}\varsigma\ \tau\iota\varsigma$, $\tau\rho\acute{\iota}\varsigma\ \tau'\ \acute{\iota}\epsilon$ - (preferred by Radt), or even $\tau\rho\acute{\iota}\varsigma\ \tau'\ \acute{\epsilon}\iota\varsigma$ (read $\acute{\epsilon}\iota$ if a consonant followed) could be considered. Lloyd-Jones suggests that $\pi\rho\acute{\iota}\epsilon\tau\iota\varsigma$ must originally have meant a 'saw', not the saw-fish, and this indeed gives a suitable context for the whole passage; see further H. Blümner, Technologie und Terminologie ii (1879) 216f. on saws, Buck–Petersen, Reverse Index 574, on nomina agentis in $-\epsilon\tau\iota\varsigma$, and in particular Poll. 7.113 $\pi\rho\acute{\iota}\epsilon\tau\eta\varsigma\ \eta\ \kappa\alpha\lambda\omicron\upsilon\mu\acute{\epsilon}\nu\eta\ \rho\acute{\iota}\nu\eta$, Hsch. π 3295 $\pi\rho\acute{\iota}\epsilon\tau\eta\varsigma\ \rho\acute{\iota}\nu\eta$, $\pi\rho\acute{\iota}\omega\nu$ ($\pi\rho\acute{\iota}\epsilon\tau\iota\varsigma$ to be read in both cases?), Orib. 49.4.42; cf. further OC 584, where Sophocles has $\lambda\acute{\eta}\sigma\tau\iota\nu$ instead of $\lambda\acute{\eta}\theta\eta\nu$. Lines 2f. might, then, describe the working on wood to produce parts of weapons; cf. E. Teleplus F 724 K $\pi\rho\iota\sigma\tau\omicron\iota\epsilon\iota\ \lambda\omicron\gamma\chi\eta\varsigma\ \theta\acute{\epsilon}\lambda\gamma\epsilon\tau\alpha\iota\ \rho\acute{\iota}\nu\eta\mu\alpha\sigma\iota\nu$, Verg. Aen. 10.479 ferro praefixum robur acuto, S. Foltiny, Schwert, Dolch und Messer, in Archaeologia HomERICA E.2 (1980) 238–9. Saws were also used to produce whetstones needed for sharpening many kinds of metal blades: Lloyd-Jones cites e.g. Theophr. De lap. 5 $\gamma\lambda\upsilon\pi\tau\omicron\iota\ \gamma\acute{\alpha}\rho\ \acute{\epsilon}\nu\iota\omicron\iota$ (sc. $\lambda\acute{\iota}\theta\omicron\iota$) $\kappa\alpha\iota\ \tau\omicron\rho\nu\epsilon\upsilon\tau\omicron\iota\ \kappa\alpha\iota\ \pi\rho\iota\sigma\tau\omicron\iota\ \tau\acute{\omega}\nu\ \delta\acute{\epsilon}\ \omicron\upsilon\delta\acute{\epsilon}\ \acute{\omicron}\lambda\omega\varsigma\ \acute{\alpha}\pi\tau\epsilon\tau\alpha\iota\ \epsilon\acute{\iota}\delta\eta\rho\iota\omicron\nu$, $\acute{\epsilon}\nu\iota\omega\nu\ \delta\acute{\epsilon}\ \kappa\alpha\kappa\acute{\omega}\varsigma\ \kappa\alpha\iota\ \mu\acute{\omicron}\lambda\iota\varsigma$. . . 44 $\eta\ \mu\acute{\epsilon}\nu\ \acute{\alpha}\kappa\omicron\eta\ \kappa\alpha\tau\epsilon\sigma\theta\acute{\iota}\epsilon\iota\ \tau\omicron\nu\ \epsilon\acute{\iota}\delta\eta\rho\omicron\nu$, $\acute{\omicron}\ \delta\acute{\epsilon}\ \epsilon\acute{\iota}\delta\eta\rho\omicron\varsigma\ \tau\acute{\alpha}\upsilon\tau\eta\nu\ \mu\acute{\epsilon}\nu\ \delta\acute{\upsilon}\nu\alpha\tau\alpha\iota\ \delta\iota\alpha\iota\rho\epsilon\acute{\iota}\nu\ \kappa\alpha\iota\ \rho\acute{\upsilon}\theta\mu\acute{\iota}\zeta\epsilon\iota\nu$; cf. further Plin. NH 36.51 for the cutting of marble by saws and emery, with Blümner, Technologie und Terminologie iii (1884) 75–8; D. E. Eichholz, Theophrastus: De lapidibus (1965) 116f. In this case the production of whetstones would be another possible subject of the lines.

[0–1] $\iota\omicron\upsilon$ should belong to a word that ends in $-\iota\omicron\varsigma$ or $-\iota\omicron\nu$ and has a short syllable before that. The metre makes ψ impossible, so that (unless corrupt) θ should be the letter before $\iota\omicron\upsilon$ (see palaeographical notes). Assuming $\pi\rho\acute{\iota}\epsilon\tau\iota\varsigma$, one solution is $\rho\acute{\iota}[o]\theta\acute{\iota}\omicron\upsilon$. . . $\delta[\acute{\iota}\kappa\eta\nu$ 'like the surge': cf. A. Th. 85f. $\delta\acute{\iota}\kappa\alpha\nu\ \upsilon\delta\alpha\tau\omicron\varsigma$, Ag. 1181 $\kappa\acute{\upsilon}\mu\alpha\tau\omicron\varsigma\ \delta\acute{\iota}\kappa\eta\nu$, F 13.2 Sn–K $\delta\acute{\iota}\kappa\eta\nu\ \theta\upsilon\acute{\epsilon}\lambda\lambda\eta\varsigma$. Another possibility is that a ϵ has dropped out by haplography so that $\langle\epsilon\rangle\pi[\alpha]\theta\acute{\iota}\omicron\upsilon$ could be read, presumably an appropriate word for the blade of a saw cutting wood or stones. At the end of the line, something corresponding to the traces might, then, be $\beta\acute{\iota}\alpha$.

4 [] $\upsilon\rho\epsilon\iota$ seems to be the main verb, possibly $\epsilon[\upsilon]\rho\epsilon\iota$ 'draws', 'drags away', 'sweeps away' (by force; cf. S. Euryphylus F 210.39 R) or $\phi[\upsilon]\rho\epsilon\iota$ 'mingles together', 'confounds' (often in tragedy, e.g., A. Ag. 732, 949, E. Hec. 496, 958, though not attested for Sophocles). However, if $\rho\acute{\iota}[o]\theta\acute{\iota}\omicron\upsilon$ in 3 is correct, $\epsilon[\upsilon]\rho\acute{\epsilon}\iota$ 'is flowing well' would yield an appropriate continuation of the image; cf. Theogn. 639f. $\pi\omicron\lambda\lambda\acute{\alpha}\kappa\iota\ \pi\acute{\alpha}\rho\ \delta\acute{\omicron}\xi\alpha\nu\ \tau\epsilon\ \kappa\alpha\iota\ \acute{\epsilon}\lambda\pi\acute{\iota}\delta\alpha\ \gamma\acute{\iota}\nu\epsilon\tau\alpha\iota\ \epsilon\upsilon\ \rho\acute{\epsilon}\iota\nu\ \acute{\epsilon}\rho\gamma'\ \acute{\alpha}\nu\delta\rho\acute{\omega}\nu$, A. Pers. 601 $\acute{\omicron}\tau\alpha\nu\ \delta'\ \acute{\omicron}\ \delta\alpha\acute{\iota}\mu\omega\nu\ \acute{\epsilon}\upsilon\rho\omicron\eta$, Men. fr. 349.4f. K–A $\alpha\upsilon\tau\acute{\omicron}\mu\alpha\tau\alpha\ \gamma\acute{\alpha}\rho\ \tau\acute{\alpha}\ \pi\rho\acute{\alpha}\gamma\mu\alpha\tau'\ \acute{\epsilon}\pi\acute{\iota}\ \tau\acute{\omicron}\ \kappa\upsilon\mu\acute{\phi}\acute{\epsilon}\rho\omicron\nu\ \rho\acute{\epsilon}\iota\ \kappa\acute{\alpha}\nu\ \kappa\alpha\theta\epsilon\upsilon\delta\eta\varsigma\ \eta\ \pi\acute{\alpha}\lambda\iota\nu\ \tau\acute{\alpha}\nu\alpha\nu\tau\acute{\iota}\alpha$ (on Sol. 13.34 W, $\epsilon\upsilon\ \rho\acute{\epsilon}\iota\nu$, cf. West, IEG II² 148), Pl. Lg. 784b2, 740d6.

$\delta\alpha$. [.] $\nu\eta\varsigma\ \pi\acute{\alpha}\sigma\eta\varsigma$. . . [: $\delta'\ \acute{\alpha}\kappa[\acute{\omicron}]\nu\eta\varsigma$ 'the whetstone's' (Lloyd-Jones/West) suits the context better than, e.g., $\delta\alpha\pi[\acute{\alpha}]\nu\eta\varsigma$. For the postponement of $\delta\acute{\epsilon}$ if $\epsilon[\upsilon]\rho\acute{\epsilon}\iota$ is read, cf. Denniston, *GP*² 187f. The metrical shape of the lost line-end should be one of $\sim\sim$, $\sim\sim$, $\sim\sim\sim$. Perhaps the antecedent of $\acute{\alpha}\kappa[\acute{\omicron}]\nu\eta\varsigma\ \pi\acute{\alpha}\sigma\eta\varsigma$ and the subject of $\epsilon[\upsilon]\rho\acute{\epsilon}\iota$ is lost here, e.g. $\acute{\epsilon}\rho[\gamma]\omicron\nu$ (see previous note), which suits the traces well, but one may also consider, e.g., $\epsilon\pi[\omicron\upsilon\delta\eta]$ 'effort' (cf. LSJ s.v. $\epsilon\pi\omicron\upsilon\delta\eta$ II.1.a).

5 θήγους’. Following the line of reconstruction given above, this should be a participle, presumably in the dative and thus referring to people doing the metal work as a preparation for battle (e.g. ἔργ[ον] is read in the end of the preceding line; on Sophocles’ use of substantive participles without article and expressing either a general or both a generic and individual reference, see A. C. Moorhouse, The Syntax of Sophocles (1982) 258f.). Or the participle could be nominative, referring to something like στ[ουδῆ]. Another line of reconstruction could utilize it as a finite verb.

The epic phrase αἰθωνα εἰδηρον (cf. Il. 4.485, 7.473, 20.372, Od. 1.184) occurs in drama here, in Ai. 147 κτείνοντ’ αἰθωνι εἰδήρω, and in Ar. Pac. 1328 λήξαι τ’ αἰθωνα εἰδηρον. Evidence from ancient commentators on Sophocles’ fondness for Homeric elements is given and discussed by Radt in Hofmann (ed.), Fragmenta dramatica (1991) 89–92, 106–9 (= Entretiens Fondation Hardt 29 (1982) 198–202, 218–22). Lloyd-Jones compares Hermippus’ Μοῖραι fr. 47.5–7 K–A καγχχειριδίου δ’ ἀκόνη κκληρᾶ παραθηγομένης βρύχεις κοπίδος δηχθεῖς αἰθωνι Κλέωνι, on which cf. J. Schwarze, Die Beurteilung des Perikles durch die attische Komödie (ζήτηματα 51: 1971) 101–5. This fragment from a play produced in 430 BC could well be considered as a parody of ii 2–5 along the lines of the present reconstruction. Schwarze, op. cit. 104, however, takes it as a parody of epic. At any rate the parallel shows that sharpening of weapons by ἀκόναι before battle was not unusual.

5–6 Paragraphos marking speaker change? The function of the paragraphos in papyri containing dramatic texts is usually the marking of speaker change: *GMAW*² p. 8 with examples. It might be objected that both paragraphoi (the other between ii 10 and 11) follow the ends of anapaestic runs and that δέ (ii 6, 11) at the beginning of a dramatic part is unusual. Thus, one might conclude that the paragraphoi simply mark the end of an anapaestic run, similarly to their use in lyric texts where they regularly mark the end of stanzas. However, it is theoretically possible that each speaker gets exactly one anapaestic run. Anapaests (both recitative and melic) can be variably distributed between different speakers so that a speaker gets anapaests not closed by a paroemiac (cf. S. Ant. 929–43, Ph. 1445–51) or there is speaker change even within a μέτρον (cf. S. Tr. 974–1003). Furthermore, δέ picks up and continues what has been said in the previous sentence. This most usual function of the particle occurs even in tragic dialogue when close continuation is needed or a kind of answer is expressed: cf. S. Ant. 518, OT 372, 379, 1030, OC 331, 1443; in lyrics, A. Eum. 938, 956, 977; in anapaests, Sept. {1072} (cf. Denniston, *GP*² 162f., on ‘inceptive δέ’ 172f.). Furthermore, there are no other examples of a paragraphos marking the end of an anapaestic run in the few papyrus manuscripts that contain remains of at least two runs. On the contrary, where the line-beginnings of two consecutive runs are preserved, no paragraphoi are found apart from those marking speaker change: cf. P. Lond. Univ. Coll., ed. Milne, CR 49 (1935) 14 (E. Med. 1086–92 = Π⁸ Diggle; M–P³ 407), XLIV 3152 (E. Hipp. 225–59 = Π³ Diggle), and P. Mich. III 140 (S. OC 136–45; no paragraphoi at all, not even for speaker change, but parts of the chorus 136f., 140, 143 marked by εἴθεσις). On this basis, there does not seem to exist a sufficient reason to assign to the paragraphoi after ii 5 and 10 anything other than their usual function, namely the marking of speaker change. There is, however, no need to suppose that one of the speakers must be the chorus. This is frequently the case, but see Ant. 929–43, Tr. 974–1003 for anapaests distributed between actors.

6 αφανοι δὲ κυναῖ: αφανοι seems to be unique, although cf. a similar form in PMG III 502 (prayer to Helios, later than AD 300) γεννᾶς δ[ένδρο]ν ἐλάτην, λίθον ἄφανον, for which LSJ remark ‘dub. sens.’. Preisendanz–Henrichs interpret the word as a proper name and do not translate it (‘der Stein Aphanos’); Scarborough gives ‘invisible’ as its literal meaning (H. D. Betz (ed.), The Greek Magical Papyri in Translation (21992) 31 n. 96). Direct derivation from φαίνω seems awkward from a linguistic point of view. The regular negative adjectives are ἄφαντος and ἀφανής, as expected in verbs with a-vocalism and lacking the σ-Ablaut; cf., e.g., ἄναρκτος and ἀεφαλής (see P. Chantraine, La Formation des noms en grec ancien (21968) 12, 429; further L. Threatch, The Grammar of Attic Inscriptions ii (1996) 8, on adjective compounds with -αρχος). Thus, it seems more probable that ἄφανον in PMG III 502 is a derivation from φάνος 'shining', 'bright', i.e., from the contracted Attic form of φαεινός, than of the verb φαίνω. But this word has a long first syllable, which does not fit the metre of our text. So we are faced with the choice of either accepting that Sophocles may have created a probably unique and linguistically odd adjective with a privativum from φαίνω presumably meaning 'invisible' and having a short second syllable, or assuming that the papyrus text is corrupt. The scribe (or his copy) could easily have mistaken λ for ν, for instance. It is thus tempting to emend to ἄφαλοι (suitable for helmets, e.g. Il. 10.257f. κυνέην . . . ταυρείην, ἄφαλόν τε καὶ ἄλοφον), and this may be the most probable correction; on φάλοι, κυναῖ, and λόφοι see H. L. Lorimer, Homer and the Monuments (1950) 239–42, and J. Borchhardt, Homörische Helme (1972) 7, 10, 11, showing that helmets without φάλοι may still have λόφοι. φάλος, however, remains fairly obscure; perhaps either 'horns' of some sort (Lorimer), projecting 'bumps', or additional metal plates running around the helmet (cf. A. J. B. Wace, F. H. Stubbings, A Companion to Homer (1962) 514).

κ[1–2]κραν[. If κυναῖ is the subject of the whole sentence, one should expect a further qualification here, probably parallel to ἄφανοι (or whatever originally stood there). Lloyd-Jones suggests some hitherto unknown compound of κράνος 'helmet', but we might equally think of a compound belonging together with κράνιον 'head': e.g. κ[αῖ] κραν[οδοκοί 'and eagerly waiting', metri gratia for καραδοκός (cf. LSJ s.v. καραδοκέω) — though, speaking of helmets, it could also mean 'head-containing' — or κ[οῦ] κραν[οβαρεῖς 'and not weighing down the heads'; cf. A. Ag. 63 (anap.) πολλὰ παλαίεματα καὶ γυιοβαρῆ. Alternatively, κ[ᾶ]κρ' ἀν[έχουσαι 'and stretching upwards their peaks' (although a might be somewhat too narrow for the space); cf. Il. 6.470 δεινὸν ἀπ' ἀκροτάτης κόρυθος νέοντα, 13.614f. ἦτοι ὁ μὲν κόρυθος φάλον ἤλασεν ἵπποδασειῆς ἄκρον ὑπὸ λόφον αὐτόν, Lyc. Alex. 29.

7 φουεικοβαφεῖς . . . λόφους. φουεικοβαφής is a typically tragic, if not Sophoclean, coinage: cf. A. Eum. 1028 φουεικοβάπτοις ἐνδυτοῖς ἐσθήμασι, S. Ai. 219 χειροδαίικτα σφάγι' αἰμοβαφῆ (with Kamerbeek's note); in prose, e.g. Xen. Cyr. 6.4.1 λόφον ὑακινθινοβαφῆ, Philostr. Ep. 1.3 φουεικοβαφεῖς χιτῶνας (cf. 1.36), Heliod. Aeth. 3.3.5 φουεικοβαφῆ χλαμύδα (cf. 10.25.2), Ach. Tat. 8.13.1 ταινία φουεικοβαφής, etc. For σει[ο]ναι λόφους, cf. Alc. fr. 388 L–P λόφον τε σείων Κάρικον, A. Th. 384f. (Τυδεὺς) τρεις κατασκίους λόφους σείει κράνους χαιτώμα, S. F74.9 R (Hercules) τρεις δ' ἐπισείων λόφους, Ar. Pac. 1178 τοὺς λόφους σείων. κυνῆ and λόφος are connected in S. Ai. 1286f. εὐλόφου κυνῆς. The shaking of the crests was to cause fear and horror (Il. 16.138, Od. 22.124, Luc. Dial. deor. 19.1), but could also be an exotic image: see Hutchinson on A. Th. 384–6. It was parodied in Old Comedy, ridiculing men's addiction to war or their symbols of war: cf. Ar. Pac. 1178, Ach. 575, 965 (parody of A. Th. 384–6), but none of these can refer to our passage.

8–10 It is not unusual that weavers are responsible for producing armour for cuirassiers, since linen parts of the harness had been in use at least since Alcaeus' time (cf. fr. 357.7 L–P, with A. M. Snodgrass, Arms and Armour of the Greeks (1967) 90–92) and indeed were already known to the poet of the Iliad; see 2.529, 830 λινοθήρηξ with Lorimer, Homer and the Monuments 210f., and cf. Archaeologia Homerica E1 (1977) 76, 84.

8 θωρακοφόροι. Used of the Persian fleet at Hdt. 7.89–92, later it is found in Xen. Cyr. 5.3.36, 37, etc., though not in poetry. But cf. A. Ch. 627, E. Supp. 654 τευχεσφόρος; S. Ai. 19 σακεσφόρος; A. Sept. 19, Ag. 825, E. Supp. 390 ἀσπιδηφόρος; A. Pers. 56 μαχαιροφόρος; A. Ch. 769 δορυφόρος.

ύφαντή[ρες (Lloyd-Jones), although the word is not attested elsewhere as an alternative to ύφάντης. J. R. Rea observes that one expects weavers in poetry to be women. Thus, these may not be ordinary weavers, but rather producers of linen garments specifically for armoured fighters, such as are known from mediaeval times. On the tragedians' use of τηρ-compounds instead of τηγ-compounds, see Wilamowitz, BKT V 2 (1907) 65, on E. Telephus F727c.34 πεμπτήρα (also a ἄπαξ) and, in particular, E. Fraenkel, Geschichte der griechischen Nomina agentis auf -τήρ, -τωρ, -της (-τ-) ii (1912) 1–50.

9–10 From the agreement of VE Barb of schol. Ar. Pl. 541, the supplements ύ[μνονος at the end of 9 and ἐγείρ[ε]ι in the end of 10 are certain. In the middle of 10 the papyrus has τουσευδοξαντας, which must be divided into τοὺς εὐ δόξαντας, whereas the scholion (and the parodies of Ar. Pl. and Eupolis) provides τοὺς εὐδοντας. The latter reading is certainly preferable both on semantic and metrical grounds: there is no parallel for the obscure expression of the papyrus text, and it bridges the caesura κατὰ μέτρον in such a way that word-end comes not earlier than after the first short of the resolved first long. This is without any parallel and would have to be regarded as corrupt even if the papyrus text were the only witness (cf. G. Hermann, Elementa doctrinae metricae (1816) 374f.).

9 The κινουσο of the papyrus cannot be correct. The easiest emendation is κινούσαι, the double co being (as Professor Sommerstein suggests) an error of anticipation (writing the next syllable instead of the current one), facilitated by phonic and graphic similarity. For the 'stirring up' of songs see S. El. 17f. λαμπρὸν ἠλίου θέλας ἔῶα κινεῖ φθέγματ' ὀρνίθων καφῆ, E. Supp. 172 γεραιὰ κινούσαι μέλη.

σοφῆς κερκίδος, ὕμνου. The combination of the concepts of weaving and song is attested only in choral lyric: see Pi. N. 4.44, fr. 179, and Bacch. 5.9f. ὦν Χαρίτεσσι βαθυζώνοις ὑφάνας ὕμνον (sim. 19.8). In addition, Sophocles plays with the etymological relationship of ὑφαίνω and ὕμνος, an idea that probably had its origins in the fifth century and has been known so far only from the passages of Bacchylides quoted above. Such etymological word-play is typically Sophoclean: cf. A. A. Long, Language and Thought in Sophocles (1968) 154f., and the examples listed by Nestle, CPh 5 (1910) 135 n. 1. Describing the shuttle (or, by metonymy, the loom) and particularly its sounds, with expressions from the semantic field 'song'/'music' is a fairly popular poetical device. To characterize the sounds of the κερκίς and their effect, Euripides used ἄοιδός (Meleagros, F 528a K) and παραμύθια (Hypsipyle, F 752 f.9f.). Similarly, Antipater AP 6.47.1 called the shuttle φίλαοιδός; cf. 160.1f., 174.5f., Leonid. AP 6.288.4 κερκίδα τὰν ἰστών μολπάτιδα, etc., E. IT 222 ἰστοῖς ἐν καλλιφθόγγοις. Sophocles himself calls the garment produced by Philomela on the loom and replacing her lost voice a κερκίδος φωνή (Tereus, F 595; see introd.). Expressions such as ὕμνου and ἄοιδός can hardly refer to anything else than the sounds produced during the process of weaving (for an interesting suggestion on how the image of 'singing' might have originated from an analogy with the pitch of a plucked instrument, see Dover on Ar. Ran. 1315–16). So the speaker may well imply that the shuttle is called σοφή because it is a good, i.e. skilled singer; this seems to be supported by the fact that it is to the shuttle, rather than to its user, that σοφία is ascribed. At the same time, the poet's association of the shuttle with σοφία invokes the technical meaning of σοφός (in S. Ant. 364f. σοφόν τι τὸ μηχανόεν τέχνας ὑπὲρ ἑλπίδ' ἔχων, A. Supp. 769 κυβερνήτη σοφῶ, the seer's art Ant. 1059, OT 484, the doctor Ai. 581, the musician in S. F 906, where σοφιστής is used of a κιθαρωδός, cf. E. IT 1236, Pi. O. 1.8f., P. 10.22, G. W. Most, Measures of Praise (1985) 144f.). Accordingly, there may be an additional implication that the κερκίς is characterized as 'wise', because there is skill in (the) weaving (σοφία as useful knowledge: A. F 390 ὁ χρήσιμ' εἰδώς, οὐχ ὁ πόλλ' εἰδώς σοφός, E. Ion 598, F 490 K).

10 τοὺς εὐδοξάντας ἐγείρει. On Sophocles' use of participles with articles as substantives see Moorhouse, Syntax of Sophocles 257f. Note that these appear in the parodies of 9–10 (discussed above, introd.); see also e.g. OT 65 οὐχ ὕπνω γ' εὐδοντά μ' ἐξεγείρετε; E. El. 41 εὐδοντ' ἂν ἐξήγειρε; Od. 5.48 = 24.4 τοὺς δ' αὐτε καὶ ὕπνωνοντας ἐγείρει; Sol. 4.19 W. πόλεμόν θ' εὐδοντ' ἐπεγείρει; Call. fr. 682 Pf. τί δάκρυον εὐδον ἐγείρει; The participle could here denote people who are idle: cf. OC 306f. ᾧστε κεί βραδύς εὐδαι, κλύων σοῦ δεῦρ' ἀφίξεται ταχύς, and καθεύδω in A. Ag. 1357, E. Ph. 634 (see Jebb's and Kamerbeek's notes on S. OC 306f., and Collard on E. Suppl. 1147b–49), or people who sleep late and have the privilege or leisure to be awakened by people already working, weaving, etc. It is unclear whether there is some special need for the sleepers to be awake, under the circumstances, so that this phrase (and the preceding two lines) would describe what is happening, exceptionally, at present (in a critical situation, the linen-armourers are working night and day), or whether it just describes what normally happens (weavers typically start work very early in the morning).

11 κολλάω and its cognates are regularly used for the chariot; cf. Il. 4.366, 19.395, E. Hipp. 1225.

After ἄρματος, probably [ἄ]ν[τυ]γα 'rail': cf. Lorimer, Homer and the Monuments 326; Archaeologia Homerica F (1968) 15 f., 104. For the making of chariots, see Blümner, Technologie ii (1879) 324–6. At line-end perhaps τέκτων, the appropriate craftsman for a chariot (h. Ven. 12); cf. ἄρματοπηγός, Il. 4.485, etc.

12 If the caesura were regular, β]λήτρων θ' ἀψιδ' ἀθ[should be the most probable word separation (but ἀψίδα θ' is not to be excluded); i.e. βλήτρον seems to be connected to [ἄ]ν[τυ]γα by τε as a second object of κολλάει. The meaning of this rare word (translated above as 'juncture') is highly uncertain. In Il. 15.677 f. it is used of a device connecting several sections of Ajax' pike, presumably a kind of pin; cf. Janko ad loc. Hesychius connects it with the chariots' wheels, their parts, and the fastening of them and the axle (β 724): βλήτροισι τῆς ἀμάξης τροχοί, ἐφήνες, ἐμβλήματα, οἱ δὲ γόμφους καὶ συμβολὰς ἀξόνων (cf. schol. b (= BCE³) T Il. 15.678b βλήτροισι τοῖς συμβλήμασι καὶ συνεμπλοκαῖς; Apollon. Lex. 51.25 f.). Since Sophocles uses the word in the singular, it evidently cannot mean the wheels here, but must describe either a component to be attached to the chassis of the chariot (like the ἄντυξ) or a tool to be used to fasten something. Thus there seem to be three possibilities for the reference, all of which can be illustrated by chariots depicted on archaic and classical vase paintings. (i) Breastwork, similar to wickerwork; cf. Arezzo 1460 (J. D. Beazley, Attic Red-Figure Vase-Painters (1942) 791), London Br. Mus. E 224 (Beazley, op. cit. 831). (ii) A leather strap used for connecting chassis and axle; cf. Rome Villa Giulia 2491 (Beazley, Etruscan Vase Painting (1947) 7, 80–84 with pl. xx.1). (iii) Strut bridging the distance between the rail and the chassis; cf. already the 'François' vase (Florence Arch. Mus. 4209; Beazley, Attic Black-Figure Vase-Painters (1956) 76 no. 1). The singular and the verb κολλάω might exclude the strap; the probable connection with the ἄντυξ could suggest the strut.

Thus we cannot tell for certain whether ἀψιδ stands for the whole wheel or only its outer part, i.e. the felloe; see in general West on Hes. Op. 426. Since the speaker describes a chariot and not a cart as Hesiod does, one might rather think here of the rim of the wheel. The next word beginning with ἀθ[might, then, have been ἄθ[ραυστ]ον presumably meaning here 'without breaking it': cf. schol. BDEGQ Pi. P. 5.64 ἄθραυστον καὶ ὑγιᾶ τὸν δίφρον ἤγαγε; S. El. 745 ἔθραυσε δ' ἄξονος μέεας χνόας; A. Pers. 196 καὶ ζυγὸν θραύει μέεων; E. Supp. 691 τῶν δὲ θραυσθέντων δίφρων; [E.] Rh. 118 μὴ θραύσαντες ἀντύγων χνόας.

13]ιππ[. We might have ἰππ[, or alternatively a compound in -ιππο-, in either case appropriate to the mention of parts of the chariot in 11–12 (here with a verb for yoking?), if the paragraphoi are any indication of grouping of verses, or to a continuation from 10 of the description of preparations for battle.

4808. ON HELLENISTIC HISTORIANS

100/113(a)

10 × 34.5 cm

Late first/second century
Plate IV

Parts of two columns to full height, written along the fibres (the back is blank). Upper margin preserved to 5 cm, lower to 6.4 cm (a ratio of approximately 4:5; see W. A. Johnson, Bookrolls and Scribes in Oxyrhynchus (2004) 132); intercolumnium c. 2 cm. Column ii had 35 lines, with a written height of 23.3 cm; lines of 18–21 letters (to judge from the certain supplements in col. i), with a width of c. 7–7.5 cm. This column-height is not unexpected, especially for a prose text and an ‘informal’ hand (Johnson, op. cit. 120–25); the column-width too corresponds to the expected range for ‘informal’ hands (ibid. 101–4). The depths of the upper and lower margins make the roll unusually tall (ibid. 141–3).

The hand certainly can be classified as ‘informal’. It is round and approximately but only approximately bilinear; the upright of φ projects well above and below (whereas ϣ is curtailed), the upright of ρ a little below. The basic forms are circular and square. The feet of uprights often carry a half-serif to the left, horizontal or angled upwards. α in the sharp-nosed form (the two left-hand obliques in one movement, sometimes with a small loop at the nose). ε often has the cap in a separate movement. η and π have the right upright strongly curved. κ sometimes has its arms join to the right of the upright. μ splayed, in two movements? ζ in the capital form, three parallels of which the second shorter. γ with its top as a separate, sometimes lop-sided, cup. The informal look is reinforced by ligaturing (some horizontals reach out to touch the following letter), and by an inconsistency especially in the size of individual letters. The line-ends too are irregular, but the scribe has done something to even them by squashing letters (i 4, 22, 31) or adding horizontal strokes as line-fillers (clear in i 2, 7).

Dated examples of this manner are: GLH 10c (AD 66), 11a (documentary verso with a date of AD 100/1), 14 (Paeans), second hand (mid-ii?). This is a reasonably svelte example, though not nearly so well written as LXVIII 4640. We should assign it to the late first century or more likely the earlier second century. However, this is a manner that covers centuries (cf *GMAW*² 55–6), whether or not one regards the serifs as of major importance.

The copyist marks a new section by blank line-end (i 17) and forked paragraphos with ε̅κθ̅ε̅ι̅ι̅ (ii 20–21). He punctuates by high stop (i 11, 24, 28), written above the line (but by the first hand?); in col. ii the stop takes the form of a short oblique (28), an angle like a modern circumflex (31), and possibly a high comma (13) — all without paragraphos. No accents are to be seen, and only one breathing (i 23 ο̅ι̅); elision goes unmarked i 7, 12 (scriptio plena ii 9); diaeresis on initial iota i 10 and 34. Iota adscript written i 7 (by corrector), ii 4; omitted i 3, ii 10?, 12. The visible corrections (i 7, ii 33) could be by the original hand.

This unknown prose-work deals summarily with a series of Hellenistic historians. It seems to be composed in sections, marked by paragraphing (blank line-end i 17; paragraphos and ἐκθεσις ii 21); to judge from ii 21 the new section began in asyndeton. At least three sections are preserved. (a) i 1–17 handle Onesicritus (1–2), Chares (2–9), and Clitarchus (9–17). These wrote histories of Alexander. (b) i 18 ff. concern Hieronymus of Cardia, and probably he is the subject of the whole passage to ii 20. His history began with the death of Alexander, and went down at least to the death of Pyrrhus (272 BC). (c) ii 21 begins a section on Polybius, which probably continued down to the foot of the column and beyond. His history began from 220 BC. Broadly speaking, this structure corresponds to the conventional distinction between Alexander, his diadochoi, and their epigonoï; and the historians in each section, with the possible exception of Clitarchus, had played some part in the events they described, a point on which the author lays great weight (i 21–4, ii 4 ff.?, ii 23).

What kind of work was this? It might be a simple catalogue (though more than a simple list) of historians, with summary comment; it might in theory form part of a larger historical work, either as a prefatory list and evaluation of sources or as a justification for rewriting the history of the period. For the latter, compare for example Dionysius of Halicarnassus, Ant. Rom. 1.5.4. The former seems to us much more plausible: the rough-and-ready style strongly suggests a handbook. Yet, if this was a handbook, what else did it contain? Individual authors get pretty short shrift; even if it began with Herodotus (or Hellanicus), the historians will hardly have filled a roll. Perhaps this was a chrestomathy of the sort exemplified by X 1241, which includes the list of Alexandrian librarians. Perhaps it was an elementary guide to Greek literature in general, a list of classic works with summary judgments (of the kind that Quintilian constructed, much more elegantly, as a reading-list for orators, IO 10.1.46 ff.). Perhaps, on the other hand, what we have here is not a book, but an individual's short notes on Hellenistic historiography. That the author came from Egypt could be argued from the unmediated reference to the katalogeion and to Philopator tout court (i 13, 16).

Quintilian's list has partial parallels in the Greek tradition: Professor D. A. Russell refers us to Dion. Hal. περὶ μιμήσεως 3 (Opusc. II pp. 207–10 Usener–Radermacher) and πρὸς Πομπήιον Γεμίνον 3 ff. (II 232 ff. UR); Hermog. περὶ ἰδεῶν λόγου 2. These lists recognize the same canon: Herodotus, Thucydides, Xenophon, Philistus, Theopompus. Like Quintilian, their authors are interested in style. Unlike Quintilian, they cut short in the fourth century BC. Quintilian adds Clitarchus; but where our papyrus continues with Hieronymus and Polybius, he leaves a significant gap until (in his view) historiography revives with Timagenes. Occasionally they refer also to reliability (Quint. IO 10.1.74). None of them contains the sort of biographical information that our papyrus attaches to Hieronymus and Polybius. On the canon in general, see R. Nicolai, La storiografia nell'educazione antica (Pisa 1992) 250 ff.

The text conveys some new information: about Chares' treatment of Parmenio (i 8–9), about the career and date of Clitarchus (13–17), about the early career and age of Hieronymus (ii 3–8, 14–15). The question of genre may affect our estimate of the work's reliability (the list of librarians in 1241 contains at least two mistakes of chronology). At the same time, its author asserts standards of judgment that Polybius himself would have endorsed: only sober truth (i 4–11) and personal experience (i 21, ii 23–7) make a historian useful (i 19?, 32, ii 19?) to his reader.

At an earlier stage this text was transcribed and discussed by all three named editors; the redaction printed here has been made by Parsons, who takes responsibility for any mistakes. He owes a special debt to Dr R. A. Coles, who checked the transcriptions in detail and removed several false readings.

‘[ONESICRITUS] . . . who had been a pupil of Diogenes the Cynic. CHARES, in addition to the fact that he himself also told many lies, for very many things are narrated in an [even] stranger way, shows malice; for example, you catch him blackening Parmenio and his friends. CLITARCHUS himself also wrote his history in a boastful vein, but he is faultless in his composition. He also became [head of the katalogeion?], as Philippus says, and [dies after becoming?] tutor of Philopator.

‘HIERONYMUS who wrote about the Diadochi was a . . . historian and a gentleman (?). . . experienced . . . since indeed he wrote about those things that he followed closely: . . . mediator . . . he offered himself (?). . . writing . . . in favour . . . , and if he did not take pleasure in speeches, [something which is alien to] true history (?) and [any kind of] utility . . . [he would not be inferior] to any other historians . . . (col. ii 14) . . . he lived over ninety years, [presenting] an example of sobriety . . . From all of which [it will be clear] that he was a [useful?] historian and a good man.

‘POLYBIUS, from the . . . order, himself took part in affairs and went on campaign with [Scipio] and was an eye-witness of most things and wrote them up truthfully. And he was more knowledgeable in . . . and especially in politics . . . knowledgeability . . .’

Col. i

We cannot explain the traces in the top margin (all but the last on vertical fibres, as Dr Coles observes): too long and too far left to be a column-number.

1–2 Onesicritus (FGrH 134; for his relation with Diogenes see T 1–3, 5). The note on him began in the preceding column. Whom else did that contain? There was a long list to choose from: see for example Plut. Alex. 46. The repeated καί (3, 10) shows that Onesicritus, Chares, and Clitarchus were linked as dishonest to some degree. Our writer may have put all his Alexander-historians in the same boat (Strabo 15.1.28 πάντες . . . τὸ θαυμαστὸν ἀντὶ τοῦ ἀληθοῦς ἀπεδέχοντο μᾶλλον), or chosen some as more reliable, as Arrian chose Ptolemy and Aristobulus (Anab. prol.), before listing the unreliable.

2–9 Chares (FGrH 125).

4 ἀπειψεύσθαι: a very rare verb (in a similar sense Jos. Bj 4.146, where however Dindorf emended ἀπ- to ἐπ-), but we do not see how else to divide the letters. The initial traces certainly seem best suited to the long sloping back of α; but there is unexplained ink above, which might be the remains of a suprascript or overwritten correction.

5 . . .]. If the general shape of the sentence is rightly reconstructed, and since the space is too short for e.g. φιλο]ξενικώτερον or εἰς τὸ] ξενικώτερον, we should fill the gap with a short independent word: (a) οὖν would emphasize γάρ; see Denniston, *GP*² 447 (2); (b) καί or ἔτι would emphasize ξενικώτερον.

ξενικώτερον: so e.g. schol. Eur. Rhes. 36, p. 329.7–8 Schwartz [= Mnaseas fr. 22 Cappelletto] Μνασείας δὲ ξενικώτερον ἀφηγείται τὰ περὶ Πάνα.

5–6 ἀφήγη[ται] suits the space better than [-κατο]. Middle or passive?

6 κακοηθίαν: Arist. Rhet. 1385b20 τὸ ἐπὶ τὸ χεῖρον ὑπολαμβάνειν ἅπαντα.

7 οἷον ‘as for example’: or ὅσον ‘to the extent that’? The latter a little longer. There is a general problem about the space at line-beginnings. These supplements would be more or less in line with the certain supplement in 2. Yet other apparently certain supplements project one letter further to the left (8) or even two letters further (9, 11, 12). This could be explained if the column had a very sharp batter (much sharper than col. ii); but in that case the reverse difficulty touches plausible supplements in the lower half of the column. Perhaps it all arises from the inconsistency of the copyist; in col. ii some lines have their initial letter substantially enlarged, others do not.

ἐπ' αὐτῆι φωρᾶι: the first hand wrote επαυτοφώρα (by mistake for ἐπ' αὐτοφώρωι), then crossed out ο and wrote ηι above, then added ι after the final α. (The correction might be due to a second hand, but the ink and pen-thickness look very like the original scribe's.) Pollux 8.69 records ἐπ' αὐτῆι τῆι φωρᾶι; DL 1.96 has ἐπὶ τῆι φωρᾶι in a slightly different sense. Perhaps we should correct the papyrus text to ἐπ' αὐτῆι <τῆι> φωρᾶι. But note Hcsych. α 8484 αὐτοφωρία· τὸ ἐπὶ αὐτῆι φωρᾶ (-φορ- bis MS, corr. H. Stephanus).

8 Παρμενίωνα: this detail seems to be new, for Chares; it has been argued that Callisthenes shows the same hostility.

9–17 Clitarchus (FGrH 137). For 9–12 cf. T 6 = Quint. IO 10.1.74 probatur ingenium, fides infamatur.

9–10 κομπω[δῶς] suits the space better than -[δη].

12 διάθε[ει]ν. For the meaning, 'composition' or 'disposition', the presentation of the material as against the material itself, see e.g. Polyb. 2.61.1; 34.4.1.

13ff. There is a chronological problem here. Clitarchus is normally dated to the late fourth century; and certainly in this papyrus he shares a section with Onesicritus and Chares, both of whom took part in Alexander's campaigns. What then had he to do with Philopator (16), if that refers to Ptolemy IV, who was born c.244 and ruled 221–204 BC?

13–14 Assuming that διάθε[ει]ν is complete in line 12, 13 begins a new word and probably a new sentence. Consider therefore γέγρονε[ν] δὲ καὶ ἐπὶ τοῦ κ[, where γέγρονε[ν] fits better than ἐγ'ένε[το], both for the initial space and for the first trace. As continuation ἐπὶ τοῦ κ[α|ταλ]ογεί[ου] seems palaeographically plausible. In Egypt, at least, the word denotes a record office; the katalogeion in Alexandria appears frequently in documents of the Roman period, when it served also as the office of the archidikastes. Mentions in Ptolemaic documents are rare; see P. Heid. IX 429 introd. Clitarchus was an Alexandrian (T 12, assuming that the text of Philodemus is correctly read): was he then head of the Alexandrian record-office?

14–15 Φ[ίλιπ]πο[ς]. Philip of Megara is quoted (T 3) for the information that Clitarchus was a pupil of Stilpo. The problem returns: if this Clitarchus is the historian, and if Stilpo is connected with Ptolemy I, how did the historian live long enough to be involved with Ptolemy IV?

15 διδάσκαλος. On the face of it, Clitarchus is stated to have been 'teacher' of (the future) Ptolemy IV Philopator: i.e. not earlier than c.234 BC, if Ptolemy was born c.244. The same word recurs in X 1241 ii (see FGrH 241 T 7), the list of Alexandrian librarians, which states that Apollonius Rhodius was 'teacher' of the first [normally emended to 'third'] Ptolemy, Aristarchus of Philopator's children [sometimes emended to Philometor or Epiphanes]. No such note is attached to Eratosthenes, which goes against the assumption that it was he who acted as 'teacher' to the future Philopator (see P. M. Fraser, Ptolemaic Alexandria (1972) ii 477 n. 127).

15–17 Perhaps καὶ διδάσκαλος [γεγο]νώς] τοῦ [Φ]ιλοπάτορος τε[λε]υτ[ῆ]ς. (The cap of final ε in διδάσκαλος is double; we have assumed that this is a redrawing by the scribe, not a leftward extension from the next letter.) The final verb, in the present tense, recurs constantly in the potted biographies of the Suda. However, even if this represents the original sense, [γεγο]νώς] makes a bad supplement, since γεγο would have to be written very small to fit the space (compare 31]θουε, but there the rules would not allow the four-letter group to be divided over the line-end).

To sum up: this passage could be reconstructed to provide two new pieces of information about Clitarchus: that he headed the katalogeion (in Alexandria), and that he taught Ptolemy Philopator. His death therefore fell after c.234 BC; if he lived to be eighty, this puts his birth c.310 BC; if this is so, he cannot have been a contemporary witness to the campaigns of Alexander. This runs directly counter to the dating found in most handbooks; it would allow Tarn's conclusion that Clitarchus was writing c.287–260 (W. W. Tarn, Alexander the Great (1948) ii 1–133). For a review of the (scanty) evidence and the scholarly argument, see Fraser, Ptolemaic Alexandria ii 717 n. 3, and most recently L. Prandi, Fortuna e realtà nell'opera di Clitarco (Historia Einzelschrift 104: 1996).

18 – ii 20 Hieronymus of Cardia (FGrH 154; Jane Hornblower, Hieronymus of Cardia (1981)). What can be seen of the details suggests that he occupied the whole text down to ii 20.

18–19 ὁ περὶ διαδόχου[ε] γράψ[ε]σθαι. T 3 = Diod. 18.42.1 ὁ τὰς τῶν Διαδόχων ἱστορίας γεγραφώς. One might expect the article with διαδόχους; but if we replace περὶ with τοῦς, it seems that we must find a different verb in 19.

19–22 We had thought of κ[αὶ ὠφ]έλμιος συν[γραφεὺς καὶ ἀν]ήρ καλὸς | [κἀγαθ]ὸς [καὶ] ἔμπρακτος | [ἐγέν]ετο. But (i) ὠφ]έλμιος, though plausible in itself (i 32; cf. ii 17–19 note), does not properly suit the traces, which more suggest]μιμος; νό]μιμος could be considered, cf. Diod. 5.2.4 οἱ νομιμώτατοι τῶν συγγραφέων, but looks a letter short. (ii) We are not sure how to accommodate the first faint traces in 20 to the proposed reconstruction. 21 could refer to Hieronymus' military experience (T 2); cf. Diod. 13.102.1 τὰ περὶ τὸν πόλεμον (30.3.1 ἐν τοῖς πολέμοις) ἔμπρακτος.

23 εχ[. . .] : first letter overwritten, apparently ε rather than ε; the scribe probably began to write χ (skipping the second of two consecutive sigmas), then corrected himself. Doubtfully we suggest εχ[εδό]ν; cf. Jos. BJ 1.327 ἠκολούθει εχεδόν: 'which he followed closely'? or 'which as a general rule he followed'?

24–6 κ[αὶ ἐ]αυτ[ὸν] διαιτητῆν [. . .] | [. . .] π[α]ρέσχευ? or π[α]ρέσχευ αὐτ[ὸν]? Then . . . πρὸς χάριν ἱστ[ορί]αν συγ[ρά]ψας? For accusations of bias, see Paus. 1.9.8 (= F 9) ἔχει μὲν καὶ ἄλλως δόξαν πρὸς ἀπέχθειαν γράψαι τῶν βασιλέων πλὴν Ἀντιγόνου, τούτω δὲ οὐδὲν δικαίως χαρίζεσθαι, 1.13.9 (= F 15) ἀνδρὶ γὰρ βασιλεῖ συνόντα ἀνάγκη πᾶσα ἐς χάριν συγγράφειν . . . ἢ που πολλή γε Ἰερωνύμω συγγνώμη τὰ ἐς ἡδονὴν Ἀντιγόνου γράφειν (where 'Antigonos' is clearly Gonatas).

28–34 Cf. Diod. 20.1.1 τοῖς εἰς τὰς ἱστορίας ὑπερμήκεις δημηγορίας παρεμβάλλουσιν ἢ πυκναῖς χρωμένους ῥητορείαις δικαίως ἂν τις ἐπιτιμήσειεν. On this basis we could reconstruct something on the lines of καὶ εἰ μὴ ²⁹[πυκναῖ]ς ῥητορείαις ἢδε³⁰[το, τὰδε] μὲν γὰρ ἀ[λλό]σ³¹τρι]α ἱστορία[ε] ἀλη]θοῦς³²[ώς] καὶ ὠφελίας [ὄλ]ης | ³³[ἐστ]ίν, οὐδενὸς λ[ε]ί³⁴[ποιτ' ἄ]ν ἱστορικῶν. However, even if this convoluted structure catches the sense, the actual wording must be modified: ἀ[λλό]σ³¹τρι]α is too short and does not take account of the final traces in 30.

35] . υν: either ε or ο. The papyrus breaks off below this line, which stands a little lower than line 34 of col. ii; there may have been one more line, ranging just below line 35 of col. ii.

Col. ii

The line-length can be established approximately from the plausible supplements in 14, 19, 23, 30. However, col. i is a warning that shorter lines (with filler-stroke) and longer (with last letters written smaller) are always possible.

1 ff. seem to contain a history of Hieronymus' career. He served his 'friend and countryman' Eumenes (T 4), and undertook an embassy from him to Antigonos I (Monophthalmus) (F 2); then Antigonos I (T 5), then Demetrius Poliorketes (T 8), then Antigonos II (Gonatas) (T 11).

3–5 The first stage of his career related to Alexander (the Great)? There is no direct reference to this in the testimonia. Perhaps he was there already with Eumenes; but line 5 might suggest that the stage before Antigonos I began when he was 25, whereas the Alexander episode preceded that.

A possible outline: i 35 - - - συνε[γέν]ετο - - - (ii 2) εαυ[τόν] - - - πρῶτα μὲν [Ἀλεξάνδρῳ, Κλει]τῶι γὰρ συν[ῆ]ν τῶι ἀδελφῶι Ἀ[λεξάνδρῳ], [εβ πέν]τε καὶ εἴκοσι [γενόμενος ἐ]π[ὶ] τῶν παρ' Ε[ὐμένει] . . . Note that i 35 may not be the last line of the column. From 9 and 11 one could guess that the list of monarchs served (in the dative, 10?, 12) was articulated by εἶτα or εἶτα δέ.

13] . α . : the first trace is a dot at line-level; then a high horizontal suitable to ρ or τ. The last letter consists of an upright stroke followed closely by a small right-hand arc in the upper part of the line. (i) We have considered taking the small arc as an anomalous stop (this scribe writes stops as extended strokes, see ii 28, even as a rudimentary circumflex, see ii 31, but nothing like this elsewhere), with ι before it. In that case we could consider (12–13) τῶι [λεγόμενωι Γο]||γ[α]τῶι, or τῶι [δευτέρωι τε]||λ[ευ]τῶι. However, neither γ nor λ really suits the trace, and [ευ] looks too long for the space. (ii) Therefore the upright and the arc should be taken together as ρ. That suggests] γάρ, with one or at most two letters preceding; ἀτάρ seems stylistically unlikely.

14–16 T 2 = [Lucian], Macrobi. 22 ἔζησεν ἔτη τέσσερα καὶ ἑκατόν, ὡς Ἀγαθαρχίδης . . . λέγει [= FGrH 86 F 4]. καὶ θαυμάζει γε τὸν ἄνδρα ὡς μέχρι τῆς τελευταίας ἡμέρας ἄρτιον ὄντα ἐν ταῖς κυνοσίαις καὶ πᾶσι τοῖς αἰσθητηρίοις, μηδεὶν γενόμενον τῶν πρὸς ὑγίειαν ἐλλιπῆ. The same section of [Lucian] states that the historian Aristobulus (= FGrH 139 T 3) ὑπὲρ τὰ ἐνεήκοντα ἔτη λέγεται βεβιωκέναι. Line 14 as restored is of approximately the expected length, though it might accommodate (say) 1–3 more letters if squeezed; there would hardly be room for τέσσερα.

15–16 Dem. 19.251 παράδειγμα σωφροσύνης; Aristides εἰς βασιλέα p. 63.22 Jebb παράδειγμα σωφροσύνης εαυτὸν παρασχών; Plu. Ag. et Cleom. 34.1 παράδειγμα σωφροσύνης ἐν μέσῳ θέμενος. If 17 is rightly taken to begin a new clause, restore e.g. [πᾶσιν παραδει]||γμα σωφροσύ[νης παρέχων?

17–19 E.g. ἐξ ὧν πάντων[ν πᾶσι καταφα]||νές, ὡς τῶ [ὄλω ἐστὶν ὠφέλι]||μος . . .

21 ff. Polybius.

21–2 τῶ[ν ἐκ τοῦ ἱπ[πικ]οῦ τάγματ[ο]ς? Greek authors use the phrase to identify Roman equestrians (Jos. AJ 18 p; Herodian 7.10.7). Polybius had indeed been ἱππαρχος of the Achaean League (28.6.9). But a tracing suggests that this would make 21 substantially too short. τῶ[ν ἐκ τοῦ βουλευ[τικ]οῦ τάγματ[ο]ς would fit better, if sense could be made of it. If then 23 continues καὶ αὐτὸς, what occupied the ε.6–7 letters remaining in 22?

23–7 Polyb. 3.4.13 διὰ τὸ τῶν πλείστων μὴ μόνον αὐτόπτης ἀλλ' ὧν μὲν συνεργὸς ὧν δὲ καὶ χειριστῆς γεγονέναι. In 25–6 our author seems to quote the words in boldface.

4809. ON HELLENISTIC MONARCHS

88/164(a)

15.5 × 17.5 cm

Third century
Plate V

Parts of three columns, written in a sharp right-sloping hand of the Severe Style to be compared e.g. with *GMAW*² 50 or Schubart, Pal. Abb. 97, and assigned to the third century (note the deep boxy c and the like). The letters are well-spaced, but can be written much smaller and closer when necessary at line-end (ii 16). Running down the line-ends of col. i is a ragged kollesis. In the same position there is a shallow vertical groove, and a similar groove marks the line-beginnings (and probably ends) of col. ii and the line-beginnings of col. iii. This might be the sort of ruling with a hard point that is familiar from medieval MSS; we have examples among early vellum codices from Egypt (*GMW*² p. 4 n. 6) but I know no other instance on papyrus, where even the use of guide-dots is rather rare (W. A. Johnson, Bookrolls and Scribes in Oxyrhynchus (2004) 93–9). LX 4034, a papyrus roll of Aeschines assigned to the second or third century, seems to have horizontal guide-lines ruled in ink.

Upper and lower margins lost; intercolumnium of *c.*1.5 cm. The column held at least 37 lines, to a height of at least 17.5 cm; width *c.*5.5 cm. I see no way of deciding the original column-height; heights of 26 and even 28 cm are attested (Johnson 124–5). The back is blank and muddy.

No lectional signs, except diaeresis in ii 2 (initial iota); not written apparently in ii 10–11 -υ]ικα, ii 10-, or 14 δυ (at 16 ιδ the fibres are stripped above, so that any diaeresis would be lost). Overlining at the end of ii 17 was perhaps intended to represent final υ. A possible blank in i 20 may indicate the end of a sentence (and a section?); but in ii 16 sentence-end is not marked even by paragraphos. Elision not in evidence; scriptio plena iii 13? Iota adscript written correctly in ii 24. Itacistic spelling in ii 16 ημεν.

It emerges from ii 16 ff. that the writer has given an account of the epigonoι, i.e. the descendants of Alexander's successors; it is not clear whether the diadochoι were themselves included. He has dealt only with 'those who were thought worthy of kingship'. He proposes now to turn to the kings of Pergamum. What precedes concerns Cleopatra vii (i 2 ff.) and the family of Juba ii of Mauretania (ii 1 ff.); presumably Juba came in at the end of a Ptolemaic section, since he married Cleopatra Selene, daughter of Cleopatra vii and Mark Antony, and duly named his son and successor Ptolemy. By accident or not, the text surviving in cols. i–ii concerns itself with the literary productions of the monarchs, with some emphasis on the question of their authenticity (i 2 ff.; ii 13–16). The Pergamene section, however, may have begun with a historical narrative, if col. iii is rightly interpreted.

Various historians wrote about the diadochoι and epigonoι and about Pergamum (FGrH 154 ff.; 505 ff.). Given the emphasis on kingship, one could think of Timagenes' Βασιλείς (FGrH 88 F1). Only one quoted fragment attests the title; other fragments normally ascribed to the same work mention Ptolemy i (F3) and Ptolemy xii, Cleopatra's father (F9). Timagenes was an Alexandrian, captured by Gabinius in 55 BC; at Rome he lived to chronicle the deeds of Augustus, and grew old in the house of Asinius Pollio (who died in AD 4). Could he be our author? Certainly he was a prolific and well-read writer (T1, 7), praised by Quintilian (T6) and assumed by modern scholars to have been widely used by other historians. The difficulty lies in the chronology. Our author knows works by Juba (ii), who reigned from 25 BC to c. AD 23, and perhaps by a Ptolemy who may be Juba's son and successor. Timagenes could have read a book by Ptolemy; if he enjoyed a long old age and Ptolemy a precocious literacy; but it is rather a stretch, if Ptolemy was born

c.20 BC, as is commonly assumed, and highly unlikely, if Ptolemy was born c.5 BC, as others argue from numismatic evidence.

I am most grateful to Dr R. A. Coles for checking and correcting my transcript, and in particular for making the certain join between the main fragment and a smaller piece that provides the ends of col. ii 15–18 and the whole of col. iii.

But for us, now that we have completed the progeny of Alexander's successors, or at least of those who were thought worthy of kingship, it is fitting to append an account of those who were kings at Pergamum and (?) derived (?) from [Philetaerus?] . . . '

Col. i

Lines 13–16, which can be plausibly restored, contain 12–15 letters.

11–12 What keyed the explanation in 12 ff.? Other works of Cleopatra judged to be genuine? Other Ptolemies whose works were genuinely theirs?

12–15 On the books ascribed to Cleopatra vii, see H. Usener, RM 28 (1873) 412–13 (= kl. Schr. iii 31 ff.); P. M. Fraser, Ptolemaic Alexandria ii (1972) 548 n. 306. Galen de comp. med. several times quotes a Κοσμητικόν of Cleopatra (12.403, etc); Ps.-Galen de pond. et mens. fr. 60 and Hippiatr. App. 3 preserve an excerpt (about weights and measures) ἐκ τῶν Κλεοπάτρας κοσμητικῶν.

17 τ] ι ν ος suits the space and the trace. A personal name would be more helpful, but I have not thought of one whose genitive would fit.

Alternatively, -νος might represent a nominative; the clause would then continue ἀναγέγρα|[φεν] ὄμοιοι. Cωρ]ανός has superficial attractions, for Tzetzes cites him as Cleopatra's source (Allegoriae Iliadis v. 7 τῷ Ἐφείκιω ἰατρῷ τῷ Cωρανῷ χρωμένην). But whatever fact, if any, lies behind this seemingly anachronistic assertion (see Usener), it does not help here: Cωρ] would be two letters too long, and the first trace does not really suit]α.

19–20 ἐ|[χρᾶ]τo. After this, the papyrus seems to be blank for a space of 2–3 letters. Does this mark a new section, beginning ἐνταῦθα, 'at this point'?

Lines 12–25 contain 11–17 letters.

The mention of a Juba in 14 suggests a Numidian/Mauretanian context. Very probably this is Juba ii, who married Cleopatra Selene, daughter of Cleopatra vii and Mark Antony, and so continued the Ptolemaic dynasty; it will be their son Ptolemy who appears in 9 (rather than Cleopatra's brothers Ptolemy xiii and xiv or her son by Caesar, Ptolemy xv Kaisarion, or her son by Mark Antony (and brother-in-law of Juba ii), Ptolemy Philadelphus). The inscription OGIS 197, from the Ptolemaic Gymnasium at Athens, honours this Ptolemy as ἔκγονος βασιλέως Πτολεμαίου.

If 7–10 refer to the writings of this Ptolemy (see note), 1–7 may refer to those of his learned father (FGrH 275).

2 Perhaps e.g.]ης ἱστορ[ίας. Juba II's numerous books included a Ῥωμαϊκὴ ἱστορία (F 9–12) and a Θεατρικὴ ἱστορία (F 15–16), otherwise (τὰ) περὶ τῆς Θεατρικῆς ἱστορίας (F 18) or Θεατρικά (F 17). κ]ης would fill the space at line-beginning.

3 .].οψυχ[. The first trace might suit ρ, but π]ροψυχ- seems unpromising. π]ρὸς Ψυχ-? Or what?

7 κ]ριτικά could be read, but the initial kappa is hardly wide enough for the gap. χω]ριτικά might suit an ethnographic strain. Otherwise something geographical (Κυβα-, Βουσι-, etc.)?

7–10 Perhaps γέγρα||φε δὲ καὶ [ὁ Ἰόβ]α υἱ[ὸς] | Πτολεμα[ί]ος Κυν[η]γετικόν. The diaeresis on υ is clear; the upper part of the presumed ι following is lost, but may have carried a second diaeresis (Gignac, Grammar i 205 n. 2).

Ptolemy son of Juba II (RE XXIII ii 1769, PTOLEMAIOS 62) became co-regent and then king (c. AD 23); executed by his cousin Caligula AD 40. The date of his birth is normally given as c.20 BC, i.e. soon after his parents' marriage; but others have argued that he was born much later, say c.5 BC, since a coin of AD 5 shows Juba with a young child who wears a diadem (J. Mazard, Corpus Nummorum Numidiae Mauretaniaeque no. 375; a similar child on undated coins is called 'King Ptolemy': ibid. nos. 379–81).

No other source refers to his writings. Indeed, it would be tidier, as Professor C. B. R. Pelling suggests, if 7–10 continued a list of Juba II's works, including 'a κῆνετικόν [addressed to (his son)] Ptolemy'; that would also affect the argument about the date of our author (see introduction). However, I have not found a way to reconstruct the text in this sense.

9–10 Κυν[η]γετικόν: a traditional title from Xenophon's Κυνηγετικόν onwards; Κυνηγετικά by Grattius, Nemesian, and Oppian.

10–11 Μα[χλυ]ικά. A guess, but the rules of syllable-division show that -ικα was preceded by a vowel, and Μάχλυες would suit the African context (a tribe of Libyan nomads, see Hdt. 4.178–80; J. Desanges, Catalogue des tribus africaines . . . (1962) 107f.). Juba II's works included Λιβυκά and περὶ Λιβύης (FGrH 275 F 5, 6).

11 ιο[. Ἰό]βας or Ἰό]βας (or -βου) seems inevitable; and there is then no room for ἐξ- or αὐτ-, even if the rules of syllable-division allow it. There is a real problem here. (i) With the nominative, it should mean 'his cousin Juba'. But the word-order would be bizarre, and I have found no record of a third Juba in this family or indeed of any cousin (if that is what the word means) either of Juba II or of Ptolemy. (ii) With the genitive, it should mean 'the cousin (unnamed) of Juba (II)'. This introduces no genealogical complications, but leaves αὐτοῦ isolated, when we should expect τοῦ αὐτοῦ, or conceivably αὐτοῦ τοῦ as in 14.

12–13 τὸ περὶ π[αί]δων ἀγωγῆς. A book of this title is recorded for Theophrastus (DL 5.50, Theophr. fr. 436 no. 10 F); another survives under the name of Plutarch (Mor. 1a). A standard topic for philosophers and in the praise of cities (Men. Rhet. p. 363.30 Spengel, p. 66 RW).

15–16 ἐν τοῖς περὶ | τοῦ ἰδίου βίου. A standard title for an autobiography (e.g. Galen 19.46.7, in a list of his own books); not attested among the works of Juba II, but he would have had precedents in his patron Augustus (Suda A 4412) and his wife's tutor Nicolaus of Damascus (FGrH 90 F 131–9). Among the Ptolemies, Euergetes II had left extensive ὑπομνήματα (FGrH 234). Professor Pelling notes that such a work would most probably have been written late in Juba's life.

17 The horizontal stroke above the final ειν perhaps represents an alternative way of writing nu at line-end. But if so, why did the scribe allow himself this pointless duplication?

19–20 Diadochoi are the immediate successors of Alexander, epigonoι their descendants; see e.g. Diod. 1.3.3, Strabo 15.3.24.

20–21 A similar phrase (if rightly read) in P. Köln VI 247 ii 28–30 (anonymous History of the Diadochoi) οἱ δὲ φίλο[ι] κα[ὶ] τῆξί[ου]ν αὐτὸν (Ptolemy I) τῆς βασιλικῆς | [ἐπι]κλήσεως.

22 συνάψαι of adding a section Polyb. 1.13.8, Plu. Mor. 1035D δεῖ γὰρ τούτοις συνάψαι τὸν περὶ ἀγαθῶν καὶ κακῶν λόγον.

25-7 γεγο|νότων δ' ἀπὸ . . . [. . .] ρου κτλ. It seems likely that ἀπό introduced the name of a dynastic founder. The obvious candidates are: (1) Attalus of Tius, the father of Philetærus and his brothers (Strab. 13.624 etc); (2) Philetærus, the first dynast (though he was an ancestor of the later kings only obliquely and by adoption); (3) Attalus I, the first to assume the royal title. Enemies called Boa, the wife of Attalus of Tius, a Paphlagonian flute-player (Athen. 13.577b); and qualified the whole dynasty as slaves (Daphitas ap. Strab. 14.1.39 = SH 370). The dynasty in turn contrived a noble genealogy for Boa (OGIS 264.10), and Nicander was able to integrate them fully with the heroic past, as descended from Teuthras and from Heracles and through Heracles from Pelops (fr. 104); these heroes might thus qualify as mythical founders.

Of the various possibilities, Φιλε|[τα]ίρου best suits the ink. At the end of 26, where the traces are partly obscured by straying fibres, I seem to see parts of an upright reaching well above the line, with further ink at mid-height to the right, together suggesting φ or ϕ; then the lower part of an upright, the foot of an oblique rising from left to right, and broken remains suggesting ε. The space would suggest three letters; but if a little cramping is allowed, φιλε seems satisfactory.

27 λαμπρο, the trace (apparently the last letter of the line) is the lower part of an upright, ending at line-level, with damage above and below. The syntax remains obscure. The participle γεγο|νότων might (i) stand by itself, 'descended from' or 'originating from' Philetærus, or (ii) continue with a complement, 'who became, starting from Philetærus, . . .'. If (i), we could consider λαμπροῦ to qualify Φιλε|[τα]ίρου, but one would expect τοῦ before it (I have already suggested that in 11 the scribe omitted τοῦ by haplography) or a participle like γενομένου after it, for which I can see no space in the following lines. If (ii), one could look for λαμπρῶν, but that cannot be read; or λαμπροτ[ά]||[τω]ν, where τ[might be possible but the rest too much for the space. There remains possibility (iii), that a new sentence begins here; e.g. λαμπροῖ | [γὰρ] ρε χεδὸν ἄπαν|[τε]ς διὰ τε . . .

28ff. Some elements recall Polyb. 4.48.7 (Attalus I) Ἀτταλον πάσαν ἤδη τὴν ἐπὶ τάδε τοῦ Ταύρου δυναστείαν ὑφ' αὐτὸν πεποῆσθαι; Strab. 13.4.2 (Attalus I) διεδέξατο τὴν ἀρχήν, καὶ ἀνηγορεύθη βασιλεὺς πρῶτος . . . οὗτος δὲ καὶ Ῥωμαίοις κατέστη φίλος . . . (Eumenes II) . . . ἔλαβε παρὰ τῶν Ῥωμαίων ἄσασαν τὴν ὑπ' Ἀντιόχῳ τὴν ἐντὸς Ταύρου. But I have failed to reconstruct continuous sense.

28 χεδὸν ἄπαν|[το]ς or -[τε]ς, apparently not ἀπάν|[τω]ν (where in any case [τω] looks long for the space).

29 διὰ τε τοὺς Ῥω|[μαί]ους συμμαχ[.] [? After χ, two remains of ink, one above the other, suggesting the top part of an upright with possibly a junction at the lower end; this should represent the last letter of the line, unless what followed was written very small. Possible constructions: (i) διὰ τε τοὺς Ῥω|[μαί]ους συμμαχῆ|[σαντας] (cf. Thuc. 6.80.2 δι' ὑμᾶς μὴ συμμαχῆσαντας!). But then I do not see how to continue with the latter part of 31 as preserved. (ii) διὰ τε τοὺς Ῥω|[μαί]ους συμμαχῆ|[σαι καὶ δ]ιὰ τὸ δε[.] (the last trace suggests υ[or possibly χ[). But that means emending τε to τό, or writing τε <τό> (yet another haplography).

32] ςτιαν: probably]ε, apparently not δυναστ(ε)ίαν, although it would be attractive to restore (as Dr Colomo suggests) καὶ δ]ιὰ τὸδ' ἔχ[ει(ν) | [τὴν δυναστίαν.

34 end]δε[. [or perhaps δρ[.]

Col. iii

12-14 E.g. βασιλεύσας] δὲ ἔτη [- - - καὶ] | τεσσαρά[κοντα]? Strabo 13.4 gives reigns as follows:

Attalus I	43 years (44 according to Polybius and Livy)
Eumenes II	49 years (but in fact 38?)
Attalus II	21 years.

Thus these lines might refer to Attalus I (restore [τέεερα καί], which suits the space better than [τρία καί]), so that 19 εϋμ[(i.e. Εὐμ[εν-) may refer to his successor; or 12-14 might refer to Eumenes II (restore [έννέα καί]).

So far as can be seen, this final section contained simple narrative. On the pattern of the Ptolemaic and Mauretanian sections, the author would at some point have dealt with the literary productions of Attalid kings: Attalus I wrote a description of the Beautiful Pine (Strab. 13.1.44), Attalus III works on agriculture, zoology, and pharmacology (E. V. Hansen, The Attalids of Pergamon (1971) 144f.).

4810. RHETORICAL EXERCISE BASED ON SPEECHES IN THUCYDIDES

18 2B.68/G(4-5)b

10.5 × 15.5 cm

Third century
Plate II

Seventeen lines from the bottom of a column of a papyrus roll written in a competent bookhand of the Formal Mixed or Severe style, not particularly carefully executed: there is a slight slant to the right, and connections between a number of letters. The back is blank. The hand is comparable with Roberts, GLH 19b = XVII 2098, Herodotus VII, with a land survey on the verso referring to a 15th year, perhaps that of Gallienus (267/8), and datable on the basis of its mature forms (flat-bottomed ω, μ with curved centre), decoration (shading), and slant, to the third century, perhaps the first half.

Near the top is a centred title heading a section that contains a speech couched in the first person plural with reminiscences of Thucydides I 32.1-4, thus pointing in the direction of a hypothesis, epitome, or exercise based on that text (see on 1). A forked paragraphos closes the section of text preceding the centred title. Other lectional signs include diaereses of the initial, inorganic variety (6, 11, 12), but hastily placed with the two elements connected by a thin diagonal stroke. There is no punctuation (other than the forked paragraphos after 1). Inconsistent orthography appears: 5 ξυμμαχ-, but 12, 17 κυμφερ-, and here and there Ionicisms: 6 ὑμέων (but 11 ἡμῶν), 13 αὐτοῖσι, 15 ἀδικουμένοισι, associated no doubt with historiography. The scribe once exhibits elision of final vowel (11) and assimilation (11, 16), but frequently fails to assimilate, writing scriptio plena instead. Similarly there is lack of contraction in προοφειλομένης (9-10).

Epitomes of Thucydides are not known before the Byzantine period. Declamations on themes in Thucydides and other historical themes (e.g. Arginusae) are not unknown (cf. XXIV 2400, which prescribes to the pupil to 'write an accusation of Cleon for demagogy in proposing to put to death the male inhabitants of Mytilene; choose the moment when Diodotus has spoken against him'). P. Köln I 9 contains an imitation of Isocrates; XIII 1621 (GBEBP 13b, parchment codex, second half of 4th c.) is a collection of real speeches from Thucydides II, including the conclusion of the speech of Archidamus at the beginning of the war (II 11) and the beginning of the funeral oration of Pericles (II 35) with better readings (in some cases) than the medieval MSS. Cf. LVII 3877 (memorable extracts from books I–III). In a yet more scholarly vein, VI 853 offers an extensive exegetical commentary on Thuc. II with lemmata in ekthesis. At the other end of the scale, we might think of the present text as operating at an elementary rhetorical level, and, given the professional copying treatment it has received, perhaps as a collection of one particular rhetor's examples of the kind of set speeches contemplated in XXIV 2400. It is hard to imagine an historiographical attempt to narrate the same events using the same device of speech, diction, and phrasing as Thucydides had done. It is safe to say that the author knew the text of Thucydides and deploys rhetorical devices like antithesis, parallelism, and the double-negative with a heavy hand.

'Speech of the Corcyraeans

'The ambassador of the Corcyraeans spoke: "Men of Athens, we have never been allies either with you or with the Peloponnesians; but we have come neither with previous enmity owed towards us, nor favour owed by us, but rather to ask for what is both right and profitable for you yourselves and for us alike — right, because you will side with us who are being wronged and who are not wronging others, and profitable (because) . . .”

1 The speech of the Corcyraeans, named here in the title in 2 and echoed in 5–8, is the first speech in Thucydides’ Histories (I 32). We are entitled to ask what the preceding text in the papyrus might have been. Presumably not another speech, if the text followed the sequence in Thucydides I. It might, in that case, have been (i) a prologue to the collection, or (ii) a summary of the opening of the Histories up to the speech of the Corcyraeans at 32–6. Alternatively, it might have been (iii) a different speech, if the collection did not follow Thucydides’ text sequentially, or at all. We might, for example, have a collection of speeches on various historical themes, drawing only in part on a well-known speech from Thucydides. In this case the text preceding the title in 2 might have been another speech on another (historical) theme, or a preface setting out the rhetorical rationale of the collection of speeches.

2–3 The title Κερκυραίων (understand: λόγος?), written in the same hand as the rest of the text, is centred in 2, preceded by an extra line’s height of blank space. But in 3 the speech begins with a narrative introduction of the Corcyraeans’ speech, attributing its delivery to their ambassador, in spite of the fact that the speech is couched in the plural, as it is in Thucydides, who says (I 31) merely Κερκυραίοι ἔλεξαν τοιάδε. The title therefore seems adventitious. Was it, or the narrative introduction, a later addition to the text? Note also the odd lack of an introductory particle. Κερκυραίων in 3 is written in the same position as the title in 2; perhaps this has caused a particle of introduction (e.g. δέ or νῦν after τῶν) to have dropped from the text before Κερκυραίων.

4 ἔλεξε: the aorist (Thuc. I 31.4 Κερκυραίοι ἔλεξαν τοιάδε) here seemingly secured by a distinctly horizontal base of Σ with a vertical protruding upwards from the centre of the base. ν-movable omitted as often in oratorical papyri; the need for it in any case obviated by a pause before the beginning of the speech with ω ἄνδρες.

ω ἄνδρες: cf. Thuc. I 32.1 ω Ἀθηναίοι.

5–8 ξύμμαχοι κτλ. An echo, making the same point in slightly different phrasing, of Thuc. I 32.4 ξύμμαχοί τε γὰρ οὐδενός πω ἐν τῷ πρὸ τοῦ ἐκούσιοι γενόμενοι νῦν ἄλλων τοῦτο δεησόμενοι ἦκομεν κτλ. The speech in the papyrus seems not to continue to follow Thucydides, but to recycle more or less the same words, while attempting to effect a type of antithesis and balance associated with Thucydides.

8–10 ἦκομεν . . . προοφειλομένης: cf. Thuc. I 32.4 δεησόμενοι ἦκομεν. But προοφειλομένης already at the beginning of the speech at I 32.1 τοὺς μήτε εὐεργεσίας μεγάλης μήτε ξυμμαχίας προοφειλομένης ἦκοντα.

8–11 μήτε . . . ἡμῖν . . . μήτε . . . ὑφ’ ἡμῶν. The contrast is somewhat awkward. It is tempting to remedy, and better balance would be achieved, by reading ὑμῶν for ἡμῶν in 11, so as to translate: ‘not because we are already owed either enmity or favour on your part’ (suggested by Professor Parsons).

11, 14 δίκαια: δίκαιον is the first word of the speech of the Corcyraeans at Thuc. I 32.

11–12 δίκαιά τε καὶ συμφέροντα: cf. Thuc. I 32.1 εὐεργεσίας.

16 Traces and spacing favour ἀδικοῦσι (which seems to better suit the sense and simple antithesis) over δικοῦσι (Ionic future participle of δικάζω).

17 συμφέρον|τα δέ: restored from συμφέροντα in 12, in antithesis with δίκαια μὲν in 14.

4811. NOVEL ('PANIONIS')

112/103(a)+104(b)b

13.5 × 22.7 cm

Second century
Plate VI

A damaged column of 27 lines, with minimal traces of the next, written along the fibres (the back is blank). The upper and lower parts are on two substantial fragments that join in 16 (see note); a much smaller fragment can be placed to provide the beginnings of 17–18. The upper margin survives to 2.8 cm, the lower to 2.2 cm. The intercolumnium measures 1.8–2.0 cm, but the left-hand margin runs to c.4.5 cm, so wide as to suggest the beginning of a roll (note also the enlarged initial letter in line 1).

The text is copied in an informal round hand, of a type normally assigned to the second century by comparison with e.g. GLH 14b (Pindar Paeans, 2nd hand) and such dated documents as PGB 22b (M. Chr. 86, AD 135 or not much later) and Norsa, SLG 12b (Gnomon of the Idios Logos, c. AD 150). This example is neatly executed, bilinear except for ρ and φ; it uses no serifs, but the second uprights of η and π curve rightwards at the foot.

Punctuation by paragraphos combined with blank (4) or high stop (8, 15; high stop alone visible in 10, 12, 16, 22, paragraphos in 25); in 8 the high stop takes the shape of an acute accent, in 10 and 12 it is heavily inked, so that one could ask whether a second hand added them (in 8 it stands above a letter, in 10, 12, and 22 well above the line although a letter-space is available below). Diaeresis on initial υ 6, 8, 9 (but not 23?). No accents visible. No example of iota adscript (omitted in 2, ?11). No example of elision marked or unmarked; scriptio plena 1, 4, 8, 12, 13 (at pause), 14 (also 7? 9? 16? 18? 21?). In 3 απιεν and 8 υμεις the original left-leaning iota has been overwritten with an iota in darker ink, leaning to the right; this may be the same darker ink of the stops in 10 and 12. Final υ abbreviated as a superscript horizontal in 9.

The text introduces two characters: Panionis and Heroxenus. Heroxenus is dressing with a view to making a speech; he tells Panionis to leave, since she will be bored; Panionis asks to stay and hear. Heroxenus agrees. The subject (υποθεσις) of the speech is stated; the details are lost, but it certainly involved a trial for murder. He then embarks on the speech, 'Perhaps he (she) thought, gentlemen of the jury, . . .'. The dialogue is presented in simple, even colloquial style, with no avoidance of hiatus.

It seems clear that such a narrative comes from a work of fiction. It is also clear that the forensic speech does not relate to a trial within the plot; it is a declamatory exercise. The procedure is familiar from rhetorical textbooks, and Heroxenus uses the technical language: θεσις would be a general proposition to be defended or attacked, whereas υποθεσις (23) is 'a specific theme about specified persons and places' (D. A. Russell, Greek Declamation (1983) 141). Indeed, the formulation (ending κρίνεται φόνου or the like) can easily be paralleled from Sopater and others. The whole thing would be familiar to educated men of the imperial period, even perhaps in Hellenistic times. The question is, how such an episode would fit in the novel as we conceive it. The Satyricon takes a satirical interest in declamatory practice (1–5, 48.4–6) and includes the text of a (verse) declamation (89), but of course the tone there is much more rowdy.

As for the setting, 4811 offers really no clues except the proper names. Both of them are unknown to literature (to judge from the TLG); Panionis also to inscriptions. ‘Panionis’ is so unusual that one might take it as a locator: in Ionia, perhaps in classical times when the Paniones were important, perhaps in the context of the festival Panionia, at which perhaps (though we have no direct evidence) there were contests of declamation.

There is a further element to consider. Professor Susan Stephens pointed out to me that this piece looks very similar, palaeographically, to another papyrus from Oxyrhynchus, PSI XI 1220, the narrative about Staphylus republished in S. A. Stephens and J. J. Winkler, Ancient Greek Novels: The Fragments (1995) 429–37 (M–P³ 2625, LDAB 5025; see also M. P. López Martínez, Fragmentos papiráceos de novela griega (Alicante 1994) no. 25 (pp. 307–16); plate (actual size) in G. Cavallo et al. (edd.), Scrivere libri e documenti nel mondo antico (Pap. Flor. XXX: 1998) no. 22 and tav. XIX, digital image in E. Crisci (ed.), Papiri letterari della Biblioteca Medicea Laurenziana (CD-ROM, Cassino 2002).

Does that fragment belong to the same manuscript as 4811? The arguments in favour are:

(i) The hand might indeed be the same, but it must be admitted that this is a hand of a rather general and undistinctive type. (ii) Scribal practice in lectional signs and the like is reasonably similar, given the size of the samples. (iii) Above all the physical dimensions (line-spacing, line-length, upper and intercolumnar margins) show a remarkable likeness of format. Thus:

	PSI 1220	4811
Line-space (10 lines)	6.3 cm	6.1 cm
Line-length	6.0–6.4 cm	6.2–6.4 cm
Letters per line	22	22
Surviving upper margin	2.8 cm	2.8 cm
Intercolumnium	1.5–1.8 cm	1.8–2.00 cm

(iii) at least carries substantial weight. Assuming that hand and format are the same, we might be dealing with two fragments of the same roll, or with two different rolls in the same set, or with two quite separate rolls copied by the same scribe. If in fact the two pieces belong to the same roll, then PSI 1220 comes later than 4811, which seemingly contains a roll-beginning; I have checked whether the initial letters surviving from 4811 col. ii could correspond to the line-ends preserved in PSI 1220 col. i, but the remains in 4811 are too scanty to prove anything. The fact that the two fragments now exist in different collections is no obstacle to bringing them together. The Italian excavators who dug Oxyrhynchus after Grenfell and Hunt certainly found further pieces of papyri already recovered, sometimes from the same roll, sometimes even from the same fragment, and many of these are published, like Staphylus, in PSI XI. See the list by Funghi and Messeri, Tyche 7 (1992) 79.

Suppose, then, that PSI 1220 followed 4811 (at an unknown distance) in the same roll. 4811 begins a roll, that is a book, but not the first book (for the narrative is already in full swing, with linking δέ), of what certainly sounds like a novel: Panionis and Heroxenus converse briskly and with good humour. PSI 1220 contains what sounds like myth or folk-tale, the story of Staphylus exposed as a baby by his mother Hippotis and rescued by King Dryas; some scholars have doubted whether this 'insouciant little narrative' should qualify as 'novel' at all, given its uncharacteristic economy, others have thought it a digression (Stephens and Winkler) or a filling in of background (López Martínez). There is no clear thematic connection between the two pieces, except perhaps geographically: Panionis may come from Ionia, Hippotis retires to Sardis. However, if they do belong, we can imagine another possibility. Staphylus may represent another of the rhetorical themes that engage Heroxenus and his friends; it might even represent the same theme, if it served as narratio to the forensic speech begun in 4811.

‘And when Panionis brought Heroxenus his garment he started telling her to go away so that she should not be bored with listening. She said: “This is certainly not the first time that I am bored by your performance: in fact, every day. When do you let up? When are you not uttering discourses in rhetoric, in philosophy, your own, other people’s? The business of reading is not like speaking. So here [why] do you say that I am bored? Speak, my dearest, and do not drive me away from you.” And Heroxenus said, with a faint smile: “Well, go on, listen if this is what you want, go on, [propose the theme?] on your own account.” [And she spoke as follows?] “. . . He (She) is put on trial for murder.

And [such] is the theme. . . the speech (story?) . . . something like this . . ." . . . he (she) said (spoke?), very immediately . . . : "He (She?) perhaps thought, gentlemen of the jury; . . ."

1 Πανιώνις. The name seems not to appear in literature; nor is it attested in the published volumes and unpublished data of the LPGN (I am most grateful to Mrs E. Matthews and Dr N. Kanavou for arranging to check the files). The simple 'Ionis' appears in Call. Ep. 25 Pf. (XI G–P), as a girl (status uncertain) abandoned by Callignotus; among the few inscriptional examples note SGDI 2118.3–4, a slave or freedwoman at Daulis in 195 BC (the ethnic, as often, a typical slave-name?). The masculine Πανιώνιος (v.l. Παιώνιος) designates a Chian castrator whose exemplary fate Herodotus records in the winter before the Battle of Salamis (8.105–6); otherwise LPGN finds only one (doubtful) example, at Beth Shearim in 3rd–4th century AD. Simon Hornblower has discussed the Herodotean Panionius, and considered whether the name (historical? or invented by the historian?) refers to the festival of the Panionia (or the cult centre of Panionium) or to the spirit of Ionianism (P. Derow, R. Parker (edd.), Herodotus and his World (2003) 50–53). Is 'Panionis' too a speaking name? If so, does it look backwards to the original Panionium or to Herodotus' account of it? or sideways to the later Panionia, the festival recorded by Strabo (14.1.20) and still being celebrated in the time of Hadrian, who in turn took the title 'Panionios' (Inscr. Eph. 1501)?

2 τῆν στο[λ]ῆν: as priest? professor? declaimer?

Ἡροξένω. Again, I have not found this name in literary sources. LPGN lists some 35 examples, of which some 25 from the Black Sea area.

4 ἔφ[ηεν·] 'οὐ' or ἔφ[η·] 'ἀλλ' οὐ? The latter perhaps a little too long, but the letters vary so much in size that the judgment is marginal.

6 τῆς σῆς ἀκροάεωσ: i.e., 'by the act of listening to you'? or in a more technical concrete sense, 'by your performance/lecture/reading'?

8–9 ῥήτορικὰ φιλόσοφα. (i) The variation in ending (not φιλοσοφικά) is standard, as e.g. Suda (Porphyry) ἔγραψε βιβλία πάμπλειστα, φιλόσοφά τε καὶ ῥητορικὰ καὶ γραμματικά κτλ. (ii) On the face of it, these are different categories (i.e. not a single concept of 'rhetorical philosophy'), in asyndeton (Suda (s.v. John Philoponus) συγγράμματα πάμπολλα, γραμματικά, φιλόσοφα, ἀριθμητικά, ῥητορικά); the fact that the scribe writes a high stop after the second word but apparently not after the first (where however the surface is somewhat damaged) does not prove that they are a unit. But note Cicero's argument that oratory and philosophy were originally identical, their divorce the fault of Socrates (de Oratore 3.66f.).

9–10 ὑμέτερ[.] . . τω(ν) ἀλλότρια. The physical evidence is this: (i) The right-hand piece of the papyrus needs to be moved to the right, though not by much (see 8 end ετε). (ii) At the line end, ω seems certain, and the suprascript stroke would normally signify a final ν. The left side of ω is lost in a hole; to the left of that what I have taken as the upright and left-hand cross-stroke of τ (π could also be considered; it would have to be very narrow, but this scribe does sometimes compress letters at line-end; the top is too close to horizontal for η); to the left of that a narrow vertical gouge in the surface, and to the left of that apparently a more or less upright stroke, which in some lights seems to be hooked to the left at the top. If we restore ὑμέτερ[α], there is space only for a short word] . . τω(ν), at the beginning two narrower letters or one wide. In context this word should be a genitive plural, which might then depend (i) on ὑμέτερ[α] or (ii) on the following ἀλλότρια (ἀλλοτρία?). As to the sense, we could reasonably assume that ἀλλότρια contrasts with ὑμέτερα, 'yours and others'. For (ii) I have no idea more sensible than ὤτω(ν) ἀλλότρια 'unheard of' or 'unfit to be listened to', which offers no contrast. (i) offers a much simpler solution, as Dr W. B. Henry and Prof. R. C. A. Janko have argued, ὑμέτερ[α] ἀψῶ(ν). Here α is vestigial, but υ agrees well with the traces.

10–12 A new sentence, set off by the high stop (no paragraphos). Perhaps τὸ δ[ε] τῆς ἀναγνώσε[ωσ, 'but the business of reading is not like speaking'. If so, what is the point? A contrast between 'reading' and 'speaking' as between philosophy and rhetoric (8–9)? Or between the written word and the (superior) spoken utterance, as classically set out by Plato (Phaedrus 274B ff.)? Neither seems to fit the immediate context. Perhaps Panionis means that she has read works by Heroxenus, but now wishes to hear him speak; or that she wishes to hear him improvising rather than reading out a prepared text (whether his own work or another's, 9–10).

12 μϵ[. Sense seems to require something like 'So at this point why do you speak of me being bored?'. I had thought of πῶς ἐμέ, which would suit the third trace (most likely ο or ϵ) and the penultimate μ, but the first ϵ seems too narrow for the space.

15–16 ὅ[πομειδιάσας ἔφη. The whole phrase is a regular one in the cultural dialogues of Plutarch and Athenaeus; elsewhere qualified by καρδάνιον (Polyb. 18.7.6), ἡρέμα (Ael.), ἀστεῖον (Justin), κεμνόν (Pallad.). In the novel: Helioid. 7.10.5, 10.14.6.

16 The physical join between the upper and lower fragments depends on εφῆ, where the main part of the letters stands on the upper fragment and the bottom arc of ε, the tail of φ, and the foot of the left-hand upright of η on the lower fragment. The fibres of the back (in poor condition) neither confirm nor exclude the placing.

16–18 The beginnings of 17–18, and the lower part of some letters in 16, stand on a separate small fragment. The placing here depends in part on the coherence of the text it creates, in part on a physical join above 19 which the fibres of the back seem to confirm.

16 ἀλλὰ ἄ[γϵ]: the last trace is uncertain (disturbed fibres). Perhaps ἀλλ' ἄγ[ε, but elsewhere the scribe uses scriptio plena.

18 προβ[, then space for c.6 letters at line-end, of which part is required by the supplement leading on to line 19, ὕ-. The final trace is vestigial, perhaps the foot of an oblique rising from left to right (if it were the foot of an upright, more ink should show above it). If προβλ[, I do not see where to go. προβα[may be possible (the trace representing pooled ink at the extremity of the loop, as in the second λ of 10 αλλοτρια).

18–19 ὅ[πρόθεσ[. . .]ε. εγεν[c.4. Some form of ὑπόθεσις seems likely; cf. 23. The word denotes a declamation subject not expressed in general terms but relating to specific persons and circumstances, see e.g. Ps.-Hermog. Prog. 11 ἐὰν ὠρισμένον πρόσωπον λάβωμεν καὶ περίστασιν τινα καὶ οὕτω τὴν διέξοδον τῶν λόγων ποιῶμεθα, οὐ θέσις ἔστιν ἀλλ' ὑπόθεσις. This is one of the ρήτορικά (8–9).

]ε. εγεν[. After]ε, the apex and right-hand oblique of a triangular letter; after ν, a left-hand arc with no trace of cross-bar, i.e. ο or ϵ rather than ε or θ. (i) If]εα, this is likely to be word-end. Very doubtfully I suggest ἢ δ(ε) ὅ[πρόθεσ[ις οὐ ν]έα, which is just allowed by the space; alternatively ἢ δ(ε) ὅ[πρόθεσ[ις δοτ]έα or the like. In that case, προβ[ends its clause, but I can think of nothing better than προβα[ίνω, "Come! For your sake let me step forward to speak! And the theme is not a new one . . ." (long for the space). Then ἐγένε[ντο or the like would begin the statement of the theme, which must be complete by the end of line 21. (ii) If]ελ, then e.g. πρόβα[λε τὴν ὕ]πρόθεσ[ιν· ἢ δὲ] ἔλεγεν ο[ὔτως, "Come! Propose the theme on your own account!" And she spoke as follows?'. Dr Coles observes that]ελ is a more likely reading, since the left-hand oblique of the damaged letter descends at an angle more acute than would be expected of λ. This recommends (ii), which also gives better sense. For the terms cf. Philostr. Vit. Soph. 583 (Aristides of Mysia is asked by Marcus Aurelius to declaim): 'τῆμερον' εἶπεν 'πρόβαλε καὶ αὔριον ἀκροῶ'.

20–21 contained in only two lines the meat of the case, on the basis of which a single (male?) person (26) is charged with murder. I can make out none of the details. If PSI XI 1220 belongs in this context, might it be the narratio of the speech that Heroxenus based on this theme?

21] . . καε . ρ . [, -κα (e.g. γυναικα) εγρο[- would suit the traces; less likely εγρω[.

22 κ . . [. .] . [] . ιφ . νου . κρε[ίν]ε[τ]αι (or κρε[ίν]ο[υ]τ[αι]) φόνου might fit. Such a phrase recurs in statements of declamation-topics, sometimes as main verb of a sentence narrating the plot, sometimes added to such a sentence with καί. The topics themselves may take their material from myth

(like that of Staphylus?) or from the normal 'cases' of rhetoric. Thus Libanius Decl. 6 Μετὰ τὴν τῆς Τροίας ἄλωσιν καὶ τὴν Ἀγαμέμνονος τελευτὴν Ὀρέστis ἀπεκτονῶς τὴν μητέρα ὡς ἀνδροφόνου κρίνεται φόνου. Sopotcr Rhet. RG VIII 261 Ἀχειρ ἀριστεὺς προσέταξε τῷ παιδὶ μοιχὸν ἀνελεῖν. ἀνεῖλεν ὁ παῖς καὶ κρίνεται φόνου.

καίτ. [: καὶ το[ιούτῃ suggests itself. If so, the missing letters must have been heavily compressed to fit the line-end (cf. 7).

22–5 If Panionis proposes the theme, and Heroxenus improvises the speech that begins in 26, we must provide for a change of speaker. Three possibilities: (i) Panionis continues into 24, e.g. εἰ[πεὶ ὁ] | λόγος ὠδέ πως λέ[γει. ὁ δέ] | ἔλεγεν κτλ. Here λόγος would mean 'story', and the theme must relate to some well-known (mythical or historical) incident. (ii) Heroxenus intervenes in 22, e.g. 'καὶ το[ιούτῃ] | ἐστὶν ἡ ὑπόθεσις', εἰ[φή, 'καὶ ὁ] | λόγος ὠδέ πως λε[γέσθω]. (iii) Heroxenus intervenes in 23, e.g. 'εἰ[φ' ἦς ὁ] | λόγος ὠδέ πως λε[γέσθω] | ἔλεγεν κτλ. In (ii) and (iii) λόγος would be the speech he is to make, and ὠδέ πως has its typical function of looking forward to introduce quoted words. But (ii) leaves no room for a connection with 25; neither allows a clear reference to Heroxenus as the new speaker.

25 πάνυ ευθε. [: εὐθέω[ς might suit (Plato Phaed. 63A): the practised declaimer does not need time to collect his thoughts, but plunges in with all speed. That would leave room for c.3–4 letters. If the speech began only with the next line (26 note), this introductory sentence continued for a further word, unless the line-end was left blank to mark (with the paragraphos) the new section.

26 ᾤετο μέν presumably began the 'speech'. For this use of μέν see Denniston, *GP*² 383.

ου. [: οὐτ[ος or οὐτ[οσί acceptable, but equally οὐτ[ωσ. In any case, the singular subject should be the accused, and that supports the singular κρε[ῖν]ε[τ]αι in 22.

4812. GLOSSARY (MORE OF XV 1802)

127/35–6

6.1 × 7.7 cm

Late second century
Plates VIII–IX

Fragments from an alphabetical glossary written across the fibres of a papyrus roll. A history of Alexander (XV 1798) is written along the fibres on the other side, the original recto. A substantial portion of this glossary of Greek and foreign words was previously published by Hunt as XV 1802. Additional fragments were identified as part of the same manuscript by Lobel (some of which he joined with the already published ones), and these are published here for the first time. A transcript and notes prepared by Lobel have been used for the edition below (he did not transcribe fr. 26–8). All the fragments may be ascribed to the same manuscript on palaeographical grounds.

Of the new fragments, five join those already published by Hunt: one joins 1802 fr. 2; two join 1802 fr. 3 i and 1802 fr. 5; and two join 1802 fr. 6 and 1802 fr. 9. The adjoining fragments (old and new) are presented together here; the new fragments, joined to previously numbered fragments, compose ensembles that are designated as follows: fr. 2, fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5, and fr. 6 + 9. In addition to these, there are seventeen new fragments that do not seem to join either with one another or with the old fragments. These have been assigned numbers following on from those of 1802 (i.e. from 1802 fr. 11). All the new fragments (including fr. 26–8) have the same text of the glossary on one side and the same text as the recto of 1802 on the other, but not enough on either side to give a clue to their placement. In 1802 lemmata (covering letters κ–μ) are set in ekthesis and a blank space divides each lemma from its explanation. The end of a lemma is preserved in fr. 13.2, but otherwise the new fragments offer no complete new lemmata. There are no clear indications that they cover letters other than κ–μ. The upper margin is preserved to a height of 1.8 cm. in fr. 6 + 9, 13, 26 and 28, matching the height of that preserved in 1802 fr. 3. Line-ends are preserved in fr. 2 (i 12) and fr. 26.

Written in an irregular semi-cursive that has affinities with the Severe style: see 1802 introd. and cf. V 842 (GLH 17b); P. Mich. inv. 3 (GLH 15c, and now Greek Medical Papyri i 2, where the verso document is redated from 190/1 as in GLH to 192/3). A date in the late second century is likely. As in 1802, no accents or other diacriticals are in evidence; no punctuation (other than blank space separating explanation). Iota adscript always omitted (cf. fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.17; fr. 6 + 9.3); diaeresis often added to initial iota (e.g. fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.13). Final ν sometimes written as a horizontal stroke above the preceding letter (fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.12). Many iotacistic spellings: πολιτεία (fr. 2.4.8; fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.21); Φουείκης (fr. 12a. 6). At least one possible spelling error: fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.12 (τ for δ?).

As in the previously published portions of 1802, the entries in the new fragments give a lemma (usually a rare, dialectal, or foreign word) followed by an explanation or translation of it by a named scholarly authority, often citing works and book-numbers; the lemma, which always begins a line, is separated by a blank space from its explanation. It is sometimes difficult to tell whether a preserved blank space is that separating lemma from explanation (as it is, e.g. at fr. 13.2), or part of the blank line-end after the explanation has ended. In spite of the absence of complete new lemmata (which might have yielded e.g. new poetic quotations), the new fragments offer much learned material, exhibiting (as in 1802) an interest in foreign, especially 'Eastern' words (παρὰ Πέρσαις fr. 6 + 9.13; κατὰ Πέρσας fr. 12a.9; περὶ τοῦ κατὰ Ἀσίαν . . . fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.10, 17–18; περὶ Φουίκης fr. 12a.6; Κκυθικῶν fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.1), together with constant appeal to authorities as sources of the explanations: Berossus' Babyloniaka (fr. 6 + 9.20; fr. 12a.9), Erasistratus (fr. 12a.7), Xenophon (fr. 6 + 9.21), and Dionysius of Utica (fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.13—possibly the same as the Dionysius quoted in 1802 fr. 3 ii 48), and perhaps Hegesander (fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.12, already quoted in 1802 fr. 3 iii 74). In fr. 2 i 4.8 and in fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.21 πολιτεῖαι are mentioned, probably from works on constitutions (perhaps by Aristotle, who was quoted in 1802 fr. 3 iii 60 for the Constitution of Soli).

fr. 2 col. i

It is likely that this column began with lemmata in κν- or κω-, for the reasons given below on 8; the following column has lemmata starting with λα, and we seem to have a break in the text signalled here after line 5 or 6.

4] ν πολειτεία. To judge from 1802 fr. 3 iii 59–60 Ἀριστοτέ[] λης ἐν τῇ Κολέων πολειτεία, all of the instances of πολειτεία in the new fragments (2 i 4; 2 i 8; 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.21) are likely to be in the dative, forming part of a title introduced by ἐν, i.e. a citation of the source for the explanation of the gloss, probably near the end of the entry (all these cases of πολιτεία occur at ends of lines). Between ε]ν and πολιτεία we would expect a genitive plural of the people whose constitution was treated in the work, or an ethnic adjective ending in -ικος, i.e. ἐν -ικῆ πολιτεία. Here]ν suggests the former, and supports the notion that (as in 8) we have a work by Aristotle cited here (see below, fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.21 n.); if by Aristotle (though see 8 n.), the list of candidates for the supplement of the name of the city is a long one (Aristotle was credited with ‘constitutions’ of at least 158 states: Diog. Laer. V 27.1; fr. 381–603 Rose).

5 Ἀντήνωρ: an antiquarian writer from Crete (FGrH 463) active in the 2nd century BC.

6–7 Blank as preserved. The first half of 6 might have concluded, well before line-end, the entry beginning in 5; line 7, however, must have been left blank, for the reasons explained below on line 8.

8 Ἀριστοτέλης ἐν τῇ Θεσσαλῶν πολιτεία [. Ἀ Θεσσαλῶν (or Θετταλῶν) πολιτεία by Aristotle is mentioned by Athen. XI 499d and schol. Eur. Rhes. 311 (ii p. 334 Schwartz) = Aristotle fr. 498–9 Rose; a κοινὴ Θετταλῶν πολιτεία by Harpocration s.v. τετραρχία (fr. 487 Rose). Critias too wrote a work of the same title (Athen. XIV 663a, cf. XII 527b; Critias 88 B 31 DK). No doubt Aristotle is more likely to be cited as an authority, and fr. 499 has a special interest here: θηλυκῶς λέγεσθαι φησιν ὑπὸ Θετταλῶν τὴν λάγυνον, since it is commenting on the word λάγυνος, ‘flask’. Presumably the lemma λάγυνος stood at the beginning of the line; if so, it would be the first word in λ- in the glossary, preceded by a blank space (apparently left at the level of line 7) as marking the end of the letter κ and the beginning of λ (as proposed by J. J. Keaney, ZPE 37 (1980) 198).

fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5

1 Κυ[θικ]ῶν. For works on Scythians (a number of them known to have extended to at least three books) see generally FGrH III C pp. 927 ff.

2–4 The lemma could be Μαργιανοί (so already Hunt): cf. Strabo 11.8.1 who mentions Ἄμαρδοι (other name of Μάρδοι; cf. Strabo 11.13.3), Μαργιανοί and Κκύθαι as closely connected. The Mardoι were a population of the area of the Black Sea living on piracy: Steph. Byz. 432.15 Μάρδοι, ἔθνος Ὑρκανῶν. Ἀπολλόδωρος (FGrH 244 F 316) Περὶ γῆς δευτέρω. ληστὰι δ’ οὗτοι καὶ τοξόται. The name Μάρδοι can perhaps be read also in fr. 18.2 (below). At 3–4 Hunt restored ε]ϑουσιά[[ζουσι, thinking that the Μαργιανοί (associated with the Mardoι by Strabo) might be connected with μάργος, ‘mad’ (cf. Hsch. μ 264).

5] λοι Ἀντικλε[ίδη]ς: δ]ηλοί possible; [ιδη] just about possible, though a tight squeeze, as Hunt notes. Anticleides, an Athenian historian who flourished in the early 3rd century BC, wrote a History of Alexander, Deliaika, and Nostoi (FGrH 140). At Athen. XI 473b he is credited with an Ἐξηγητικόν, probably by confusion with Autocleides (FGrH 353), who certainly wrote a work of that title explaining religious terms and usages. Presumably it is the same Autocleides who is cited in 1802 fr. 3 iii 62 (= FGrH 353 F 6) for an explanation of μειστηρ (i.e. μάετωρ?). Since 3 ε]ϑουσια- might have a ritual reference, we could wonder whether Ἀντι- here is a mistake for Ἄντο-. But in a damaged context this remains entirely speculative.

6 Ἀσκλη]ητιάδης ἐν: suggested by Hunt, who wanted to restore ἐν [.] ἐπι[γρ]α[[μμάτων and understand thus Asclepiades of Samos, epigrammatist of the 3rd century BC. But this reading is not only called into question by the difficulty of reading ι after the π (a thick upright is joined at mid-height by a horizontal stroke, which would suggest η or ιτ rather than ιγ), but there is no evidence for epigrams of Asclepiades in numbered books, and the reading is in any case excluded by the rules of syllable division. On the other hand, we know of many historians by this name: Asclepiades of Tragilos, 4th century BC (FGrH 12); Asclepiades of Myrlea, 2nd/1st century BC (FGrH 697); Asclepiades of Cyprus (FGrH 752). There are also two physicians with this name: Asclepiades of Bithynia, 2nd/1st century, and Asclepiades the Younger, 1st/2nd century AD. Perhaps the best candidate, in keeping with the historical and antiquarian interests of most of the authorities in the glossary, is Asclepiades of Myrlea, whose interest in foreign peoples was exemplified e.g. by his treatise on Bithynians.

8]ρα. [. . . .]c. Hunt suggested Ἡρακ[λείδη]c. If correct, he could be the same as the Heraclides author of a work entitled ξένη φωνή quoted in 1802 fr. 3 iii 66. But there are other possibilities (cf. RE XV s.v. Herakleides): e.g. the ethnographer Heraclides of Cymae (4th century BC), Heraclides the geographer (3rd cent. BC), Heraclides Lembus, grammarian and historian (2nd century BC).

10]περὶ τοῦ κατὰ Ἀσίαν α[: cf. 17 (same work?). A historical or ethnographic work about Asia, not identified elsewhere. There is a superficial similarity with Ctesias' περὶ τῶν κατὰ Ἀσίαν φόρων (FGrH 688 F 53-4).

12]αντρος. The only solution seems to read Ἡγήc]ανδρος, as suggested by Lobel; he was already quoted in fr. 3 iii 74 (see note) and the exchange between δ and τ is frequent in the Roman and Byzantine periods especially after ν: Gignac, Grammar i 76-7, 81.

13 Διονύσιος ὁ Ἰτυκαῖος: Dionysius of Utica (1st century BC) is mentioned by Athen. XIV 648e and Scholia in Lucianum 46, 3.6 Rabe as author of a Γεωργικά, a translation of the work on agriculture of the Carthaginian Mago, and by Steph. Byz. 342.3 as author of Ῥιζοτομικά, a herbal treatise.

21] . . . ικη̄ πολιτεία: citation of a work on a constitution. Those ascribed to Aristotle are always cited as ἐν [- -]ων πολιτεία, i.e. with the genitive plural of the citizens (rather than with an ethnic adjective), which casts doubt on the supposition that a 'constitution' of Aristotle's is cited. Athenaeus, who always cites Aristotle's constitutions in this way, does use the adjective for the homonymous work by the Stoic Persaeus, pupil of Zenon (Athen. IV 140b, 140e-f) Περσάιος ἐν τῇ Λακωνικῇ πολιτεία. Suda α 3254 speaks of τῇ Περσικῇ πολιτεία, which would suit the interest in Persian glosses elsewhere in this lexicon, but the reference is not in citation of a work, but rather to a 'man who is honoured according to (or by) the Persian constitution'. In any case, none of these suit the traces in the papyrus before the ending -ικη̄ in 4812: an upright (i?) and a stroke descending to right (λ, γ?).

27]ρθοι. Hunt suggested Πά]ρθοι.

Fr. 6 + 9

3 ἐν τῷ Τρωϊκῷ: a work on some aspect of Troy. A possible guess would be τῷ Τρωϊκῷ διακόσμω, i.e. a citation of the work on the disposition of the Trojan plain by Demetrius of Scepsis, known from Sch. Ap. Rh. 1.1165 Δημήτριος ὁ Σκήψιος ἐν τῷ Τρωϊκῷ διακόσμω. Another possibility is to read ἐν τῷ Τρωϊκῷ καταλόγῳ in reference to the catalogue of ships in Il. 2. Still other possibilities: ἐν τῷ Τρωϊκῷ πολέμῳ, in the Trojan war, ἐν τῷ Τρωϊκῷ πεδίῳ, in the Trojan plain, both common expressions, though perhaps less satisfactory here.

4]δροςο . . . ιοχευς. Possible is]δρος (perhaps Ἀλέξαν]δρος, but that is not the only possibility), then δ? But after that ἡνιοχεύς (suggesting an Homeric context) is ruled out by the traces; these, however, allow Ἀντιοχεύς, which is what Hunt read. Allen suggested privately to Hunt Ἀλέξαν]δρος ὁ Ἀντιοχεύς, who he thought might have been cited in a lost work Parthica by Appian (cf. above on fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.27); but if this is correct, he is elsewhere unidentified.

6] βλέφα[ρα] παρὰ Χα[λδαίους]? If correct, we might suppose that the lemma was an Akkadian word for 'eyelids' or 'eyes'. This would be īnu, 'eye', which could be accommodated in the implied alphabetical order of the glossary. If the word is instead Iranian, the Iranian root for 'eyelids' is mr-žng, which in Persian becomes mozhe. It could become something like μόζη or similar when transcribed into Greek. This too would fit the alphabetical order.

8] . . . ς μοιχ[. . .]ον. The sequence μοιχ seems to suggest that we are dealing with a derivative of the verb μοιχάομαι, or μοιχεύω, 'commit adultery'; the gloss could thus be about something related to words for adultery or adulterer.

10 κατὰ τὴν Λιβύην: a citation of a work about Libya (cf. Asia in fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.10, 17), an explanation of a Libyan word, or part of an explanation having something to do with Libya.

13 π]αρά Πέρ[ε]αις ἐπ[ί] τοῦ. If the restoration is correct, the lemma was a Persian word ('found among Persians', 'in Persian', παρά Πέρσαις), and the explanation is of what the word is used for, i.e. means (ἐπί τοῦ + genitive; hence τοῦ, exempli gratia).

20 Βή]ρωκος ἐν ᾧ Βαβυλω[νιακῶν]: the first of the quotations of the Babyloniaka of Berossus (FGrH 680). The book number is not clear: horizontal top joining an upright could suit Γ Ζ Ξ Τ. For Berossus' Babyloniaka three books are attested, so the only possible reading would be γ, the third book.

21] . ε Ξεν[ο]φῶν ἐν ᾧ π[ε]ρί. If the letter after the numeral is γ or π we must look for a work by Xenophon beginning with one of these letters; there are not many options, because among his works the only ones meeting this criterion are περί ἵππικῆς and περί προσόδων (the other title for Ποιοί), but these works do not have more than one book. However it could be an alternative title in the form 'the work on χ' and in this case (with περί + gen.) it could be any of the works by Xenophon. Out of the main interest in Babylonian and Persian glosses of the lexicon, a quotation from the Cyropaedia (περί τῆς Κύρου παιδείας?) or perhaps from the Anabasis (περί Ἀναβάσεως?) seems the most likely hypothesis.

22 δύο [ο] τοίχους τεθυρωμένους: 'two walls with doors'. The verb θυρώ, 'furnish with doors', is not common and is never used in connection with τοίχος. Probably we have part of the same entry as the previous one; therefore we may assume that the quotation of Xenophon goes together with it. An analysis of the works of Xenophon for the words τοίχ- and θυρ- has shown that, whereas there are not many attestations of τοίχος and derivatives, the word θύρα and derivatives is (perhaps not surprisingly) frequent, particularly in Cyropaedia, where it is often used of gates of cities; as such δύο [ο] τοίχους τεθυρωμένους might paraphrase a description in that work of city-walls with gates built into them.

3–6 These lines seem to be part of the same entry, discussing a Phoenician word probably meaning 'corn-store', as the explanation seems to suggest (ἐ]ρμηγνέεται πυροῦ | e.g. θησαυρός δ]ιά τὸ τὸν πυρὸν ἐνταῦθα τοὺς | [Φοίνι]κας ὑποθησαυρίζειν). The lemma itself cannot be determined with certainty. Lobel suggested Πυραμίδες from Steph. Byz. 540.14 ὠνομάσθησαν δὲ πυραμίδες ἀπὸ τῶν πυρῶν, οὗς ἐκεῖ συναγαγὼν ὁ βασιλεὺς ἔνδειαν ἐποίησε αἰτοῦ κατὰ τὴν Αἴγυπτον. However, it is hard to restore Πυραμίδες as a lemma for this entry; π would probably be too far from the rest of the preserved part of the glossary, where there is no evidence of lemmata beginning with letters after μ (but cf. entry in 9–10, lemma beginning with θ or ο?).

3 ἐ]ρμηγνέεται can mean not only 'explain', but also 'interpret foreign words', i.e. 'translate into Greek'; cf. Steph. Byz. 340.14 ὑπὸ δὲ Φοινίκων Κέλλα ῥάσφαθ ὃ ἐρμηγνέται ἰστός νεώς. Here it introduces the explanation of the meaning of the word(s) in the lemma earlier in the line.

5 ὑποθησαυρίζειν: only here; the closest parallel is ἀποθησαυρίζειν in late writers.

5–6 ὡς Ἐστιαῖ] [ος ἐν] ᾧ περὶ Φοινίκης. Among authors who wrote Φοινικικά at least one name begins with ε: Hestiaeus (FGrH 786), and that fits both the space and the traces.

Lobel noted that, if the supplements at the beginnings of ll. 5, 6, 8 are complete, the width of this column will have been considerably narrower than that of fr. 3 ii and iii. Unfortunately, apart from this poorly-preserved column and those in fr. 3, we do not have any other evidence of other columns; a variation in terms of width is not impossible but cannot be proved further.

7–8]ων ἐντοστιδίων τι ὡς Ἐρασίστρα] [τος] ἐν τῷ Ὀ[ψαρ]τυτικῷ: a new fragment of the Ὀψαρτυτικά of the physician Erasistratus (fr. 290 Garofalo; cf. Athen. VII 342a Ἐρασίστρατος ἐν Ὀψαρτυτικῷ, not in Garofalo).

9–10] θάλασσα κατὰ Πέρσας. Βήρωκος | [ἐν] ᾧ Βαβυλωνιακῶν. Paralleled at FGrH 680 F1 (b) ἄρχειν δὲ τούτων πάντων γυναικα ἢ ὄνομα Ὀμόρωκα: εἶναι δὲ τοῦτο Χαλδαιστὶ μὲν †Θαλαθ, Ἑλληνιστὶ δὲ μεθερμηγνέσθαι θάλασσα (from the first book of the Babyloniaka). The lemma is uncertain: perhaps Θαλαθ or Ὀμόρωκα (both consistent with the alphabetical order of the glossary). Θαλαθ is a corruption of the Chaldaean Tiamat: the form used by Berossus, however, is disputed: possibly Thamte, which in Greek would be spelled as Θαμτε. Ὀμόρωκα, instead, was the name of a woman, who, according to Berossus, ruled over the first living beings.

fr. 13

The beginnings of three entries are visible (2, 4, 7), but lemmata are missing except for the ending -ειος in 2.

1 διηνεκ[: perhaps a derivative of διηνεκῆς.

2]ειος λιθ[. The lemma may be the name of a stone, as the beginning of the explanation (λιθ[) seems to suggest.

3] ὁ Ῥόδιος ἐν π̄ π[ερὶ. The citation of the Rhodian authority pertains to the same entry as line 2. Any number of authorities who hailed from Rhodes who could be meant here. Strabo 14.2.13 lists ἄνδρες μνήμησ ἀξιοὶ who were Ῥόδιοι or were described as such, e.g. Apollonius Rhodius, Panae-tius (cf. infra fr. 14), Andronicus, Timachidas, and Callixenus; catalogued in B. Mygind, 'Intellectuals in Rhodes', in V. Gabrielsen et al. (edd.), Hellenistic Rhodes: Politics, Culture and Society (Aarhus 1999) 247–93.

5] καὶ Ὀμηρο[ς: introducing the only citation from Homer thus far in the glossary, which does not seem interested in explaining Homeric or poetic diction in general; all lemmata seem to be prosaic and technical rather than poetic words. Here, however, a rare Greek word, or a word from a particular dialect, or perhaps a foreign 'eastern' word was presumably explained by recourse to Homeric usage (cf. on 6). All the other preserved authorities quoted are historians or antiquarian writers. An exception would be Apollonius of Rhodes (if his name is to be restored in l. 2), but if so, he was probably invoked more as a source of the explanation than as literary attestation.

6]ταιλαοιωσ[. [-ται λαοὶ ὡς looks possible, especially in the context of the citation of Homer in the previous line—not, however, a Homeric quotation; but then most of the citations of authorities in the explanations are not direct quotations, but conflation and paraphrases.

fr. 14

3 Παναί[τιος seems attractive, especially with a Rhodian source cited in fr. 13.3. However a reading]ων π̄αν αι[cannot be ruled out.

4–5 In the light of]ακρησινα[and]ακρηστ[, the entry seems to have dealt with a Cretan gloss.

fr. 15

2] υκα[. Among other possibilities,]τυκα[ι- (Lobel) could be tried, i.e. Dionysius of Utica (above fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.13).

fr. 17

1] κρησφ[. [a Cretan gloss?

2]νιερεϊς[: perhaps]νιερεϊς[, or, more likely]νιερεϊς.

fr. 18

2]μαρδ[: probably Μάρδοι (mentioned in fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.4) or a derivative.

3] ος[. The space marks the beginning of the explanation of the lemma.

5]μ[. [.]γ: possibly the beginning of another entry, perhaps starting with μ. If this fragment contained words in μ, as appears from ll. 2 and 5, this scrap could have belonged to fr. 3 col. i. There is support for this view in the fact that the other side (front) of both displays tops of columns. Moreover Μάρδοι are mentioned in fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.4, which could suggest that this scrap belongs to one of the lemmata or explanations in that column. However, it is not possible to join this fragment with fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.3-4 as proposed by Lobel, unless we suppose a gap between the two.

fr. 19

3]γεωργικ[ών? (proposed by Lobel) seems reasonable, i.e. a citation from a certain book of a work on agriculture; cf. the parallel expression in fr. 20.6. Another citation from the Sicilian Dionysius of Utica quoted in fr. 3 i + 2 new fr. + fr. 5.13? (according to Scholia in Lucianum 46, 3.7 Rabe his translation of the Carthaginian Mago's γεωργικά was in more than one book).

fr. 20

The handwriting appears slightly different in certain respects from that of the other fragments (cf. esp. α and ω), but this may be due to a change of pen. The content however is in keeping with the glossary.

6]ν̄̄γεωρ[: perhaps ε]ν̄̄ γ̄ γεωρ[γικ-, i.e. the third book of a work dealing with agriculture. A similar work, or at least something connected with the root γεωργ-, is cited in fr. 19.

7]αιδιαν[: possibly καῑ δι' αῡ[τό.

fr. 21

2]ᾱρ[. The first letter is a numeral, presumably a book number. For possible titles in ρ-, cf. (περὶ) ῥητορικῆς (τέχνης), Ῥωμαίων ἱστορία, Ῥωμαϊκῆς ἀρχαιολογίας, and the like.

III. HOMER AND HOMERICA

4813–4816. HOMER, ILLIAD

These four papyri, already listed and quoted in M. L. West's Teubner text (1998–2000), are here published in full. 4813 and 4815 have already appeared in Aegyptus 84 (2004) 101–23 with pll. I–II. The versions in this volume take account of a further microscopic examination of the originals by Dr Coles, except for 4813 fr. 1–4, which were not available.

The editors have used West's edition as the basis of collation, with consultation of the edition of H. van Thiel (1996); more detailed information about the readings of the medieval MSS has been supplied from the editions of A. Ludwich (1902–7) and T. W. Allen (editio maior, 1931). The MSS, unless otherwise specified, are quoted by West's sigla. Other published papyri of the Iliad are quoted by their number in the catalogue of Allen, Sutton, and West; see Martin L. West, Studies in the Text and Transmission of the Iliad (2001) 86–138.

4813. HOMER, ILLIAD I 90–92, 95–100, 119–25, 128–53

Fr. 5 5.7 × 17.3 cm

Third century

Π⁷³²; LDAB 9260; MP³ 573.001

Five fragments of a papyrus roll, written along the fibres; on the back a few traces of ink, perhaps documentary writing, perhaps simply offsets. No trace of kollesis survives.

Fr. 3 (Il. I.119–125) preserves parts of the upper margin (at least 1.6 cm), and fr. 4+5 (Il. I.128–153) must follow shortly below, as part of the same column, which therefore contained at least 35 lines. Presumably this book, the first of the Iliad, began the roll; on the assumption that it began also from the first line of a column (i.e. that there was no prefatory matter), we could hypothesize that the original column held 39/40 lines. Thus cols. i–iii contained verses 1–118, and our fr. 1–2 fell within col. iii; col. iv contained 119–c.158. After col. iv we could estimate that the rest of the book required eleven full columns and half of a twelfth. The whole book would thus require sixteen columns. From fr. 3–5 we can estimate the written height of a column at c.26 cm (roll height c.31 cm), and the written width at c.12 cm; allowing c.2 cm for the intercolumnium the roll length (for Iliad I alone) would be c.2.25 m, a figure compatible with the length of other Homeric papyri from Oxyrhynchus (see W. A. Johnson, Bookrolls and Scribes in Oxyrhynchus (2004) 185–96).

The text was copied in an informal upright hand of medium size. The letters are traced in a semi-cursive way, with more angular than rounded shapes and some pseudo-ligatures: in particular, note β with its lower part triangular, Δ with the right-hand oblique projecting above the apex and curving gently to the left, the branches of κ and the stems of ι and ϕ artificially stretched, μ looped, \omicron in an oval form, ω with flattened base and raised above line-level. The ornamentation is very irregular: only short hooks at the top of the oblique strokes in λ , Δ , and sometimes thickenings on the vertical of ι or on the oblique branch of γ . The general appearance suggests a certain resemblance to the Chancery hands (for literary texts in such a script see T. Renner, Pap. Congr. XXI ii 827–34): see PSI X 1148 of 210 (Aegyptus 45 (1965), tav. 8 = Pap. Flor. XXXVI tav. 11a); among literary texts cf. PSI II 127 (Pap. Flor. XXX, tav. xxxi), assigned to the third century. 4813 should be assigned to the same period.

An interlinear addition in 150 and almost all of the lectional signs are in a different ink and can be assigned to a second hand, which revised the text with a thicker pen in lighter ink. We have many acute accents (in 131 and 146 by the first hand?); circumflex in 134, 151; grave in 133, 145. Rough breathing in 120. Elision always marked (131, 133, 134, 138, 142). Diaereses in 124, 131 ('organic' use), 143, 147 (twice). Punctuation in 99, 119 (both by the first hand), hyphen in 122. There are itacistic mistakes by the first scribe in 131, 149, 150. Iota adscript is not written in 98 $\phi\iota\lambda\omega$.

The text offers no readings of particular interest, but see 97, 122 and 138 with notes.

Published papyri which overlap with this piece are Π^{456} , Π^{56} , Π^{116} , Π^{118} , Π^{119} , Π^{272} , Π^{273} , Π^{354} , Π^{455a} , Π^{524} , Π^{526} , Π^{527} , Π^{663} , Π^{676} and P. Montserrat (= Barc. inv. 49 = LDAB 8015 = MP³ 580.11; not in West).

97 The papyrus agrees with Zenodotus' reading (cf. This text was preferred in many papyri (Π¹¹⁶ Π²⁷² Π²⁷³ Π⁷²⁷ Π⁷²⁹ Π⁷³⁶ Π⁷³⁷ h¹⁵a) and MSS (A T). The text that Rhianus and Aristarchus preferred (Δαναοΐσιν άεικέα λαιγόν άπώσει) was already in the Massaliotica, and is attested, to the best of my knowledge, only in Π⁷³³.

100 ιλασσα[μενοι: there seems to be no trace of diaeresis above the initial iota.

122 The papyrus agrees with Π²⁷³ τι Ω (Π⁵²⁴ offers the garbled φιλεκτανοτατ[ε]), whereas Aristophanes (according to Seleucus ap. Eustath. 1441.18; see W. J. Slater (ed.), Aristophanis Byzantii Fragmenta (SGLG 6: Berlin/New York 1986) 175) preferred φιλοκτεανέστατε. 132 ουδέ μ[ε]. The scribe placed an acute accent over an oxytone followed by an enclitic according to the general rule, attested in the papyri; see J. Moore-Blunt, QUCC 29 (1978) 142.

134 τῆνδ': the accentuation adopted by Herodian (see Schol. Od. 1.185; Schol. Il. 8.109c with Erbse's note) and preserved also in A B T (see Allen, Prolegomena 231–2): τῆνδ' the other MSS. Donatus preferred (Comm. in Ter. Ad. 460) the variant πάντ'.

135 μ]εγαθυμ[οι. α is represented by an oblique trace high in the line (suggesting a grave accent, but too low down to be one).

138] ηδ' Οδυσε[ηος with D (= Laur. pl. 32.15), a tenth-century manuscript, where however Books I–IV were supplied in the twelfth century, with some ancient readings (further information in West, pp. x, xiii f.): ἡ Όδ- the remaining MSS (Όδυσεῆος most MSS: Όδυσεῆος G H¹ T¹ and a few others). The next line was athetized by Aristarchus, but this seems to have no connection with the variant.

37 4B.109/H(3–5)a
Π⁹²⁷; LDAB 9408; MP3 697.001

13.9 × 17.4 cm

Early fourth century

A fragment of a papyrus roll with remains of two columns (of col. i only a few letters survive), written across the fibres on the back of a document, perhaps a register of houses, assignable to the middle of the third century, and upside down in relation to it. The intercolumnium measures 3 cm; the upper margin is extant to c.1 cm. A kollesis, at least 1 cm wide, is visible near the left edge. The average width of the column can be estimated at about 11 cm. The identification of the line-ends of col. i is doubtful: if we assume that lines 2 and 5 correspond to verses 267 and 270, we may think of a column of 52–3 lines; if so, the column height would have been about 29 cm, and the roll height some 32 cm or more.

The text is written in an informal upright hand of medium size, with some features that resemble the Severe Style. Bilinearity is only roughly respected: φ λ ι τ (and sometimes π μ) are extended to reach below the baseline; α is written in one stroke with a high loop, ω with well rounded sides and a flattened base, Δ with the right-hand diagonal projecting above the apex and hooked to the left; in κ the oblique strokes tend to be lengthened; in μ the middle strokes form a curve which touches the baseline; in ε the crossbar is very long and sometimes touches the next letter. We could assign this hand to the late third or, more probably, the early fourth century; compare e.g. GEBEP 1b (XI 1358), assigned to the early fourth century, and 8a, a Coptic letter datable c.330–40 AD.

Itacisms in 320, 329, 336. No trace of punctuation, no elision marks; iota adscript is not written. Traces of lectional signs at 319, 321–3 (of uncertain meaning) and 342 (see n.). Traces of an uncertain sign (stichometric?) in the intercolumnium near 324. Also noteworthy are the blank spaces between syllables or vowels (cf. e.g. 328 -civ εδυσατο), possibly due to the vertical fibres that made writing difficult.

Papyri that overlap with this fragment are Π³, Π⁴, Π⁴⁰, Π^{49+392a}, and Π⁵⁶⁰.

Textually the papyrus offers no variants of particular interest. At 324 ἄρα is omitted, clearly by mistake; the omission of 343 is perhaps more interesting (see below).

319–23 Oblique strokes in the margin to the left of 319 and of the line-space between 322 and 323; uncertain ink to the left of 321–2. Such oblique strokes have many functions (here possibly to mark off the short speech); see K. McNamee, Sigla and Select Marginalia in Greek Literary Papyri (1992) 17.

319 is omitted in Π^{49+392a}.

323 ημιν αυ with Π³: ἡμῖν δ' αυ MSS. There is a short blank space between ημιν and αυ, and at the corresponding place in the lines following: presumably the scribe was avoiding a vertical strip of rough fibres.

324 ωε εφ[α]ν: ὦε (ὦε A T) ἄρα (ἄρ T ἄρ A¹ D G H, ἄρ A²) εφαν MSS. The omission of ἄρα in the papyrus is clearly a mistake.

342–4 In the left-hand margin, ranging with the line-space between these lines, is a stroke sloping down gently from right to left, apparently not a paragraphos, since it does not extend between the line-beginnings themselves.

343 The omission of this line is difficult to explain. It is not omitted in any other manuscript, and there is no discussion of its authenticity in the scholia. Curiously, R. Payne Knight (London 1820) regarded it as unnecessary and athetized it. One could thus conjecture that an ancient scholar athetized the line, and that it was omitted for this reason. However, it seems more likely that the line was omitted by simple mistake. The marginal sign may have served to indicate that a line was missing, perhaps even that the omitted line was added in the lower margin (the sign points downwards). Thus the sign might be interpreted as a signe de renvoi; see B. Atsalos in D. Harlfinger, G. Prato (eds.), Paleografia e codicologia greca i (1991) 211–31.

345 ε[ιοντ] with most MSS, or εἰον δ (Π³): εἰοντες Z (unmetrical and perhaps ruled out by space).

Second/third century

Π⁹⁹⁹; LDAB 9464; MP³ 738.201

Four fragments of a papyrus roll, written along the fibres. Dr Coles notes two kolleseis in fr. 2, one 2 cm in from the left-hand edge, one running down the line-ends, so that the visible width of the kollema is 10 cm (unusually narrow). Frs. 2b and 3 preserve c.4 cm of the lower margin, fr. 4 at least 2.4 cm of the top one; to judge from fr. 3–4, the intercolumnium may be estimated at c.2.6–3.0 cm. The interlinear space averages c.0.3 cm. The back is blank.

The text was copied in a medium-sized, more rounded than angular 'Severe Style' hand, slightly slanting to the right. The ductus and the large gap between the letters give the impression of a rapid but skillfully executed writing. Bilinearity is not always respected: see in particular the vertical stroke of ι, τ, γ, ρ, φ extending under the baseline and curved to the left. λ is in the triangular shape, with the oblique right-hand stroke sometimes curved; in ε the crossbar is often extended to the right; ο is small and floating upwards; γ is written in two strokes, the right one inclined leftwards; in ω the handles are often flattened on the baseline. There is a very slight contrast between thick and thin strokes (see especially η and κ). No trace of ornamentation.

Useful parallels for the dating are XXVII 2452 (Soph.? Theseus), LXIV 4455 (Comm. on Hdt.), both assigned to the third century, and LXIV 4459 + PL III/294A (Strabo), assigned to the second/third century. Among Homeric papyri it is interesting to compare P. Yale I 7, written, however, in a more angular hand. I should therefore be inclined to assign this papyrus to the later second or earlier third century.

There are no instances of punctuation or accents. Iota adscript is written only at 452 δηιουν (and wrongly at 412 Αδρησσε[ι]νηι). Nu movable is omitted at verse-end in 332 and 378 (although the next lines begin with a vowel), written in 365 but omitted in 410 (where the next lines begin with a consonant). Elision is always effected, but never signalled. There are itacistic spellings at 200, 204, 324, 341, 353, 375, 412.

For the texts used in collation see above, 4813–4816 introd. The sigla are West's, but I have preferred to quote in extenso other MSS not collated by West, on the basis of the apparatus of Ludwich or Allen.

Other published papyri that overlap with these fragments are Π¹, Π^{6a}, Π¹⁶ + Π⁵⁷⁸, Π⁷¹, Π⁹⁵, Π¹⁰², Π¹⁸⁰, Π¹⁸³ + Π²⁹⁵ + Π⁴⁷⁸, Π²⁸⁰ + Π⁴⁷⁶, Π⁴⁰⁰ + Π⁴⁰¹, Π⁴⁰⁴, Π⁴⁰⁵, Π⁴⁷⁴, Π^{474c}, Π⁵⁷⁴ + Π⁵⁷⁶, Π⁵⁷⁵, Π⁵⁷³, Π¹⁵⁵⁸.

Π¹²²³; LDAB 9628; MP³ 892.001

fr. a 12.3 × 15 cm

Fifth/sixth century

The lower half of a sheet is partially preserved in two fragments making up the left and right sides. No kollesis is visible. The sheet carried writing on both sides: Iliad 12.1-13 written across the fibers (↓) and 33-40 along the fibers (→). If the verses were written down in their natural sequence, the ↓ side was used first. If the → side continued with 12.14, it would have contained about twenty-eight lines of writing (with 33 repeated as 36a), to give a written area of approximately 19/20 × 30 cm. The left margin on the → side was at least 2.2 cm, the right 2 cm, and at the foot 3.5 cm. There are minimal traces of two more lines above 12.1 on the ↓ side, but it cannot be ascertained whether they belong to the end of Book 11 or e.g. to a title preceding Book 12.

Two hands are represented, both amateurish and therefore difficult to date but probably to be assigned (as Dr Coles suggests) to the fifth or even sixth century. The second (37-40) is a shaky script which looks back to the 'Severe' style with slightly forward leaning letters and slight serifs on τ and the descenders of γ and ρ (pointing to the right). It shows similarities to GBEBP 11a (assigned to the later fourth century) and to the personal script of Dioscorus of Aphrodito (datable c.550-70 AD). The first writer (1-13, 33-36a) exhibits great irregularity in his execution. He had troubles with ink flow at places (e.g. 10, 11). The large, round letters vary greatly in size from one to the next. And although he wrote in capitals, the writer was disinclined to lift the pen at the end of each letter. The general appearance is coarse, though almost exuberant in its disorder. This impression is further exaggerated by the mangled state of the papyrus. Parts of it are so torn that two adjacent letters of the text may be several centimetres apart physically.

It is unclear whether this was a single opisthographic sheet or part of a codex. The reconstructed dimensions of the written area imply a page very approximately 25 × 35 cm. This would be large for a codex of this period, but not impossibly large; see Turner, Typology 14-15. However, the large, ungainly script of the first writer suggests a single papyrus sheet used by a student. In favour of this hypothesis one may point to the numerous phonetic spellings, haplography (κ in 36a), and repeated verse (36a); cf. R. Cribiore, Writing, Teachers, and Students in Graeco-Roman Egypt (1996) 91-3. On the other hand, the large size of the sheet and the use of the ↓ side first seem to point away from a school exercise. Iliad XII is not well represented in the papyri, and indeed J. Krüger, Oxyrhynchos in der Kaiserzeit (1990) 217, found it not represented at all at Oxyrhynchus, a conclusion now made obsolete by 4816 and another dozen inedita; for its use in schools see the wooden tablet with 12.294-7 found at Kellis and published by C. A. Hope and K. A. Worp, Mnemosyne 51 (1998) 206-10. Perhaps fatigue had led to deterioration in the writing of the first scribe before he was replaced by the second.

Phonetic spellings abound in both writers: itacism, confusion of ο and ω, τε for δε (36), simplification (33, 36a) and gemination of consonants (37), all of which are readily paralleled in other Homer papyri of this time. Movable nu was added in 34 οπικθε]ν Ποσιδαων with no regard to the metre (cf. Π⁵⁷² (LII 3662) 6, Iliad V); likewise οφρα loses the liquid to become οφα (10). The extra line 36a was bracketed by the second scribe, to judge from the ink (cf. Turner, *GMAW*² p. 16, on περιγράφειν). No lectional signs except inorganic diaeresis in 4, 33, 38. Elision was effected but not marked. No opportunity to observe whether iota adscript was written.

Two possible new variants at 11 and 36a (see notes below).

3 ομειδ[αδον, mistake for ομειλ-. Some extra ink may suggest an attempt to correct the false δ.] . [. Two large loops side by side, open at the right; possibly ε]μ[ε]λλε.

10 ρφα for οφρα; cf. Gignac, Grammar i 107f., for the disappearance of rho after a stop.

11 επλετ agrees with ε̄πλετ' Vat. Palat. 180, written by Joannes Seutariota in the 15th cent. Other variants include εσθαι Π⁶⁰: ε̄πλεν D G. The vulgate reading ε̄πλε(ν) (Π⁹⁶) was explained by Zenodotus as apocope of ε̄πλετο, by Aristarchus as syncope of ε̄πελεν (sch. T; cf. Hainsworth ad loc.). The papyrus reading επλετ probably resulted from the writer beginning the next line (τοφρα) prematurely; cf. Π¹⁶ (II 223, Iliad V, early iii AD) 199f. εμβεβαῶτα [[α]] | [αρ]χέυειν, 255f. ἀ[υτω]ς [[αντ[] | [αντιον. It is to be noted, however, that the scribe here did not cancel the τ.

12 This line was apparently indented by 3 letter(s). Eisthesis often signalled a change of metre (*GMAW*² p. 8), but its purpose here is unclear (cf. Cribiore, Tyche 9 (1994) 2), unless indeed the scribe was simply avoiding a patch of surface damage.

36 πυργο(ν). Horizontal ink close above ο suggests that the final ν was represented as often by a suprascript bar.

36a The writer repeated 33 by mistake: his eyes must have wandered from τεῖχος 36 to τεῖχος 32; cf. Π⁰⁴ (MP³ 643, LDAB 1380, i AD) for a similar error in copying Iliad 2.498–500. The line was subsequently bracketed by the second hand. The repetition of 33 was not exact: the initial κ was left out for some reason.

]ξιμ: first a rounded hump, perhaps the cap of ε; after that an upright going directly into the left foot of a μ, prima facie]ξιμην. This part of 33 is in lacuna. The remains do not suit the preferred reading πρόσθεν ἴεν, nor any of the variants, e.g. ἴει (μ Π⁶⁰), ἴκην, ἦεν, θέεν. I cannot think of a restoration for]ξιμην that satisfies both syntax and metre (12.32f. ποταμούς δ' ἔτρεψε νέεσθαι | κὰρ ῥόον, ἦι περ πρόσθεν ἴεν καλλίρροον ὕδωρ). Perhaps the writer botched his efforts at writing προσθ]εν ἴεν.

40] Indeterminate traces, the last of which is a small hump, perhaps the peak of a λ in αελλη.

4817. HOMER, ILIAD I 1 AND SUMMARY

17 2B.53/B(a)

14.1 × 10.1 cm

Fourth century
Plate III

Initial-title with book-number and first verse of Iliad I, followed by a summary describing the opening scene of the epic (vv. 22 ff.), written along the fibres in a large slanting semi-formal version of the Formal Mixed style with heavy shading and some affinities to the Biblical uncial. The overall effect is not unlike that of the Freer Gospels (GBEBP 15a, assigned to iv/v), but with more connection between and unevenness in size of the letters; GBEBP 11a (XXVII 2459, Euripides, Oedipus) and 11b (P. Vindob. G 19815, Hesiod) show similar handwriting as early as the second half of the fourth century. On the back and across the fibres are beginnings of two lines containing an address, perhaps beginning a private letter, before breaking-off with ample space below, in the manner of a writing exercise (the writing has an illiterate look—a private style, at best): 1 κυρίω μου Ἀθανασίω . [, 2 πρὸ μὲ πάτω εὔχομέ σε . [(1. μὲν πάντων εὔχομαι). On the front, the top margin is preserved to an apparently original height of 2.2 cm. Into this space the heading α ἰλιάδος appears to have been written and equipped with decorative strokes in the same hand as the main text but in a paler ink. Diaereses, both initial and internal/organic are written. Iota adscript, wherever we can tell (5, 9, 10), is omitted. There are occasionally spaces between words; sometimes letters at beginnings of words are enlarged. Top of ϵ in 2 extended to take up space at end of line. A mark of rough breathing has been added in 5 διόπερ in the same paler ink in which the diaereses have been added, together with a suprascript letter (conceivably by the main hand) and a cancellation-stroke in 6, in correction of a phonetic error consistent with the date of writing.

The text as far as it goes is virtually (but not identically) that of (i) P. Achmim 2 (3rd/4th c. papyrus codex) with summary—consisting of exactly 100 words—of A 22–36, the sentence περιέχει δὲ ἡ ῥαψωδία ἡμέρας κα, and a glossary to A 1–21, re-edited without the glossary by M. van Rossum, Greek Readers' Digests? (Leiden 1998) no. 29 (discussion: pp. 55–6; text of summary: p. 246); and of (ii) LVI 3829 (late 2nd-c. papyrus 'roll') = no. 30 van Rossum (discussion: pp. 56–7; text: p. 247), prefaced by a 'catechism' (i.e. list of characters) and antehomerica (i.e. a plot summary from Zeus' plan to destroy the heroic generation to the Judgement of Paris), before a summary of A 22 ff. (largely restored on the basis of P. Achmim 2). This last section overlaps (at 39–44) with 4817 up to the middle of line 5. 4817 has different colometry (longer lines than both 3829 and P. Achmim 2), and lacks the prefatory material contained in 3829. A propos of P. Achmim 2, Dr van Rossum notes, first, that chronological order is not observed: Agamemnon is said to give Chryseis back and to sacrifice to Zeus (= A 430–87, line 10 below), and then to take Briseis away from Achilles (= A 320–48, line 11 below with note); and second, that the text contains additional miscellaneous material introductory to a study of the epic. (See further van Rossum 56 for other syntactical traits.) The only other hypothesis of Iliad I is in the medieval MSS and is completely different, in addition to being longer than P. Achmim 2 by about fifteen words. 3829 is written on re-used papyrus (the account on the back suggests that this 'roll' would not have been long), just as 4817 was re-used for the letter/exercise: both were more ephemeral than P. Achmim 2.

The existence now of three, virtually identical copies of this text, proves that this summary of the opening of the Iliad was a book (or in modern parlance, a 'text-book'), i.e. one with a paradosis that circulated in multiple copies like canonical texts. Nor is 4817 written in a hand particularly associated with 'school-texts' (e.g. by R. Criore), but with book-hands.

Iliad 1. “Sing, goddess, of the wrath of Pelcus’ son Achilles”: Agamemnon, having the daughter of Chryses, Apollo’s(?) priest, Chryseis, as a captive concubine, did not give her back to her father, although he asked to ransom her. Therefore, because the god was angered, a disease gripped the Greeks for nine days, until Achilles discerned the cause after Calchas performed divination. Agamemnon, at first, castigated Calchas for his divinatory skill, and then gave Chryseis back to her father . . .’

1 α Ἰλιάδος: title and book number, positioned slightly off-centre to the left. Presumably with the genitive case ‘Book 1 of the Iliad’ is meant (as some colophons of books of Homer in papyri and MSS), although it is not impossible that ὑπόθεσις is understood: ‘Summary of Iliad 1’. What follows is neither the first book of the Iliad, nor a summary of it, but a quotation of A 1, followed by a summary of the opening scene of the poem, starting at v. 22. At LVI 3829 38 the quotation of A 1 is introduced by a now fragmentary sentence beginning κα[. P. Achmim 2 has only the book-number α as a solitary heading (off-centre to the far right) before the quotation of A 1 in a separate line.

2–10 Beginnings and ends restored from P. Achmim 2.3–12 and (in part) from 3829 40–44.

2 Quotation of A 1. For quotation of the opening verse or incipit of a work or book compare the quotation of ζ 1 in P. Ryl. I 23.9–10 and the titles and incipits of Menander’s plays in X 1235 (iii 103, 113)—though these latter are more elaborately introduced by addition of the formulae: title + ἦς ἀρχή and ἡ δ’ ὑπόθεσις; J. J. O’Hara, ZPE 56 (1984) 1 n. 2. Both P. Achmim 2.2 and 3829 39 have the same quotation of A 1 in a single line (longer in the latter instance by a whole word than the restored line-lengths of the paraphrase).

μῆνιν]: restored with P. Achmim 2.2: μ[.]ῆνι[ν 3829 39. μῆνιν will not quite fill the space required at the beginning of line 2, but the discrepancy is slight, especially given the flourish with which 1 (a title) and e.g. θεα in the present line are written. Since what follows is not an explanation or a gloss, perhaps this line too was written as a kind of title or subheading to what follows.

3 ἰε[ρέως Ἀπόλλωνος (?): restored with P. Achmim 2.4; restored (on grounds of space) at 3829

41. But a tracing shows that the name so restored here would have thus been longer than the preceding and following lines by at least five letters. It is highly likely that Ἀπόλλωνος did not stand here in 4817, and that the text ran on from ἰερέως to Χρύσου without specifying which god he served as priest (omission by haplography?).

4 ἀπέδωκεν: with P. Achmim 2.5: ἀπ[έδωκεν 3829 43. The ω looks somewhat like o missing its top; but o elsewhere has a narrower base, and the ω here is apparently a normal development of an ω that the scribe uses elsewhere (7 επεγνω) alongside the full ω.

4-5 δ[εομέ|νῳ λυτρ]ώσασθαι τῷ πατρί: confirms the word-order of P. Achmim 2 and 3829 here, together with this summary's stylistic habit of separating cased and other words that normally belong together (remarkable, as van Rossum, Greek Readers' Digests 56, notes, for a Homeric hypothesis). Cf. 10-11 below = P. Achmim 2.12-13 τὴν δὲ Ἀχιλλέως ἀφείλατο Βρισηΐδα.

5 διόπερ. The evidence of 3829 ends at this point.

κατέξ[χε(ν) τοὺς: restored with P. Achmim 2.6-7 κα|τέσχεν τοὺς.

6 Ἑλληνας]: restored with P. Achmim 2.7. The surviving trace does not exclude such conceivable alternatives as τὸν λαδ]γ, (τὸν) στρατδ]γ, or (τοὺς) Ἀχαιού]ς.

εφεννηα: 4817 before correction: εφεννεα after correction: ἐπ' ἐννέα P. Achmim 2.7; cf. A 53 ἐννῆμαρ; 54 τῇ δεκάτῃ; 493 δωδεκάτῃ γένητ' ἡώς. An ε of similar shape as elsewhere has been written over η, and η has been cancelled with a fine diagonal stroke in a lighter ink. The phonetic exchange of η for ε is well exemplified in this period in documentary texts; ἐννηα for ἐννέα is also not uncommon (Gignac i 245 for some examples). If ἐφ' is what was intended, it may be another case of false aspiration (Gignac i 135 ff.) (unless the scribe was influenced by thinking of ἐφ' ἡμέρας ἐννέα). The mediaevally transmitted scholia on A 53 give various explanations for the number of days (e.g. medical, Pythagorean), but the papyrus shows no trace of interest in these. The specification of the day in the summary may instead be related to the debate between Zenodotus and Aristarchus about the number of days passed in the course of Iliad I: cf. P. Achmim 2.20 περιέχει δὲ ἡ ῥαψωδία ἡμέρας κα, on which see note there, and van Rossum, Greek Readers' Digests 55 n. 9.

μηνίσαντ[ος: restored with P. Achmim 2.7-8.

τοῦ θεοῦ (restored by reasons of spacing): τοῦ θ̄υ P. Achmim 2.8. Such possible variants as Ἀπόλλωνος or δαίμονος here would produce a line longer than the preceding and following one by three letters.

7 ἐπέγνω τὴν αἰτίαν: not exactly true of Achilles: this is nowhere stated in the poem.

10 ἀπέδω]κεν: ἀπέδωκε P. Achmim 2.12.

τῶ πατρί: τῶ πατρί P. Achmim 2.12. 4817 confirms the addition. P. Achmim continues τὴν δὲ θυεῖαν τῶ θεῶ· | τὴν δὲ Ἀχιλλέως ἀφείλατο Βρισηῖδα. καὶ Ἀχιλλε[ύς] | μὲν τῆς μητρὸς ἐδεήθη Θέτιδος ὅπως αὐτῶ | βοηθήσῃ· κτλ.

11]·ει· . . . ο . . . [: ἀφείλατο Βρισηῖδα P. Achmim 2.13, to which these traces seem suitable, i.e. ἀ]φείλατο Βρ[ι]ς[η]ῖδα (see above on 4–5 for the separation of words normally belonging together).

4818–4819. SCHOLIA MINORA TO ILIAD

Presented below are two papyri, overlapping in parts, with scholia minora to the first book of the Iliad. Other papyri covering the lines commented on in 4818–4819 are P. Stras. inv. Gr. 33 (R 011, S/W h15), P. Colon. inv. 2281 (R 016, S/W h23), P. Berol. 10577 (R 017, S/W h24), P. Mil. Vogl. III 120 (R 020, S/W h28) (all four reedited by A. Henrichs, ZPE 7 (1971) 119–48, 229–52, 252–5, 255–7), and P. Lit. Palau Rib. 8 (R 013, S/W h19). All these papyri have been assigned to the second century. The interrelation of the scholia minora attested in all these papyri including ours is perhaps indicative of the circulation of a standard edition of them in Roman Egypt.

The notes also give the comparative testimony of the D-Scholia, scholia maiora, grammarians, paraphrases and several lexica. Although this list is not complete, it is indicative of the influence of the scholia minora upon later works of similar nature.

4818. SCHOLIA MINORA TO ILIAD I 326–36, 340–53

46 5B.53/G(1–5)b

7.4 × 11.5 cm

Third century

A fragment of a roll preserving along the fibres parts of a glossary to Iliad I. The back carries remains of a land register in a third-century hand. The missing text between the two sets of lemmata–glosses cannot be determined. There are 14 entries between Iliad I.335 and 340 in the D-scholia, but our papyrus certainly had fewer lemmata. It has 19 entries between 1.340 and 353 and 10 between 1.326 and 335, while the D-scholia have 38 and 26 respectively. These calculations indicate that the D-scholia have almost twice as many entries as our papyrus, so that one may assume that about 7 entries were lost in the gap between the glosses of the first and the lemmata of the second column. This reconstruction would suggest a column-height of *c.*13 cm, which is rather short; see W. A. Johnson, Bookrolls and Scribes in Oxyrhynchus (Toronto 2004) 119–25.

The hand is an informal version of the ‘Severe Style’, medium-sized, slanting to the right, and with some shading. The standard bookhand suggests that it was a book copied by a professional scribe. Bilinearity is violated by ρ, φ, and sometimes by ι, τ, γ, and χ. Letters are narrowly spaced and often touch each other. Noteworthy letters are the cone-shaped θ, the diamond-shaped φ, ζ whose middle part resembles a comma, κ with detached branches, and the well-rounded ω, whose middle stroke is reduced to a point. Such a hand may confidently be assigned to the third century; cf. VII 1016 = *GMAW*² 84 or I 23.

Lemmata and glosses are arranged opposite each other in parallel columns by order of their occurrence in the Homeric text, and are separated by a blank space (at least 1.2 cm wide). The lemmata in the second column are almost strictly vertically aligned, but the writing of three glosses in the third column violates the alignment. The lengthy gloss to πολις (ii 13) occupies two lines, the second of which is set out, so that its correspondence to the same lemma could be made clear; see Raffaelli in Ricerche di filologia classica ii 174, and J.-L. Fournet, Hellénisme dans l’Égypte du VI^e siècle: La Bibliothèque et l’œuvre de Dioscore d’Aphrodité (Le Caire 1999) 99. iii 17 is set one letter in, possibly so that confusion with the long tail of the initial τ of the previous line could be avoided; iii 18 is aligned with iii 17. In iii 19 the initial letter of the gloss is written slightly further right than usual, perhaps because of the length of its lemma. On the assumption that the beginnings of the glosses in the first column ranged approximately, 4–6 letters must have been lost from them.

A number of dots are written after certain lemmata and glosses (it is unclear whether they are the work of the scribe); see i 10, ii 9 (high points), 18 (low point), 20 (middle point). All these lemmata appear to be incorrect; do the points signal error? However, no point is visible after the lemma in ii 8, which is also incorrect.

Errors, usually misspellings, in the lemmata of papyri of scholia minora are not uncommon; cf. J. Lunden, ZPE 124 (1999) 25-52 (noticed parenthetically).

No other lectional signs are in evidence. Iota adscript was not marked in ii 4.

The papyrus is rich in lemmata. αὔτε (340), ἑτάρων (349), and, if correctly identified, κόοι (344), κτήτην (332), and ἡρήσατο (351) are not included in the glossaries transmitted by other papyri that cover the same lines (cf. also i 18 n.). The large number of lemmata brings this papyrus close to the D-Scholia, and is evidence for the influence of the scholia minora upon the formation of this corpus.

Apart from those listed in the introduction, a few other papyri with scholia minora are quoted as parallels to particular entries: XLV 3237 (R 015, S/W h22; iii c.); P. Cairo Masp. III 67331 = P. Aphrod. Lit. 2 (R 027, S/W h38; vi c.); PSI inv. 1733 (R 044, S/W h67; ed. SIFC 27–8 (1956) 50–52; vii c.); P. Hamb. III 200 (R Od.004, S/W Od.h9; ii c.); P. Amh. II 18 (R Od.007, S/W Od.h25; ii c.); Bodl. MS. Gr. class. f 41 (P) (ed. ZPE 136 (2001) 111–15; V c.); P. Bingen 8 (ii c.).

Col. i

10] . πε. Presumably προεπε]μπε, glossing προίει (1.326). If the dot after -ε indicates an error, the gloss may have been intended to be προέπεμψε, as in P. Strasb. inv. 33.ix.9a; see 4819 →6.

11] . θησαν. Probably επορε]υθησαν, glossing βάτην (1.327), as in P. Strasb. inv. 33.ix.3a, D+ on 1.327, P, [Hsch β76+]: ἐπορ(ε)ύεσθην Λ β20U: ἐπορεύοντο Λ β23SU: ἀπήλθον PM.

12] ου. One would expect a gloss to ἀτρυγέτοιο (1.327), e.g. ἀκάρπου, as in 3237 ii 26, D on 1.316+, Λ a796U+, P, [Sch^{AbT} (ex.) on 15.27+], Hsch (Cyr) a8165+, [Hsch (Cyr) a8167+], EM a2053+, EGud 230.12+, [Eu III 696.23+]. ἀκαταπονήτου attested in D on 1.316+, Λ a796U+, ApS 46.16f+, [Hsch (Cyr) a8167+], EM a2053+, EGud 230.12+, [Eu I 170.2–+]: ἀπέιρου Λ a796U+, EGud 230.12+ (in both κατὰ τὸ βάθος is added), Hsch (Cyr) a8165+: ἀβύσσου [Sch^{AbT} (ex.) on 15.27+], [Eu III 696.23, 697.2–3] seems too long for the space available. For other possibilities, not compatible with the traces, see P. Strasb. inv. 33.ix.4 (καθαρας και περας μη εχουσης), P. Lit. Palau Rib. 8.5.i.24 (της μη τρυγωμενης) and perhaps 6.2 ([θαρμ]), [P. Berol. 10509.5–6 (την πολ(λ)ην)], PM, Sch^{AbT} (ex.) on 15.27+, ApS 46.16ff., EM a2053+, [Eu I 170.2–3+], [Eu III 696.23, 697.2–3], also glossed at EGen a1365. A gloss to θίν' (with or without ἀλόε, 1.327), cf. θιν] εφ' αλοε = αἰγιαλόν in P. Colon. 2281.i.14, though it seems less likely, cannot be excluded. αἰγιαλόε is the expected gloss for θίε in the scholia and lexis. To judge from the estimated length of the gloss, a gloss to παρὰ θίν' (ἀλόε), as e.g. πλησίον (or ἐγγύς) τοῦ αἰγιαλοῦ with PM, is excluded, as well as a gloss to a long lemma including both παρὰ θίν' (ἀλόε) and ἀτρυγέτοιο.

13] . The trace is too meagre to allow an identification of the lemma. To judge from other papyri, one would expect a gloss to κλιεία (1.328) or κλιείη (1.329) (cf. P. Lit. Palau Rib. 8.5.i.17, P. Strasb. inv. 33.iii.20, P. Hamb. 200.i.8, Bodl. MS. Gr. class. f 41(P) →10); γήθηεν (1.330) (cf. P. Strasb. inv. 33.vi.20, P. Amh. 18.vii.92 and PSI inv.1733v.4); or τὼ μὲν (1.331) (cf. P. Strasb. inv. 33.ix.7a).

14] θεντες. A gloss to either (i) ταρβήσαντε or (ii) αἰδομένω, both in 1.331. The former alternative is the likeliest, given that it is glossed in one other papyrus. Thus we could have had (i) φοβη]θέντες with P. Strasb. inv. 33.ix.5, D on 1.331, P, [EM 746.32–3]: φοβηθέντες, εὐλαβηθέντες [Hsch (Cyr) τ172]: δείσαντες PM. Cf. also D on 2.268, D on 4.388, D on 5.286+, D on 13.285, [Σ (Cyr) τ33], Ph 569.14, Su τ117, PsZo τ1715; or (ii) αἰδεε]θέντες with D on 1.331, PM, EGen a175: εὐλαβοῦμενοι P: [αἰχνομένω D on 5.531]. Cf. ApS 15.3–7 s.v. αἰδεῖσθαι.

15] . αν. Probably a gloss to ετήτην, i.e., ἔετη]σαν (1.332), as in D on 1.332 and 3.344, P, Hsch 01840: ἔετησαν τῆς ὀρμῆς PM. Cf. also D on 1.6, Sch^{bT} (ex.) on 1.6, Hsch (Cyr) δ1342, EM 270.53+, s.v. διαετήτην.

16] των. More likely ἀνηρώ]των than ἠρώ]των (in terms of space), a gloss to ἐρέοντο (1.332); see 4819 →2.

17] εαυτου. Probably a gloss to ἦεν (1.333); see 4819 →3. The papyrus could have had ταῖε] εαυτοῦ or ἰδίαε] εαυτοῦ.

18] .ειον. Gloss and lemma uncertain.

19] ερχεσθαι. Most probably a gloss to ἄσσαν ἴτ' (1.335). ἐγγύς ἔρχεσθε P. Strasb. inv. 33.ix.8

(l. -αι), Hsch α7800: εγγυ[υε ? P. Colon. 2281.i.3: ἐγγυς παραγίνεσθε D on 1.335, cf. Λ α764 ἄσσον ἴθι = ἐγγυς παραγίνου: ἐγγυς ἔλθετε P: πλησίον ἔλθετε PM. On ἄσσον and ἴτε, see 4819 →4 and 5 respectively. Thus, the parallels suggest ἐγγυ]ς ἔρχεσθαι (l. ἔρχεσθε).

20] . εω. Probably ὕμειν (l. ὑμῖν), glossing εφῶν (1.336). The majority reading, preferred by editors, is εφῶι; εφῶν is transmitted by some papyri (p377, p379 p771), Apollonius Dyscolus and the manuscript Λ (super lineam), and was favoured by Zenodotus. We prefer to take εφῶν as the lemma since it is glossed as ὑμῖν in D on 4.341 and 16.556, Sch^T (ex.) on 17.451, Sch^Λ (Ariston.) on 23.408+, Sch^Λ (Ariston.) on 23.411, Hsch σ2945+, Eu I 748.28. On the other hand, εφῶι is glossed as ὑμείσ οἱ δύο ἢ ὑμᾶς τοὺς δύο in ApS 147.14: ὑμᾶς, D on 1.336 and 15.146, Sch^T (ex.) on 1.336, Hsch ο1472, P, PM.

If we assume that the glosses were vertically aligned, 4–6 letters must have been lost in the break. If this gloss was aligned with the others, 2–4 letters will have been lost before ὕμειν. Perhaps the lemma was ὁ εφῶν, glossed as ὁς ὕμειν; ὁ is glossed as ὁς in D on 1.336, ApS 118.1–2, Hsch ο1 and ο1472, P, PM.

Cols. ii–iii

1 (1.340) αὔτε. αὔτε is glossed in D on 1.340, 1.206, 1.237, 1.404, 1.578, 2.105, 2.107, 3.121, 3.203, 3.225, 3.241, 4.10, 4.132, 5.224, Λ α824U, Σ^b (α) = Σ (Cyr) α1102, EpH ii 77, Hsch (Cyr) α8376, Σ^b 165.8, Ph α3201, Su α4467, EGen α1417, EGud 235.17 and 533.10–12, PsZo α349.

2 (1.341) χρεῖω. χρεῖώ. See 4819 →9.

3 (1.341) αεικεα. ἀεικέα. See 4819 →10.

4 (1.342) ολοιησι. ὀλοιῆσι is glossed in P. Colon. 2281.i.8, P. Berol. 10577.6, D on 1.342 (ὀλοιῆσι), Hsch (Cyr) ο603, [EM 622.25], [Eu I 178.31], [PsZo ο1443], [PsZo ο1444]. All papyri have ολοιησι, whereas most medieval manuscripts omit ι (ὀλοῆσι), to the detriment of the metre.

5 (1.342) θυει. θύει is glossed in P. Strash. inv. 33.ix.10b, P. Colon. 2281.i.9, D on 1.342, [21.234=21.324], [Sch^T (ex.) on 15.500], [ApS 88.25], Hsch θ826, [Or 73.17, 73.20, 74.20], [Ph θ244], [Su θ596], [EGen α147, θ266], [EM α391, 185.39, 391.24, 457.19, 457.29, 457.56, 458.55, 459.16–17, 459.23, 459.27, 823.43], [EGud 266.36–7, 266.55, 267.7, 267.13, 574.26, 581.15], [Eu I 178.30, I 264.21–2, in Od. I 58.28], [PsZo α61, ε905, θ1060, θ1061, θ1064, ι135].

The papyrus has θύει with all the papyri and medieval codices attesting Il. 1.342, and not θυίει, given by the best codices in Il. 11.188, 16.699, 21.234, 21.324, 22.272 and 23.230; see Lexikon des frühgriechischen Epos s.v., and West, Homeri Ilias i p. xxxi (praef. iii 10).

6–7 (1.343) προσω [|. [: πρόσω |. Since there is no lemma below πρόσω, but a trace from the initial letter at the column of glosses in 7, the gloss to πρόσω could be a long one as in 13–14, perhaps including a gloss to ὀπίσσω (1.343), which occurs in scholia minora to this line, even if it does not appear in the lemma. πρόσω is glossed as: ἔμπροσθε(ν) P. Strash. inv. 33.ix.11b, D on 13.291, Hsch (Cyr) ε5297, Hsch 7168, Σ^b 352.13, Ph 463.26, Su π2770, EM 691.3, EGud 481.53, Eu III 472.20, PsZo π1583, PsZo π1589: εἰς τὸ ἔμπροσθεν P. 8 (1.344 ?) .]οοι [|. The lemma was probably κόοι (l. κόοι), glossed as εῶοι, ὕγιει in 1.344 and 5.531: εεωσμένοι P: ἀζήμιοι PM: εωπήριοι ApS 143.31: [ἐμφανῆ καὶ εἴων καὶ ὀλόκληρον ApS 143.28]: εωπήριοι, ὕγειε, ὀλόκληροι, εωζόμενοι Hsch σ1335. The first trace of the gloss is compatible with c: ζ[ῶοι, ζ[ωπήριοι, ζ[εεωσμένοι or ζ[εωζόμενοι are possible.

9 (1.349)]ταρωθ[]ν φιλ[. The lemma presumably read ἐ]τάρωθ[ε]ν, but this word is not attested elsewhere. If we restore the gloss as φίλ[ων, ἐ]τάρωθ[ε]ν will be an error for ἐτάρων. We find ἐτάρων = φίλ[ων in D+ on 1.349, [Λ ε888U+], [EpH ii ε83], Eu in Od. I 424.24 and 30-1; cf. ἐταίροι = φίλοι ApS 78.8 (ἐτάρων = ἐταίρων P, PM).

The most likely restoration in 14 is ἀπὸ τῶν ἀφρ[ών, ἀπὸ τῶν ἀφρ[ιζόντων κυμάτων (cf. Eu II 399.23) would be too long to fit in the space.

4819. SCHOLIA MINORA TO ILLIAD I 332–41, 354–60

67 6B.11/N 3

7.9 × 9.5 cm

Third/fourth century

A fragment with writing on either side, apparently from a papyrus codex, though for such a small piece one cannot rule out the possibility that this is an opisthograph single sheet. It preserves glosses to Il. 1.332–41 on the → side, which would have been a right-hand page, and lemmata (with traces from two glosses) of Il. 1.354–60 on the ↓ side, a left-hand page. Lemmata and glosses are limited to one word; their arrangement is in two parallel columns separated by blank space of several letters. The piece is broken off at all sides. The left- and right-hand side margins are 2 and 3.1 cm respectively. The interlinear space amounts to c.0.5 cm. The column height is unknown. A rough estimate of the width of the page would yield a figure of c.16–17 cm, which would suggest the classification of our piece into Group 5 or 6 of papyrus codices (Turner, Typology 16–18).

Remains of documentary writing practice, in a large, slow and awkward hand, are visible running downwards across the fibres in the margins and the inter-columnar space of the text of the scholia on the → side. There are two lines in the right-hand margin; in the first, one reads Ἀὐρήλιος . . . [. . .]ων . . . ςθε[; in the second, one can make out ἐπιφαν[ς]τάτων. The latter would normally be part of a regnal or consular formula, the epithet being used for several Caesars, especially in the tetrarchic period (last time in 325). This should provide a terminus ante quem for the text of the scholia minora, which could have been written in the late third or early fourth century.

The text is written in an upright, medium-sized hand. Round (ε, ο, ω, μ, θ, ς) and angular (α, Δ, γ, κ) forms mix elegantly. Letters sometimes touch each other but without forming ligatures. Bilinearity is violated by ι, ρ, γ, φ. There is slight ornamentation in the form of curls on the extremities of many letters. Some shading is discernible in α, Δ, ρ, χ. β is written in two movements with squashed lower part; ε has a protruding middle stroke, and is made in two movements; θ is almost round; Δ rests on a long baseline and has its right-hand diagonal projecting beyond its left-hand one; γ has wide open prongs almost forming right angle; ρ has a big head, sometimes taking the form of a triangle; ω has all its strokes curved. The hand displays affinities with GBEBP 2a and *GMAW*² 70, both assigned with good reason to the early fourth century. A date in the late third century or the first half of the fourth would suit.

Diaeresis (organic) in ↓11 and apostrophe between the double consonants in →4 are the only lectional signs in evidence. The lemmata are arranged by order of their appearance in the Homeric text. They are usually given in normalized form (see e.g. ↓8, 11, 13), i.e., not as they appear in the text for the sake of metre, which is fairly common in scholia minora.

The glosses offered are normally (among) the expected ones, except for those in →1, 5, and 7, which are unique. Compared with the other published papyri with scholia minora on the same lines of the Iliad, our text appears richer in lemmata. Words such as προσεφώνεον, ἦσιν, μακάρων, ἔτιθεν, έλών, δακρυχέων, ἡμένη and ἀνέδν (→1, 3, 7; ↓2, 3, 5, 7, 10) are not glossed in the other papyri of scholia minora. For the remaining lemmata, which at least one other papyrus cites, the papyri generally agree, with three exceptions out of eleven (→5, where we have a new gloss; →8, where we have a gloss found in one of the two other papyrus glossaries covering this part; and →10, where the only other papyrus glossary at hand offers a different gloss). In one case (→7) the papyrus provides an explanation whose kernel occurs in the scholia maiora (bT), but which is attested more emphatically in later grammarians and lexica.

Apart from the papyri listed in the General Introduction, XXIV 2405 (R 009, S/W h13), assigned to the second/third century, contains scholia minora for parts of these lines.

1 πρ]ορειπov. Probably a gloss to προεφώνεον (1.332). προεφθέγγοντο D on 1.332, [2.22]: προεφώνησαν P: εφθέγγοντο PM: προσαγορεύει [Hsch (Cyr) π3937] = [PsZo π1588]. This lemma is not attested in any other papyrus with scholia minora covering these lines. If the penultimate letter is read as ε, which is less likely, then πρ]ορειπειν, glossing φώνησεν (1.333) (εβόησεν και ειπεν D on 1.333: προεφώνησεν P: εφώνησεν PM). κ]αι ειπειν glossing φώνησέν τε, as D on 3.181, is even less likely.

2 (1.332) ηρω]των. έρέοντο = ήρώτων. So P. Strasb. inv. 33.ix.3b, PM, Hsch (Cyr) ε5720, Λ ε730SU:]των probably for ηρωτων 4818 i 17: ανηρώτων D on 1.332: ήρώτησαν P: ανεπυθάνοντο Hsch 01573. Space favours ηρωτων rather than the longer ανηρωτων.

3 (1.333) εα[υ]των. ήειν = έαυτού. So D on 2.588, PM: αύτού D on 1.333, P: ταίc έαυτών Hsch (Cyr) η270: ιδίαιc αύτών Hsch η272: έν τῶ έαυτῶ EGud 249.37. Also glossed in 4818 i 17 as ταιc] εαυτου or ιδιαις] εαυτου. The papyrus is heavily abraded at this point, so that other possibilities, though unparalleled in other sources, cannot be excluded; e.g. ἐνὶ φρεσὶ (1.333) = ἐν [ε]αυτω.

4 (1.335) ἐγγύς. ἄσσον = ἐγγύς. So P. Strasb. inv. 33.ix.8, P. Colon. 2281.i.3, probably in 4818 i 19, D on 1.335 and 567, ApS 45.12, P, Hsch (Cyr) a7800+ and a7801, Λ a764U, Eu I 175.16–17 and II 263.14, EGen a1303+ = EM a1959, PsZo a328: πλησίον PM. Almost all the many witnesses agrees that ἄσσον (on the accent, see West, Homeri Ilias i p. xx), although it is in origin the comparative of ἄγχι, can in Homer mean no more than 'near', ἐγγύς (see Ebeling, Lexicon Homericum s.v.).

5 (1.335) παραγετε. ἴτ' = προάγετε. ερχεσθαι (l. ἔρχεσθε) P. Strasb. inv. 33.ix.8, 4818 i 19: παραγίνεσθε D on 335: ἔλθετε P, PM, Hsch a7801: πορεύεσθε Hsch ι1085 (on Eur. Bacch. 83): παραγίνου [Λ a764U]: δεῦτε ἢ ἀπέλθετε Su ι737.

The gloss is paralleled almost everywhere, with disagreement in some cases regarding the tense employed.

7 (1.339) αφθαρτων. μακάρων = ἀφθάρτων. The lemma has not been included in the other papyrus preserving scholia minora on this line, Apollonius Sophista and Lexeis Homerikai. Moreover, the gloss is not paralleled in identical form anywhere, but the idea contained in it is found in scholia maiora, grammarians and later etymologica. Cf. 4820. COMMENTARY ON ODYSSEY III 1-4

33 4B.82/G(18-20)a

6.9 × 15.4 cm

Second century
Plate VII

A fragment of a roll with parts of 25 lines from the upper part of a column, which could be the beginning of the roll; upper and left-hand margins are extant to 2 cm and 1 cm respectively. The text is written along the fibres and the back is blank. If the supplement proposed in 13-14 is correct (see n.), a line could have accommodated about 40 letters, which means that about one third of each line is lost. The column-height is unknown.

The text is written in a cursive hand of the second century. Its general impression is like XXXI 2536 = *GMAW*² 61 (datable to the second century), in particular the second and third hands, or Seider I 34 (138) and 35 (147). τ has its horizontal straight but also broken (17). The initial letters of each line are slightly enlarged.

Long lemmata (set in ekthesis) are separated from the following commentary by a space of about one letter and probably by a high dot placed before the commentary (see e.g. 16). This practice was perhaps in evidence throughout the commentary. Lemmata start a new line (1, 6, 16) and are set one letter to the left of the rest of the text. Paragraphi mark the end of a note (5, 15). As far as it can be reconstructed, the commentary proceeds systematically through the first four lines of Odyssey 3 with the possible exception of 12-15 (see 12 ff. n.). Space of one letter (8, 13, 14, 15, 23?) probably indicates punctuation. Corrections (9), cancellations (4?) and supralinear additions (7) were made by the same hand. Abbreviations of common type (by suspension) are used consistently, mainly in the quotations of the Homeric verses and in some common words, e.g. ὠκεανόν (2), οὐρανόν (13, 14), λέγει (9).

This hypomnema is conventional in type but fuller and more detailed than the existing scholia on the Odyssey, to which it does not correspond closely. There is some slight similarity in the comment on λίμνη, but apart from this, which is in an entry shared in scholia and lexica, there is little overlap with extant scholia. Other extant papyri with scholia on the Odyssey (with the exception of the abridged scholia preserved in the second-century papyrus edited by V. Bartoletti, ASNP 35 (1966) 1-4 = M-P³ 1210.4) show the same lack of correlation.

The text is highly scholarly: Aristarchean (2, 12) and Crateteian (3) beliefs are reflected, exegetical details are provided (7-11), further Homeric passages are adduced (7-8, 13-15), Greek poets (Sappho) are quoted (3). However, its extent does not make it possible to know for certain whether it was as elaborate and comprehensive as e.g. II 221 on Il. 21 (M-P³ 1205), VIII 1086 on Il. 2 (M-P³ 1173), or 1087 on Il. 7 (M-P³ 1186).

For other commentaries on the Odyssey see LIII 3710 introd. (p. 91; the papyrus cited there as P. Yale inv. 551 is now P. Yale II 128); add LXV 4453 (= M-P³ 1207.21), which appears more 'in the nature of a treatise', and 4821. See also F. Pontani, Sguardi su Ulisse (2005) 130-6.

We are indebted to Professor Pontani for comments and criticism on an earlier draft.

1 Od. 3.1 is the only passage in Homer where ὠκεανός is called λίμνη. Λίμνη is used for the sea in Il. 13.21, 13.32, 24.79, [Od. 5.337], and should refer to the sea or the ocean in Hes. Th. 365; see M. L. West, Hesiod Theogony (1966) 268-9. Cf. sch on Od. 3.3 λίμνην ὁ ποιητῆς πᾶν ὕδωρ φησί, νῦν δὲ τὸν ὠκεανόν; sch D on Od. 3.3 λίμνην νῦν τὸν ὠκεανόν; PsAp 324/246.1-2 ἡ θάλασσα (ε 337), ὁ ὠκεανός (γ 1) καὶ τὸ κύνηθεσ. Cf. also sch Λ on Il. 21.246b, ApS 108.28-30, Hsch λ1039, Su λ551, EM 566.12 ff.,

Eu on Od. I 108.11–15 (on 3.1) and on Il. III 632.10–12. With Od. 3.1 one may compare Aesch. fr. 192, where a lake is described as being near the Ocean (παρ' ὠκεανῶ), in which the Sun washes himself and his horses at the end of the day; see A. Lesky, Hermes 87 (1959) 31.

2 λέγει[ι ἀλλὰ καὶ ποταμόν. For the ocean called ποταμός, cf. Il. 14.246, 18.607, 20.7, Od. 11.158, 11.169, 11.639, 12.1, Hes. Th. 242, 959, Cypria PEG F 9.10. The belief that the ocean was a river was advanced by Aristarchus (cf. sch. A on Il. 20.7, A Ge 21.195, Od. 12.1) who took the Homeric passages literally; see M. Schmidt, Die Erklärungen zum Weltbild Homers (1976) 111–14.

λέγει docs not seem to have been abbreviated here (cf. below, 9 n.).

3 ἄλλοι δὲ ὦν καὶ Καπῶν τὸν ὠκ[εανόν. There is no reference to the ocean in the surviving fragments of Sappho, so that it is not easy to reconstruct what Sappho and others called the ocean, but this presumably differed from λίμνη and ποταμός. It is tempting to think that reference is made to a different interpretation of the ocean from that of Aristarchus, namely that of the Crateteans, who, under the influence of contemporary geographers and Stoics, considered the ocean as a sea (θάλασσα); cf. sch Ge on Il. 21.195, and see Schmidt, Die Erklärungen zum Weltbild Homers 115–17. Perhaps Crates himself or one of his circle quoted Sappho in support of this view. Thus in line 3 one may supply θάλασσαν λέγουσι or καλοῦσι or φασί. The extant scholia to the Homeric poems quote Sappho only rarely; cf. also sch A on Il. 3.219, A on 14.241, T on 20.234.

4 ταυ . . . ἀλλήλοισι υ[.]. [This could be part of an explanation given for the name for the ocean mentioned in 3 as sea. ταυ seems to be followed by λ corrected to Δ, and then by ι, which may have been crossed out. Two letters seem to have been lost in the gap, to the right of which a long oblique emerges, which may express another deletion (perhaps of a second Δ; another possibility is that the long oblique after the gap is a sign of abbreviation: Professor Parsons suggests the common symbol for ἐκτί(ν)). If a reading like τὰ ὕδ[λι]ατ' ἀλλήλοισι ἐν [α]υ[τῶ]ν κυμπίπτοντα λέγοντες is acceptable, perhaps we have a comment on the belief that all rivers and springs flow ultimately from the ocean; cf. Il. 21.195–7 with the commentary II 221 ix 1–25, noting also that Ocean (or the ocean) could be called Achelōios: G. B. D'Alessio, JHS 124 (2004) 16–37. The relation of the ocean to the various rivers through the exchange of water is an idea expressed also in Arist. Met. 354b16–17 and Hes. Th. 337–45, where all male children of the ocean are said to be rivers.

5 ὡς πρὸς τὴν ἡμετέραν φα[. Perhaps restore φα[ντασίαν, a term of frequent occurrence in the Homeric scholia; see J. Baar, Index zu den Ilias-Scholien (1961) 199.

6–7]ροις. ὅτι ἀμφοτέ]ροις would be satisfactory, with ἀμφοτέροις standing for both ἀθανάτοισι and θνητοῖσι βροτοῖσιν.

7–8 α . () ηυδον. Part of Il. 2.1–2 is probably quoted: θεοί τε καὶ ἀνέ(ρες) ἰπποκορυσταὶ ηυδον. The gist of the comment in 7–8 could be that gods too sleep at dusk and wake up at dawn, as mortals do; cf. sch bT on Il. 1.475 ἠέλιος κατέδν: ὄρος τοῦ κατὰ φύειν ὕπνου καὶ παρὰ θεοῖς καὶ παρὰ ἀνθρώποις ἠλίου δύσις, and 14.233.

ηυδον. The scribe seems to have first written ε, which he changed to η. Our papyrus is unique in witnessing ηυδον instead of ευδον; see West's apparatus. After ηυδον there is a space of one letter.

ἐπι τ . ν . ε . [. ἐπί may suggest that we have a comment on ἐπὶ ζεῖδωρον ἄρουραν (Od. 3.2), which could have been written in the lost part of 6. ζεῖδωρον receives plenty of notice in the scholia and the lexicographers, but there is no match with what we have here.

9 προβα() λεγ . () ἐπὸν κρύψη[. προβά(λλειν), προβά(λλεσθαι), or προβα(ίνειν), then λέγει(ι), or λέγει(ται), or λέγο(υσι). After that, (sc. ὁ ἠλιος) ἐπὸν κρύψη [τὴν σελήνην / τοὺς ἀστέραις / τὰ ἄστρα. There is no correspondence with the sch D and lexica. The idea of the moon and/or the stars being hidden by the sun is common in ancient literature and astrological treatises; cf. e.g. Plut. Coniug. Prae. 139c.1f., Aet. Rom. 269c.3f., De Iside et Osiride 372d.9f., sch on E. Hipp. 851.2f., Jo. Chrys. PG 57.64.31, Theo. Sm. 136.10f., 137.16f., Geminus, Elementa Astronomiae 13.1–5.

10–11 οὔτως οἱ ἀρχαῖοι αὐτ[]μηδὲ παρὰ τοῖς θεοῖς[. The point may be that the sun is not thought of as resting/living either among the mortals or among the immortals; e.g. οὐτως οἱ ἀρχαῖοι αὐτ[όν] (sc. τὸν ἥλιον) μῆ / μῆδὲ παρὰ τοῖς θνητοῖς / ἀνθρώποις] μῆδὲ παρὰ τοῖς θεοῖς [ἀεὶ μένει νομίζουσι / φασί.

12ff. Apparently these lines comment on οὐρανὸν ἐς πολύχαλκον, the first hemistich of Od. 3.2, which should have appeared as a lemma before line 6; the diagonal stroke written in the left margin may relate to this — or it could mark the beginning of the comment on οὐρανὸν ἐς πολύχαλκον.

12 / . The inclined stroke occurs in literary papyri with various uses; see K. McNamce, Sigla and Select Marginalia (1992) 17–18.

ἔχουσι. The subject may be οἱ θεοί, or a relative referring to them, e.g. οἱ/οἷτινες.

τὸν ὑπὲρ γῆς [. One may supplement ἀέρα, according to Aristarchus' doctrine that it is the region of the air that is located below the αἰθήρ, and the latter is also called οὐρανός, cf. sch bT on Il. 15.192–3 πάντα τὸν ὑπὲρ γῆς ἀέρα τῷ Δίῳ φησι δοθῆναι, διὰ μὲν τῶν νεφελῶν τὸν φωτιζόμενον ἀέρα, ὅπερ ἔστιν ἀπὸ γῆς ἕως νεφελῶν, διὰ δὲ τοῦ αἰθέρος τὸν ὑπὲρ τὰ νέφη τόπον, ὃν καὶ οὐρανὸν ὀνομάζει, sch A on Il. 43.3, sch A on Il. 14.288, and see Schmidt, Die Erklärungen zum Weltbild Homers 75–105. Very tentatively one may restore 12 as: ἔχουσι καὶ τὸν ὑπὲρ γῆς [ἀέρα καὶ τὸν αἰθέρα ὃν φασι, which should mean that the gods have control over both regions of the air/sky.

13 καὶ χάλκεον οὐρα(νόν). Cf. Il. 17.425, Pi. Pyth. 10.27 and Nem. 6.3, Eu on Od. II 101.22–4 and on Il. III 144.19 and 186.12–14. Cf. also (Διὸς) χαλκοβατέες δῶ in Il. 1.426, 14.173, 21.438, 505, Od. 8.321.

οὐρα(νόν). Cf. 14. This abbreviation (by suspension) differs from those cited for the same word by McNamce, Abbreviations 74.

13–14 διος[| οὐρα(νόν) ἴκεν. Probably a citation of Il. 17.424–5 διὸς εἰδῆρειος δ' ὀρμαγδὸς χάλκεον / οὐρα(νόν) ἴκε, the only passage in Homer where the οὐρανός is called χάλκεος.

14–15 κατὰ τὸ ἰσχυρ[| καὶ χρυσοῦν λέγει. The gist of this part could be deduced from the scholia on Il. 4.2 (χρυσεῖω ἐν διαπέδω): sch A πῶς τὸν οὐρανὸν πολύχαλκον λέγει καὶ πάλιν χρυσοῦν, ὡς τὸ χρυσεῖω ἐν διαπέδω; ἰστέον δὲ . . . ὅταν δὲ καλόν, χρυσοῦν; sch Ge ἰστέον ὅτι ὅταν μὲν στερεὸν τὸν οὐρανόν φησι, πολύχαλκον λέγει, ὅταν δὲ λαμπρὸν χρυσοῦν; sch D χρυσεῖω ἐν διαπέδω ἀντὶ τοῦ ἐν τῷ κεχρυσωμένῳ καὶ καλῷ ἐδάφει/οἴκῳ. ἰστέον οὖν ὅτι ὅταν μὲν στερεὸν λέγειν βούληται, τότε πολύχαλκόν φησιν, ὅταν δὲ καλόν χρυσοῦν λέγει τὸν οὐρανόν; cf. also sch Pind. Pyth. X.42a, Eu on Il. I 687.16f., and II 523.11–524.10. Here too the commentator seems to refer to both qualities of the sky, the strength/solidity (ἰσχυρόν as synonym of στερεόν) and brightness. One could restore κατὰ τὸ ἰσχυρ[υρόν χάλκεον, κατὰ δὲ τὸ λαμπρόν] καὶ χρυσοῦν λέγει (χάλκεον may have been omitted, or we could have had πολύχαλκον, as in the scholia on Il. 4.2; σιδῆρειον, as in Od. 15.329 [17.565], is a less likely possibility). If so, καὶ in 15 would be responsive (Denniston, Greek Particles 293f.).

15 λέγει probably refers to Homer (cf. 2, 9). A supplement such as ἄλλος δέ in 14 would be awkward in juxtaposition with οἱ δέ (15). οἱ δέ could start a different explanation of the χάλκεον οὐρανόν, and F. Pontani suggested that it could be possibly related to sound, e.g. οἱ δέ χ[άλκεον διὰ τὸν ἦχον; cf. Eu. on Il. IV 74.4f.

17 .].η Πύλος ἕτερος μ. [. This line may refer to the location, disputed already in antiquity, of Nestor's Pylos, summed up in the ancient riddle ἔστι Πύλος πρὸ Πύλοιο. Πύλος γε μὲν ἔστι καὶ ἄλλος, recorded in Ar. Eq. 1059, Plut. De vitando aere alieno 829c, Strab. 3.7.8, Steph. Eth. 377.10, and elsewhere. There are three candidates: Messenia, Triphylia, and Elis; see further A. Heubeck, S. West, J. B. Hainsworth, A Commentary on Homer's Odyssey i (1988) 159–60. Alternatively, this line may have included a grammatical observation on the fact that Pylos in Homer is both feminine and masculine; see Steph. Eth. 540.4, and Eu on Il. I 458.2–6.

21 Νηλέως κ[. This may be a gloss to Νηληϊός) ἐϋ(κτίμενον), e.g. Νηλέως κ[αλῶς ἐκτικμένον (cf. sch D on Il. 2.501 and 570), or κ[αλῶς οἰκούμενον (cf. sch on Thuc. 3.104.3, and Eu on Il. IV 454.3), or κ[αλῶς κατεσκευασμένον; cf. sch D on Il. 5.543. πτολίεθρον could have also been glossed.

22 επιμ[. Perhaps a form of ἐπιμέλεια or ἐπιμέλομαι/ἐπιμελοῦμαι.

23] υεν. Perhaps εἴφυν, though φ is difficult.

24] ηπ[.]ν. ἦπ[ιο]ν or γήπ[ιο]ν.

4821. COMMENTARY ON ODYSSEY XV

104/164(a)

7.7 × 12.3 cm

Later second century
Plate VII

Remains of the upper part of a column from a roll. The writing runs parallel to the fibres; the back is blank. Written width c.6.2 cm; the full written height cannot be estimated, but the twenty preserved lines cover 9 cm. Top margin as preserved is 3.3 cm and the right intercolumnium at least 1.2 cm. What remains of the left intercolumnium amounts to 0.3 cm.

The text is written in tiny capitals, upright or slightly backward-sloping, rounded and regular, slowly made and sometimes equipped with ornamental finals. Bilinearity is generally observed, violated only in the case of ζ (above), ρ (below) and φ and ψ (above and below). The letters bear a general resemblance to those of the London Hyperides (GLH 13b) and also of XLII 3010 (Narrative about Iolaus) both assigned to the second century, but is more slanting and ornamented, thus probably later in the century. For a dated parallel, see V 842 Hellenica Oxyrhynchia (GLH 17b) on the verso of a document (VI 918) probably from the reign of Antoninus Pius or Marcus Aurelius.

There are no accents or breathings. Punctuation is apparently not used, except to mark a new lemma (dicolon in 2). Elision is effected but not marked both in Homeric quotations (7) and in the commentary (15). δέ in 12 should probably not be regarded as an instance of scriptio plena, as there it may fill space at line-end. There is no opportunity to observe whether or not iota adscript was written (for a possible exception see the palaeographical apparatus on 11). The scribe employed abbreviation at least once (13).

A dicolon in 2 marks the beginning of a new lemma (the dicolon stands high in the line, inserted in a normal letter-space, with the first letter of the lemma slightly enlarged). Lemmata, when they begin a line, are put in ccthesis (Od. 15.90 and 15.91 occupying ll. 7–8 and 10–11 respectively); for a possible accompanying paragraphos see 7 n. In the single case where a lemma starts at the middle of a line (Od. 15.83 in l. 2), we may assume that, as in other commentaries, the line following is not made to project. All three preserved lemmata consist of whole verses and not parts thereof.

The text has been corrected by the same hand in three places (2, 3, 12). An oblique stroke is always drawn through the mistaken letter. In 3 a dot is added above the letter and in 12 the suprascript α is meant to replace the deleted ϵ .

The passage commented on is Od. 15.78–91. Telemachus has asked that Menelaus allow him to return to Ithaca immediately (64–6). The last part of Menelaus' answer (78–85) consists of an untimely proposal to him for their going together on a journey 'through Hellas and mid-Argos'. Telemachus stresses that it is urgent for him to go back home (87–91). The commentary includes a discussion on the correct form of a verb in syncope (2–5), an aesthetic observation not known from elsewhere (7–9), and reports of two atheteses known also from the mediievally transmitted scholia (1–2 and 11 ff.). The comment on the athetesis of Od. 15.91 reveals a dispute among ancient scholars. No new readings of the text of the Odyssey are attested either in the lemmata or in the explanations themselves (cf. 2 n.).

For published reports of the medieval tradition we have had to rely largely on G. Dindorf, Scholia Graeca in Homeri Odysseam ii (Oxford 1855) 607. Some of the material in this papyrus (1, 2–6, 10 ff.) is repeated, with the fluidity expected of scholia, in sch. Od. 15.78, 83 and 91, preserved in Codex Harleianus Musei Britannici 5674 (H); another part is not (ll. 7–9). On the other hand, H contains things absent from the papyrus (e.g. part of sch. Od. 15.78, sch. Od. 15.81, 90). It may be concluded that 4821 and H (as well as other manuscripts, and Ap. Soph.) are drawing on the same tradition, although the compiler of 4821 probably found this material in a fuller and less corrupt state (see below, 4–5 n., 10–17 n.). For other papyrus commentaries on the Odyssey see above 4820 introd. A certain degree of continuity between previously published papyrus commentaries on the first half of the Odyssey and the mediievally transmitted scholia has already been posited by F. Pontani, Sguardi su Ulisse (2005) 130–6 (on e.g. PSI XV 1464), and this is now confirmed for the second part of the poem.

We are indebted to Professor Pontani for improvements on an earlier draft, and for confirmation that the relevant scholia in Dindorf's edition are also to be read in MSS M (Marc. gr. 613) and X (Vind. phil. gr. 133).

Od. 15.83

Od. 15.91

(1) . . . these eight verses [Od. 15.78–85] were athetized . . . (2–6) . . . [15.83] “αὐτως ἀπέμψει δώσει δέ τι ἔν γε φέρεσθαι” (“[nor will anyone] send us empty-handed, but will give us some one thing at least to bear with us”): [the verse was marked], because ἀπέμψει should be written with double-pi; for it is derived from ἀποπέμψει. In fact, (or: even) if it is not by Homer, . . . it is at least consistent . . . (7–9) [15.90] “μὴ πατέρ' ἀντίθειον διζήμενος αὐτὸς ὄλωμαι” (“I am afraid that in seeking my godlike father I may be lost myself”): “even” is missing (i.e. in the phrase “I may be lost myself”); understand: “I even may be lost myself”; otherwise the speech is unemotional. (10–12) [15.91] “ἦ τί μοι ἐκ μεγάρων κειμήλιον ἐςθλὸν ὄληται” (“or have some noble treasure lost from my palace”): it was athetized, because it depicts his (i.e. Telemachus) character as excessively greedy for gain. Aristophanes understood the phrase “αὐτὸς ὄλωμαι” (“I may be lost myself”) to mean “πᾶς μου ὁ βίος ἀπόληται” (“that my entire livelihood may be lost”). [He says that] someone, having failed to understand this, [added] the verse [15.91] “ἦ τί μοι ἐκ μεγάρων κειμήλιον ἐςθλὸν ὄληται” (“or have some noble treasure lost from my palace”).²

1–2 ἤθετο]ὕντο is restored from sch. H Od. 15.78, which also has οἱ ἦ' (sc. ἐπίχοι) as subject. The mention of athetesis of 15.78–85 is preserved in MS H (Professor Pontani notes that the same lines are marked with obelis in MS M). Cf. the testimony collected by O. Carnuth for these verses for Aristonicus (Aristonici περὶ σημείων Ὀδυσσεύας reliquiae emendatiores, Leipzig 1869, 133), although Aristonicus is not mentioned by name in these. Whether the athetesis had older authority is uncertain: the other fragments ascribed to Aristonicus mention only Zenodotus or Aristophanes as antecedents. For

Aristarchus as a possible source for Aristonicus, see R. Pfeiffer, History of Classical Scholarship i (Oxford 1968) 214. After the numeral ἡ we would expect an expansion of the grounds for this athetesis. Two possibilities may be noted. In his note on Od. 15.80 Eustathius (1775.5–6) recognizes that Menelaus' proposal is ill-timed: καὶ αὐτὸς μὲν [= Menelaus] οὕτω παρατείνει τὸν καιρόν. ὁ δὲ Τηλέμαχος, ὡς καὶ προερρέθη, ταχὺ ἀπελθεῖν ἔεται. Another, perhaps better, line of approach is connected to the idea provided by sch. Od. 15.85 καὶ ταῦτα ἀπρεπῆ διδάσκεισθαι πρὸς Μενελάου τὸν Τηλέμαχον τὸ ἀπαιτεῖν. Menelaus here proposes that Telemachus and himself should engage in a journey mainly for the sake of profit. Such conduct, however, would make them look like beggars and is therefore unacceptable for Homeric heroes: see 10–17 n. below. In this case the ground for the deletion would clearly be an instance of applying the text-critical principle of ἀπρέπεια. In 1–2 we should perhaps look for a form of ἐπαιτεῖν (a synonym for ἀπαιτεῖν). F. Blass, Die Interpolationen der Odyssee (Halle 1904) 160, anticipated by C. G. Cobet, Mnemosyne 1 (1873) 6 = Miscellanea critica (Leiden 1876) 22, suggested emending ἀπαιτεῖν to ἐπαιτεῖν in the scholion. Professor Pontani suggests a continuation like ἐπαι|[τεῖν γὰρ πῶς ἂν φῆς]αις; 'Because, how could you say that he should become a beggar?'

2]αις: αὐτως. The scribe has connected the final letter of the preceding explanation to the dicolon (positioned narrowly in the letter-space), before beginning the quotation of Od. 15.83 by enlarging the initial letter of αὐτως, the first word of the lemma. The scribe's practice, however, seems different in 6 and 10, where he quotes Od. 15.90 and 91 in new lines set in ecthesis. At the end of 2 he cancelled the letter π. One might hypothesise that he intended to divide ἀμπέμφει as ἀμπ-έμφει, against the rules, but then thought better of it, and deleted π from where he had put it and wrote -πέμφει on the next line. On the other hand (as Professor Pontani points out), ἀππέμφει is the theoretical form that the scholion wants to restore, so that the deleted π could be the remnant of an attempted correction, or of an earlier reading along the lines suggested by the scholion.

3]αις[ε]. Perhaps ταις was written in error for ται under the influence of ταις in Od. 15.82.

4–5 ἀπο|πέμφει. The matter under discussion is the correct form the verb ἀποπέμφει should take when subjected to syncope. Two different views were put forward in antiquity: Ap. Soph. 40.27 s.v. ἀπέμφει· κατὰ συγκοπήν, ἀποπέμφει, and sch. Od. 15.83 ἀμπέμφει διὰ τοῦ μ. ἔστι γὰρ ἀποπέμφει τὸ τέλειον. The latter view is false: ἀπέμφει would stem from ἀναπέμφει, not ἀποπέμφει. The false connection of ἀμπέμφει with ἀποπέμφει must have arisen in a situation identical to that of a note in P. Amh. 18 on Od. 15. In iv 51 we read the correct pair ἀμπέ[μφ]αι ἀναπέμφαι. However, ἀπο was added above ἀνα as an 'emendation' or a variant. In 4821, δνεῖν leads one to suppose that 4 could accommodate something like ὄ]τ[ι ε]ὐν δνεῖν [ππ· ἔ]στι γὰρ etc. In this context ὄτι would explain the presence of a critical symbol against Od. 15.83, which would attract attention to the false formation of ἀπέμφει. If this is correct, the papyrus would confirm Dindorf's correction of the scholion (in the apparatus on p. 607 of his edition), as approved by A. Ludwich, Aristarchs Homerische Textkritik i (Leipzig 1884) 611; already Dindorf had adduced the parallel with Ap. Soph. 40.27 as pointing in this direction.

5–6 After arguing for ἀππέμφει instead of ἀμπέμφει, the commentator may be answering a possible objection, i.e., that ἀππέμφει is not Homeric, arguing that it is at least analogous to ἀποπέμφει. For an example of discussion of whether or not a particular word is Homeric, see sch. Il. 9.700a2 ἀγνηορίησιν ἐνήκας· τινὲς "ἀνήκας". καὶ ἔστιν Ὀμήρου "ἄφρονα τοῦτον ἀνήκαν" (Il. 5.761). Another line of approach, suggested by Professor Pontani and adopted in the translation, would be to take this as referring back to the previously mentioned athetesis of Od. 15.83, so that the understood subject would be ὁ στίχος: 'Indeed, if it (sc. the line) is not by Homer . . .', or (taking καί directly with εἶ): 'And even if the line is not by Homer . . .'. ἀνάλογον should be taken, in the same sense as ἀναλογία in the Homeric scholia, to refer to consistency of linguistic forms. It would be tempting to read a form of φυλάσσω in 6 ('. . . it must at least keep the consistency', or '. . . one must keep the consistency'), but we have not found a reading that suites the space or the traces.

7 It is difficult to tell whether the short horizontal above the line is the bottom of the descender of rho from the previous line curving sharply to the right (as it does c.g. in 10, 11, 12), or the right end of a long paragraphos, marking the beginning of a new lemma, as in other papyrus commentaries of this kind. The former is perhaps more likely, given the distance the trace stands into the line, together with the coherence of the angle with the remains of the descender of rho.

8 καί was omitted by haplography. Its (understood) omission is sometimes noted by ancient commentators, e.g. sch. Od. 13.72, sch. Il. 2.353c, 3.387a, 8.213c, 13.362b, 14.170b, 24.111; at sch. Il. 3.387a and 24.111 the desiderated καί would be (as here) ‘intensivum’, i.e. in the sense ‘also’, ‘even’, ‘too’. The commentator seems to be keeping very close to the tenor of the text; he has noticed that if Telemachus perishes, this will be the second bereavement in his family, the first being that of Odysseus. He suggests that we should mentally supply this dimension by understanding καί before αὐτός; otherwise the tone of Telemachus’ remark will be unemotional. It may be noted that MS H mentions a different ‘omission’ in this line, but similarly making Telemachus express special concern for himself, namely that of ‘δέδοικα’, as stated in the scholion on Od. 15.90: ἔξωθεν προσληπτέον τὸ δέδοικα.

9 ἀπαθής: not usually applied to language or a speech in the scholia. At sch. Il. 17.238–45a¹, a² it is said of a man, not of Homer’s or someone’s style of speaking. The significance the ancient commentators of Homer attached to πάθος as a feature of his epics is brought out by J. Griffin, CQ 29 (1976) 161–87.

10–17 In these lines the papyrus gives a much longer version of sch. Od. 15.91 than is preserved in the medieval MSS. At the beginning, the text notes the athetesis of Od. 15.91 and then gives the reason for it: this verse depicts Telemachus’ character as excessively greedy. Then from 12 (ὁ δὲ . . .) a new section starts which (if the beginning of 13 is rightly reconstructed; see below 13 n.) cites Aristophanes’ understanding of αὐτὸς ὄλωμαι in Od. 15.90. Aristophanes took this phrase to mean (13–14 ἦκου[(ε)? see below] πᾶς μου ὁ βίος ἀπόληται, ‘my entire livelihood may be lost’. Finally, from 15 the text is about someone who failed to understand (ἀγνοήσαντα) this, and for this reason did something. On the basis of sch. Od. 15.91, ἀντὶ τοῦ τὸν βίον μου ἀπολέσῃ. τοῦτο δὲ ἀγνοήσαντες προσέειμαν τὸν (τοῖς H: corr. Cobet) ἐξῆς· ὃ ἔστι μικρολόγου, ὡς Ἀριστοφάνης φησί, we may formulate a hypothesis that may restore some unity to the three sections of the papyrus’ note. What the person who failed to understand v. 90 in this sense did was, according to the mediaeval scholion, to interpolate v. 91: if v. 90 had been understood in this way, there would have been no need for interpolation, because this sense is perfectly in line with that of the previous verses, namely Od. 15. 88–9: . . . οὐ γὰρ ὄπισθεν / οὐρον ἰὼν κατέλειπον ἐπὶ κτεάτεσσιν ἐμοῖσι / μὴ πατέρ’ ἀντίθειον διζήμενος αὐτὸς ὄλωμαι, ‘I did not leave behind me, when I went, anyone to watch over my property. I am afraid that in seeking my godlike father my entire livelihood may be lost’.

How then did the interpolator understand v. 90 according to the scholiast or Aristophanes himself? It seems certain that the interpolator interpreted αὐτὸς ὄλωμαι in the most obvious way, i.e. in reference to Telemachus’ death, as ‘[I am afraid that in seeking my godlike father] I may be lost myself’. This interpretation causes v. 90 to become an illogical and inconsistent continuation of vv. 88–9. The interpolator added v. 91 (= ‘or some noble treasure may be lost from my palace’) in an attempt to link the sense to that of vv. 88–9 and thus diminish the inconsistency. However, the verse did not succeed in concealing its nature as interpolation, for its content (imputing as it does φιλοκέρδεια, μικρολογία) was against the assumed Homeric code of values. Thus it was athetized and the correct interpretation of v. 90 was advanced (by Aristophanes) to show that the sense of this portion of the text does not require any kind of improvement. If this line of thought is correct, we should note that Dindorf should have ascribed the H-scholion to Od. 15.90, not 91. We can then observe that the papyrus’ πᾶς μου ὁ βίος ἀπόληται, which is syntactically equivalent to αὐτὸς ὄλωμαι, degenerated into τὸν βίον μου ἀπολέσῃ.

13 *Ἀριστ]*οφά(νης) suggests itself (the phi is not raised, and the ink above and to the right is consistent with the bottom and tail of a suprascript alpha). For the abbreviation see K. McNamee, Abbreviations in Greek Literary Papyri and Ostraca (BASP Suppl. 3: 1981) 10.

13-14 Either ἤκου|[εν or ἤκου|[εν; for the use of the imperfect in such a case cf. e.g. sch. Il. 16.748b, although the present certainly would be the normal and expected tense. Here ἀκούειν has no doubt the meaning of intelligere. After the verb we may expect οὔτω (cf. sch. Il. 23.296c) or, as Professor Pontani suggests: ἀντὶ τοῦ “πᾶς κτλ. The former, however, is too short for the space, while the traces make it impossible to read τοῦ (or one of its abbreviations) before πᾶς. Perhaps ἤκου|[εν ἀ]ντὶ (τοῦ) “πᾶς κτλ. could be postulated here.

15-17 A plausible reconstruction of these lines might be something like

[ται τοῦ]το δ' ἀγνοήσαντά τινά
[φῆσιν ὑποτά]ξαι τὸν “ἢ τί μο[ι εἶ]ς [με-] [γάρων κει]μήλιον [έσθ]λ[ὸν ὄληται”].

The subject of φησί, which governs the accusative and infinitive construction, is probably Aristophanes. Who the anonymous persons criticized might be (whether a scholar or, for example, a rhapsode), is uncertain. Zenodotus is sometimes said to ὑποτάσσειν verses and is often accused of ignorance (see e.g. sch. Il. 3.334-5a, 5.807, 13.808a, 14.136a), but if he were criticized here, we would expect him to be named. For quotation of a verse beginning with τὸν alone (without στιχόν), cf. sch. Il. 2.668 διὸ προσέθηκε τὸν “ἐκ Διός, ὃς τε θεοῖσι καὶ ἀνθρώποισιν ἀνάσσει” [Il. 2.669]. Other verse interpolations due to misunderstanding are mentioned e.g. in sch. Od. 16.99 and sch. Il. 1.474a.

18]δεπασα. [admits of a number of different articulations, among them]δὲ πᾶς ἀ. [(a slightly altered repetition of πᾶς μου ὁ βίος ἀπόληται?). Professor Pontani suggests a possible correspondence with Od. 15.102 δέπας (λάβεν) ἀμφικύπελλον; cf. 120 (with κειμήλια mentioned in the previous line (101), as in Od. 15.91, subject of the present note).

19],ριδ[. πα]τρίδ- (Od. 15.129 σὴν ἐς πατρίδα γαῖαν) appears to be excluded by the trace before ρ. Alternatives such as γ]ᾶρ ἰδ[- or μέ]χρη δ[- might be considered among others.

4822. DECLARATION OF SHEEP

11.5 × 31.8 cm

30 January 3 BC
Plate X

This declaration belongs to the first of the three chronologically successive groups into which S. Avogadro, Aegyptus 15 (1935) 168–9, divided such documents. In this first period, which runs until the reign of Claudius, one declaration should have been made annually in late Tybi or early Mecheir (January–February). Only the adult animals were declared, while the young, not subject to taxation, were only mentioned as followers of the flock. Numerous such documents have been published, only three of which predate 4822: P. Oxy. Hels. 8 (9 BC), P. IFAO I 5 (Oxy.; 8/7 BC), and BGU XVI 2586 (Heracl.; 5 BC); cf. also 4823. For a list of livestock declarations, see W. Habermann, ‘Die Deklarationen von Kleinvieh im römischen Ägypten: Quantitative Aspekte’, in P. Herz, G. Waldherr (eds.), Landwirtschaft im Imperium Romanum (St. Katharinen 2001) 97–100; to the list add P. NYU II 12, ed. ZPE 136 (2001) 127–8 (20/21), while P. Hamb. I 34 = SB XXIV 16413 and ZPE 106 (1995) 214 = SB XXII 15780. The earlier literature on the issue is collected by B. Kramer on P. Mich. XVIII 782 (pp. 197–8); add now T. Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber und die Gauverwaltung i (München/Leipzig 2002) 213–35 (219–25 for the Oxyrhynchite nome).

This declaration is the oldest of its kind to preserve the names and titles of the officials to whom it is addressed: the strategus (Diogenes; the earliest known strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome), the royal scribe (Dionysius; new) and a toparch. The involvement of the royal scribe in the exercise at such an early date was not known (see further 1 n., para. 2). In the other Oxyrhynchite livestock declarations of the reign of Augustus (P. Oxy. Hels. 8; P. IFAO I 5; P. Berl. Möller 7 = SB IV 7344 = CPJ II 412 of 8/9), the upper part of the document is lost. In P. IFAO I 5 the lower part of the papyrus with the signatures is also lost, while in P. Oxy. Hels. 8 only the lower part is preserved but is so damaged that the identities of the three signing officials are not known. As has been observed (P. Oxy. Hels. 8 introd.), the convention up to AD 60 is to include only one signature in the declarations, which, when verifiable, is that of the toparch, even if they are addressed to the strategus of the nome. Until the same date the returns that preserve the initial part are all addressed to a single official (mostly the strategus, less often the toparch), while from the reign of Nero they were also addressed to more than one official; see C. Balconi, Aegyptus 64 (1984) 37–8, 45, and Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber 219–20, 222–5. In 4822 we have two signatures, added, it seems, by agents of the strategus and the royal scribe; the toparch did not sign.

We may ask whether this was the original declaration, which was to be kept in the state archives, or a copy to be returned to the declarant. According to Avogadro, Aegyptus 15 (1935) 148–9, the decisive point is the address. The documents to be kept in the archives are addressed to a single official, while an address to a plurality of officers identifies the declarant's copy; Balconi, Aegyptus 64 (1984) 42, 45, has argued that the presence or absence of signatures is not conclusive. In this case, since there is a multiple address, signatures, and no number of the τόμος συγκολλησίμιος (Balconi, ibid.), we must have the copy returned to the declarant.

The lower margin measures 12.8 cm. There is a sheet-join down the middle of the document. The papyrus seems to have been folded in half and then three times lengthwise. The back is blank.

‘To Diogenes, strategus, and Dionysius, royal scribe, and Apollonius, toparch, from Chenamus, daughter of Petron. I register for the current 27th year of Caesar the twenty sheep I own, total 20 sheep, and the lambs that follow them, which will pasture in the neighbourhood of Paimis in the western toparchy and throughout the entire nome, mixed with the sheep of my husband Thonis son of Patoiphis, having as shepherd Leucadius son of Sosibius; I shall also pay the proper tax upon them. Farewell.'

(2nd hand) 'I(?), . . . , agent of Diogenes, strategus, have registered twenty sheep, total 20 sheep. Year 27 of Caesar, Mecheir 5.'

(3rd hand) 'I(?), agent of Dionysius, royal scribe, have entered (and?) registered twenty sheep, total 20 sheep. Year 27 of Caesar, Mecheir 5.'

1 Διογένει ζτ[ρα]τηγῶι. Cf. 13. Diogenes is the earliest known strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome in the Roman period; his next known successor is Ἡρόστρατος, attested in LXVII 4552 1 (AD 16). See J. Whitehorne, *Strategi and Royal Scribes of Roman Egypt*² (Pap. Flor. XXXVII: Firenze 2006) 88.

Διονυσίῳ βα(σιλικῶι) γραμματεῖ. Cf. 15. Dionysius occurs only here. He is to be placed between Διοσκοουρίδης (P. Ryl. IV 603 introd.; 7 BC?) and Διοσκοουρίδης (IX 1182 2, 7, 13; AD 13); see Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber ii 1013–14, and Whitehorne, Strategi and Royal Scribes 159. 4822 provides the earliest firm evidence for the involvement of the royal scribe in the registration of livestock (see also below, 13–17 n., last para.). The next certain attestation of this official in this context is in XXXVIII 2851 of 60. See further Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber i 229–35.

1–2 Ἀπολλωνίῳ[ι] τοπάρχῃ. This official too is probably new, not to be identified with Apollonius, toparch of the lower toparchy, attested in P. Oxy. Hels. 9 (26), II 356 = SB XVI 12761 (27); see also LV 3778 37 (21) with n., and II 350 = SB XVI 12760.16 (23 or 25) with 3778 37 n. (= BL IX 292). For the role of the toparch in this exercise, see Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber i 221–2, 230–33.

3 Χ[εν]αμούτος. The name has occurred in LIX 3997 41 (III/IV) Χεναμούν (accusative), and very probably in P. Harris I 142.3 (Oxy.; 126), where Χενάμου may be read as Χεναμού[τος] (cited as Χεναμού[νις]? in B. W. Jones, J. E. G. Whitehorne Register of Oxyrhynchites 30 B.C. – A.D. 96 (ASP 25; Chico 1983) no. 876).

This declaration is filed by a woman who acts without a guardian, as in P. Princ. II 24 (21), II 350 = SB XVI 12760 (23 or 25), and II 355 = SB XVI 12763 (41). Contrast II 357 = SB XX 14095 ii (later I), where the woman declarant has a guardian, and LV 3782 3–4 (172/3), though there the declarant is a freedwoman.

5 πρόβατα ἑκκοσι. This is a bigger flock of sheep than most others that feature in Oxyrhynchite declarations of livestock, though small in comparison to Arsinoite flocks; see Balconi, Aegyptus 64 (1984) 42, and Habermann, 'Die Deklarationen von Kleinvieh' 81–6. This flock had no goats, which is not very common; contrast 4823 7.

6 τὸς ἐπακολουθούντας ἄρναι. On the translation of this expression, see Avogadro, Aegyptus 15 (1935) 171 n. 4; CPJ III 482.9–10 n.; P. Batav. 8.1–2 n.; BGU XVI 2578.12–13 n. The demotic Egyptian equivalent translates 'leurs petits qui sont sous leurs pattes, c'est à dire qui les suivent au pied' (P. Dion. p. 105). Renderings such as 'hinterher dazu geboren' (WB), or 'the offspring of the cattle' (LSJ), adopted in some editions, do not apply to texts that mention a definite number of young, e.g., P. Ross. Georg. II 13.3–4 (Oxy.; 54–68), PSI I 40.1 (Oxy.; 129), or P. Corn. 15.16–17 (Ars.; 129).

νεμῆσεται. This verb is standard in Oxyrhynchite declarations of this kind, the exception being XXXVIII 2850 11 (29), which has ἀναβήσονται; see Balconi, Aegyptus 65 (1985) 40.

7 Πάϊμιν τῆς πρὸς λίβα τοπαρχίας. On this village, see P. Pruneti, I centri abitati dell'Ossirinchite (Pap. Flor. IX: Firenze 1987) 130; Calderini and Daris, Dizionario iv 12, Suppl. ii 144, iii 117; additional references in LXIX 4739 6 (127), and I 202 = SB XXII 15364.13 (582).

8 ἐπιμεμειγμένα (l. ἐπιμεμι-). ἐπιμεμειγμένα is placed after δι' ὄλου τοῦ νομοῦ also in II 245 15 (26). For the different positions of this expression within the declaration formula, see Balconi, Aegyptus 64 (1984) 40.

9 Θώνιος τοῦ Πατοίφιος. The name Πάτοιφιος occurs only in two other papyri, both from

Oxyrhynchus and of about the same date as 4822. We find one Thonis alias Patoiphis, son of Thonis, in XII 1453 2–3 (30/29 BC), and a Patoiphis, who might be the father of one Thonis, in P. IFAO I 13.29 (23 BC) (cf. 28; see Jones and Whitehorne, Register no. 3148). 1453 7 refers to Petosiris, son of ‘the aforementioned Patoiphis’, which indicates that Thonis alias Patoiphis went by the name ‘Patoiphis’. It is eminently possible that 1453, P. IFAO I 13 and 4822 refer to members of the same family, and it is conceivable that the declarant in 4822 is the son of the man in 1453. (The suggestion to read Πατριφι{ο}ς and Πατριφι{ο}ς instead of Πατοῖφι{ο}ς and Πατοῖφι{ο}ς in 1453 3 and 7 respectively, made in ZPE 70 (1987) 116 = BL IX 186, and said to be supported by the photograph, may be ignored.)

10 διὰ νομέως. The same expression is found in all such texts except for P. Berl. Möller 7.18, which reads ὑπὸ νομέως (the reading of ed. pr. has kindly been confirmed on the original by Dr F. Reiter).

The name of the shepherd is usually followed by the names of the village and toparchy in which he is registered (λαογραφομένου/ἀναγραφομένου εἰς/περὶ + place name). The only exceptions from the Oxyrhynchite nome appear to be the later I 74 23–4 (116), PSI I 40.9 (129), and P. Princ. II 28.13–14 (219). P. J. Sijpesteijn, ZPE 70 (1987) 135–6, explains the absence of this detail on the grounds that in the first of these three documents the shepherd is the declarant himself, while in the other two the names of the shepherds are probably not given. None of Sijpesteijn’s arguments apply to our declaration, which is the only exception to this Oxyrhynchite ‘norm’ (perhaps because of its early date?).

11 τὸ καθήκον τέλος. This is a non-specific term for the ἐννόμιον, the pasture tax on sheep and goats; see LV 3778 35–6 n. and 3779 8 n., with references to further literature.

13–17 A brief discussion of signatures in first-century Oxyrhynchite declarations of livestock is offered in P. Oxy. Hels. 8 introd. The evidence has since increased, and it is worth listing it in a systematic fashion here (see also Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber i 221 n. 497, 223 nn. 505–6). These signatures display the following patterns:

- (1) Three signatures, damaged at the beginning; the second ends ἀναγέγρα(φα) πρόβατα κτλ.: P. Oxy. Hels. 8.3ff. (9 BC). It is conceivable that these three subscriptions are those of (the agents of) the strategus, the royal scribe and the toparch. (The alternatives suggested in the note cannot be confirmed.)
- (2) name - - ἀναγέγρα(φα) πρόβατα κτλ.: P. Berl. Möller 7.23ff. (AD 8/9). Ed. pr. read the following text:

Καλλικλῆς ὁ π(αρὰ) Ἀλ() σεση(μείωμαι) πρό(βατα) ἑκατὸν
 τεσσαράκοντα ἕξ αἶγας εἴκοσι ἕξ traces

Line 23 has given much difficulty; for a synopsis of earlier discussions, see Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber i 221 n. 496. Dr F. Reiter, who kindly checked the original at our request, cautiously proposes that the passage may be read as follows:

Καλλικλῆ... ἀναγέγρα(φα) πρόβ(ατα) ἑκατὸν τεσ[ς]αράκοντα ἕξ, αἶγας
 εἴκοσι ἕξ, (γίνονται) πρό(βατα) ρμς, [αἶγ(ε)ς κς.]

What comes before ἀναγέγρα(φα) remains unclear; none of the readings suggested previously seems possible (we have also seen a digital image).

- (3) name τοπάρχης ἀναγέγρα(φα) πρόβατα κτλ.: P. Princ. II 24.23, II 356 = SB XVI 12761.16 (27); possibly also II 352 = SB XVI 12762.12 (28). (When verifiable, the addressee is the strategus.)
- (4) name τοπάρχης σεσημείωμαι πρόβατα κτλ.: LV 3778 37 (21), II 245 23 (26), 351 = SB XII 10795.19

(28), XXXVIII 2850 24 (29) (in LV 3779 23 (20/21) ed. restores σεσημείωμαι, but ἀναγέγρα(φα) may also be considered). (When verifiable, the addressee is the strategus.)

- (5) (i) name ὁ παρὰ name στρατηγοῦ σεσημείωμαι; (ii) name ὁ παρὰ name βασιλικῆς γραμματέως σεσημείωμαι: XXXVIII 2851 21 ff. (60). (The declaration is also addressed καὶ τοῖς γράφουσι τὸν Ὀξύρυγχίτην.)
- (6) (i) name ὁ παρὰ name στρατηγοῦ σεσημείωμαι κτλ.; (ii) name ὁ παρὰ name βασιλικῆς γραμματέως σεσημείωμαι κτλ.; (iii) name ὁ παρὰ τῶν τὸν νομὸν γραφόντων: II 246 = W. Chr. 247.28 ff. (66).
- (7) (i) name στρατηγὸς διὰ name ὑπογραμματέως σεσημείωμαι κτλ.; (ii) name βασιλικὸς γραμματεὺς διὰ name βοηθοῦ σεσημείωμαι κτλ.: P. Köln II 86 (98/9). (The declaration is also addressed καὶ οἷς καθήκει.)

As we see, the pattern of signatures in 4822 cannot be exactly paralleled from elsewhere. Apart from the different constructions, we are missing the signature of the toparch, whom we would expect to have signed the declaration.

13 ἀ[ν]αγεγρα(): presumably ἀ[ν]αγέγρα(φα) (probably not ἀ[ν]αγέγρα(φε); cf. the use of σεσημείωμαι in this context). It is less likely that the text was originally understood as π]αρά Διογέ(νει) στρα(τηγῶ) ἀ[ν]αγέγρα(πται); the construction is without parallel (the Arsinoite collocation, ἀπεγράφησαν παρὰ στρατηγῶ/βασιλικῶ γραμματεῖ, is not exactly comparable), and we would have to assume that much space was left blank before it.

What was lost at the start of the line is unclear. It would be reasonable to expect a name followed by ὁ π]αρά, as in the examples cited above, 13–17 n., under (6)–(7), but the second signature displays a different pattern. See below, 16 n.

14 Μεχ(εῖρ) ε. In the early period, declarations of livestock were usually submitted in the last days of Τῦβι and the first days of Μεχ(εῖρ); see the list in Balconi, Aegyptus 64 (1984) 36–7.

15 [κα]τεχώριζεν. This verb is found in a comparable context only in two other declarations, neither of which is Oxyrhynchite: we find κατακεχ(ώρικα) (so P. Mich. XVIII 782.10 n.) or κατακεχ(ώρισται) (so Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber i 227 n. 515), followed by a date, in BGU XVI 2586.18 (Heracl.; 5 BC); and κατακεχ(ώρικα/-σται) ἕξ (scil. πρόβατα) in P. Mich. XVIII 782.10 (Ars. ?; early I AD).

ὁ παρά. The putative omicron (suggested by Dr Coles) is vestigial, a tiny loop attached to the right-hand leg of nu of [κα]τεχώριζεν.

16 ἀναγεγρα(). One is inclined to resolve the abbreviation in the same form as in 16, but the asyndeton [κα]τεχώριζεν ὁ παρὰ . . . ἀναγέγρα(φα/-ε) πρόβα(τα) κτλ. would be awkward.

4823. DECLARATION OF SHEEP AND GOATS

35 4B.70/G(1–2)a

6.3 × 3.5 cm

30 BC – AD 14

Only the middle part of the document has survived; it is of interest for its early date and for the fact that it is a collective declaration, which is not common. Two other Oxyrhynchite collective declarations of the reign of Augustus have been published, P. IFAO I 5 (8/7 BC) and P. Berl. Möller 7 (AD 8/9); cf. also the slightly later LV 3778 (21). P. Oxy. Hels. 8 (9 BC) could be part of a collective declaration, given the large number of sheep registered, but this is not necessary; see C. Balconi, Aegyptus 64 (1984) 43–4, and cf. BGU XVI 2586 (Heracl.; 5 BC). The number of the declarants (at least four), as well as the probable absence of any indication that they were relatives (cf. e.g. LV 3779), may suggest that they belonged to a corporation of προβατοκτηνοτρόφοι.

‘. . . we register for the present *n*th year of Caesar the sheep that belong to us: thirteen sheep of Palas, twelve sheep of Peteesis, thirteen sheep and three goats of Petesuehus, nine (or: eleven) sheep of . . . sheep . . .’

1 απο[. This is either the preposition or part of a name. If the former, this would belong to the indication of the origo of the declarant(s). There does not seem to be enough space for the name of a village (ἀπὸ [κώμης name]), followed by the name of the toparchy to which it belonged (abbreviated); there would be no problem if we had τῶν] | ἀπ’ Ὀ[ξύρρυγχων πόλεως. In any case, the origo of the declarant is often omitted in Oxyrhynchite returns of early date; it is extant only in LV 3779 6–7 (P. IFAO I 5 and P. Berl. Möller 7 are broken at the top).

4 Παλάτος. On this name, see M. Chauveau, H. Cuvigny, ZPE 130 (2000) 184. This is its earliest attestation in the papyri, and only the third in an Oxyrhynchite document (P. Mich. XVIII 786.123 and XIX 2244 73 are the other two). It is much commoner in the Fayum.

7 αἰγας τρεῖς. For the advantages of the presence of even a few goats in a flock of sheep, see C. Baleoni, Aegyptus 70 (1990) 121–2, and J. G. Keenan, BASP 26 (1989) 179–80.

4824. SUPPLEMENTARY DECLARATION OF GOATS

73/63(a)

6.8 × 17.8 cm

17 July 67

This declaration, addressed to Papiscus, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, belongs to Avogadro’s second chronological group (Aegyptus 15 (1935) 168–9; see also C. Balconi, Aegyptus 64 (1984) 47–8), which runs from the end of the reign of Claudius (cf. II 297 of 54) until the end of the first century (the earliest example of the third group, P. Köln II 86, dates from 98/9). In this second group, two declarations were made each year, the first usually in Mecheir (middle of the year), the second in Epeiph (end of the year). The first was the ‘main’ declaration, and in it the adult animals and their kids were declared, while in the second, the ‘supplementary’, the young born after the first declaration had to be registered. Our evidence from this period is mostly Oxyrhynchite. There are three ‘main’ declarations: P. Köln IV 188 (after 44), P. IFAO I 21, P. Ross. Georg. II 13, (both of 54–68); and four ‘supplementary’: XXXVIII 2851 (60), II 246 = W. Chr. 247 (66), LXXI 4824 (67), 4825 (65–9). VI 962 descr. may also belong to this period (reign of Claudius or Nero?), but the text is unpublished. We do not know whether this dual system was in force in other regions of Egypt; from this period we have only one declaration that is not Oxyrhynchite, the Hermopolite P. Flor. III 374 (55/6 or later; see G. Bastianini, ZPE 47 (1982) 212 n. 6), which is a ‘main’ declaration, and follows a pattern familiar from Oxyrhynchite parallels.

It is unclear whether the papyrus is complete at the foot. If not, we would expect to find an official’s subscription.

These I register in the same village, and I swear by Nero Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus Emperor that I have not lied at all.'

(2nd hand) 'I, Stephanus, son of Sarapion, son of Tryphon, have sworn the oath. I, . . . , wrote for my brother. Year 13 of Nero Claudius Caesar Augustus Germanicus Emperor, Epeiph 23.'

Back: (1st hand) 'In the present (vac.)'

1 Παπίσκω στρα(τηγῶ) Ὀ[ξυρυγ(χίτου)]. Papisus is attested in several papyri; see Whitehorne, *Strategi and Royal Scribes*² 92; also 4825. (He most probably does not occur in II 357 = SB XX 14095 ii 2; Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber i 224 n. 510, has already raised doubts over the reading of ed. pr., and these doubts may be increased through study of the on-line image. [NG]) He was an Alexandrian and had served as cosmetes there (II 246 = W. Chr. 247.1, with D. Hagedorn, ZPE 75 (1988) 154 n. 6; cf. also I 44 = W. Chr. 275 = Scl. Pap. II 420.1 with BL IX 177). He had entered office by 65/6 (SB XII 11145); one year earlier, assuming that the identification holds, we find him as strategus of the division of Polemon in the Arsinoite nome (P. Tebt. II 298 = W. Chr. 90 of 64/5). 4824 offers the latest exactly dated record of Papisus' tenure as strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome. He may still have been in office in 68 or shortly thereafter; see Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber ii 622-3 n. 1752, 1015-16 n. 265, on the date of I 44. His nearest known successor is Tiberius Claudius Herodes, in office by 16 April 70 (XLIX 3508), and perhaps as early as Dec. 69/Jan. 70 (LXVII 4527). (The entry [Πα]νίσκος [.]λας, from I 44 1, in Whitehorne, *Strategi and Royal Scribes*² 94, is taken over from the first edition and should be deleted; the papyrus is correctly cited, with due reference to BL IX 177, on p. 92 under Παπίσκος.) See further 4825 2-3 n.

στρα(τηγῶ) Ὀ[ξυρυγ(χίτου)]. Among other such returns in the 'second group', only P. Köln IV 188 (and VI 962 descr., if it belongs to this period) is addressed to the strategus alone, while II 246, XXXVIII 2851 and P. IFAO I 21 refer also to the royal scribe and τοῖς γράφοι τὸν νομόν (in P. Ross. Georg. II 13 the address has not survived). On the officials addressed in the declarations of the 'second group', see Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber i 222-3.

3-5 The names of the declarant's mother and her father are also given in II 246 6-7, but such references are absent from other declarations of livestock.

5 Κεζαρίου, l. Καίσαριου. This is the earliest attestation in a papyrus of this uncommon name.

For the frequent interchange of αι and ε in Latin names and loanwords, and for ε sporadically written as εζ, see Gignac, Grammar i 192–3 and 124 respectively.

9–10 τῶν Παγγᾶ Εἰσίου (l. Παγγᾶ Ἰσιείου) τῆς ἄνω τ[ο]πάρχιας. On this village, see P. Prunici, I centri abitati 69, 71–2; Calderini–Daris, Dizionario iii 35, Suppl. i 159, ii 82, iii 55; LV 3804 introd.; another attestation probably in LXXI 4827 8 (173/4). It usually occurs as Ἰεῖον Παγγᾶ. The reversed order of the names, attested also in II 250 5 (61), II 357 = SB XX 14095 ii 7–8 (I) and PSI VII 772.4 (I/II), appears to be an early feature.

18–20 According to E. Seidl, Der Eid im römisch-ägyptischen Provinzialrecht i (München 1933) 64–5, 68, the oath formula is common but not compulsory in declarations of livestock. This may be qualified: the oath is attested in all declarations of the ‘second group’, but not in declarations of earlier date. We may thus assume that this formula was introduced during the first reform of the procedure, and became a standard feature thereafter. Livestock declarations from other nomes do not contain an oath formula, a possible exception being P. Bad. II 21 (117), of unknown provenance. On the oath in such documents, see also Balconi, Aegyptus 64 (1984) 44.

19 μηδὲν ἐψέ(υ)σθαι). The last part of the oath formula in the parallel texts, where preserved, reads μηδὲν ὑποστρέφεται (P. Ross. Georg. II 13.10–11), μὴ ὑπεστρέ[λθ(αι)] (II 246 26), and μὴ ἐψέυσθαι (XXXVIII 2851 19).

22 . . . ν[ι]ς. Apparently not Ἀμμῶν[ι]ς, though ω is possible; at the beginning, perhaps Πε.

23 ἔγραψα ὑπὲρ τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ. The ὑπογραφεύς was often a close relative; see H. C. Youtie, ZPE 17 (1975) 205–21 = Scriptiunculae Posteriores i 179–99, esp. pp. 219–21 = 197–9.

27 ἐν τῷ ἐνεστῶ. The writing, probably by the first hand, ends abruptly.

4825. SUPPLEMENTARY DECLARATION OF SHEEP

34 4B.75/L(2)a

6.7 × 10.3 cm

65–69

Another supplementary declaration of livestock addressed to Papiscus, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome; cf. 4824. The text carries no date, but it will have been written in the month of Epeiph in one of the years in which Papiscus held, or may be presumed to have held, office. It breaks off at the point where the details of the second registration were to be given. The declarant, Mnesitheus son of Theon, is well known; see 4 n.

(1st hand) 'To Papiscus, ex-cosmetes of the city and strategus of the Oxyrhynchite (nome), from Mnesitheus son of Theon, from the city of the Oxyrhynchi. In the present year, I registered at the village of Tholthis of the lower toparchy the livestock I have and n lambs of the first registration, to which . . . added . . .'

1 On such docketts, see C. Balconi, Aegyptus 64 (1984) 41–2, and B. Kramer, P. Heid. IV 302 i 1–2 n., with information also on Arsinoite declarations. These docketts, mostly added by a second hand, are present only in a minority of such declarations. We find various patterns (I refer to Oxyrhynchite texts only): name of village + total(s) of animals declared (LXXI 4825 1, P. Köln IV 188.1); name of village (LV 3778 1, P. NYU II 12.1); total(s) of animals declared (I 74 1–2, P. Princ. II 24.1–2); a month (II 355 = SB XVI 12763.1); a number, probably a sequence number in an official composite roll (II 245 1, 355 = SB XVI 12760.1, and perhaps P. Köln II 86.1; to judge from the on-line image, II 357 = SB XX 14095 ii 1 carries no such number; Kruse, Der königliche Schreiber i 224 n. 510, had already expressed reservations over the reading).

Balconi, loc. cit. 42, suggests that of the declarations addressed to a strategus, perhaps only those that carried a number in the sequence of the tomos synkollesimos were certainly destined for the authorities, while those with the numbers of sheep or goats or without annotations above the address could have been the copies made for the declarant. However, it is difficult to see the role of such annotations in copies meant to be kept by private individuals; they are surely more at home in a state archive.

Θῶλθε(ωσ) . . . The unread letters might represent κᾶ(τω), but I cannot claim to be able to read this.

ἄρ(νεσ) β. See 11–12 n.

2–3 Παπίσκωι κοσμητεύσαντι τῆς πόλεως καὶ στρατηγῶ Ὀξυρυγ(χίτου). On Papiscus, see 4824 1 n. The address here is identical to that in II 246 = W. Chr. 247.1–2; cf. also I 44 = W. Chr. 275 = Scl. Pap. II 420.1 [κοσμητεύ]σας (BL IX 177). That Papiscus is described as an ex-cosmetes indicates that he was an Alexandrian (πόλις = Alexandria); see D. Hagedorn, ZPE 75 (1988) 154 n. 6.

4 Μνησιθέου τοῦ Θεώνος. Mnesitheus son of Theon is recorded in Jones and Whitehorne, Register of Oxyrhynchites no. 2738, after XLI 2972 3 and XLIV 3163 6–7 (both of 72); two further references have accrued since, XLVII 3332 4 (53) and XLIX 3464 3 (c.54–60). 'In all four cases the inventory numbers are the same as far as 36 4B.92/H, which indicates that they were found together and are probably the remains of a small private archive' (XLIX 3464 introd. para. 2). Like the other four papyri, 4825 was unearthed in the fourth season at Bahnasa, but its inventory number suggests that it was not found in their immediate vicinity (it comes from excavation box no. 75, while the others come from no. 92).

6–7 τῶ ἐνεστῶτι ἔτει. Papiscus is attested as strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome in 66–7, and could have been in office also in the summers of 65 and 68–9; see 4824 1 n.

8 Θῶλθεως τῆς κάτω τοπαρχ(ίας). Cf. 1. On this village see Prunetti, I centri abitati 58–9; Calderini-Daris, Dizionario Suppl. ii 74, iii 51.

9–10 ἀ] ἔχω θρέμματα καὶ πρῶ[τῆς] ἀπογραφῆς ἄρναι. This collocation is new, and the exact purport of the genitive(s) is unclear. Does it mean 'and (considered to be part) of the first registration'? The other supplementary declarations of livestock attest the following constructions (dependent on ἀπεγραψάμην):

XXXVIII 2851 11-12 (60) τῇ πρώτῃ ἀπογρα(φῆ) ἄρνας ἑπτὰ, ἐρίφο(υς) δύο
 II 246 15-17 (66) ἀπὸ γ[ο]νῆς ὧν ἔχω θρεμμάτω[ν] ἄρνας δεκαδύο
 LXXI 4824 11-12 (67) ἄς ἔχω αἰγας καὶ ἀπὸ γονῆς τούτων ἐρίφους τέσσαρες

11-12 πρ]οσεγέ[ν]-. Cf. II 297 7-10 (54) τί σοι προσεγένετο | ἀπὸ ἀρνέας παρὰ | τὴν πρώτην ἀπο-
 γραφήν; XXXVIII 2851 13-14 (60) οἷς οὐδὲν προσεγέ[ο]|νεν; LXXI 4824 13 (67) οἷς προσεγένοντο;
 also II 246 18-20 τοὺς ἐπ[ιγέ]|γονότας εἰς τὴν ἐνεστ[ῶσαν] | δευτέραν ἀπογραφήν.

The docket in 1 refers to two lambs. This is either (i) the total number of lambs in the flock, or (ii) the lambs born after the previous registration. If (i), restore [δύο, οἷς οὐδὲν πρ]οσεγέ|[νετο, which would suit the space; if (ii), the text would run [number οἷς πρ]οσεγέ|[νοντο (. . .) ἄρνες δύο. That in 246 the total given in the body of the text is that of the lambs born subsequent to the first registration may offer tenuous support to (ii). (None of the other supplementary declarations contains a docket.)

4826. LOAN OF WHEAT

Adrastion (a rare name; see 1 n.) from the village Philonicu in the Heracleopolite nome borrows nine artabas of wheat from Harpaesis, of unknown origo (see 3 n.), which he promises to return in Pauni after the harvest. The nature of the transaction is not entirely clear (see 8 n., 20 n.). The praxis-clause is unusual in having πράσσοντι κυρίως instead of the common καθάπερ ἐκ δίκης (see 12 n.).

Adrastion apparently wrote the cheirographon himself, to judge from the hand and the absence of a subscription (see H. J. Wolff, Das Recht der griechischen Papyri Ägyptens (München 1978) 165). Other cheirographa of contemporary date from Oxyrhynchus include P. Oslo II 40 (150), XXXIV 2722 (154), P. Oxy. Hels. 36 (167), III 507 37 (169), XLIX 3493-4 (175), PSI XII 1253 (186), LXXI 4828 (195); from the Heracleopolite nome, P. Hib. II 277 (138-60), SB XIV 12180 = XXIV 16009 (186?), P. Vind. Sal. 6.6-26 (190; see BL X 282).

The writing is inelegant: large, separately formed capitals, with occasional confusions of individual letter shapes; cf. αρπανει (3), κυηρου (7), and perhaps αςταβας (5). The dating formula at the end is written quicker and more fluently in smaller letters (probably not by a second hand), but it too makes a clumsy impression. The spelling shows common phonetic errors.

The writing is along the fibres and the back is blank.

'Adrastion, son of Adrast— . . . , from the village Philonicu of the Heracleopolite (nome), to Harpaeisis, son of An— I have had measured out to me (from you . . .) nine artabas of wheat (with interest?), in the present ninth year of Antoninus and Verus Caesars the lords, by your measure, which 9 artabas I shall deliver to you in the month Pauni of the same year without delay, with the right of execution upon me and my property resting with you, proceeding with authority. The cheirographon is binding presented everywhere and for everyone who presents it, as though publicly registered. Year ninth of Imperator Caesar Marcus Antoninus Augustus Armeniacus Medicus Parthicus Maximus and of Imperator Caesar Lucius Aurelius Verus Augustus Armeniacus Medicus Parthicus Maximus, . . .'

1 Ἀδραστίων is a rare name (Ἀδραστος is much more common). It occurs only in one other papyrus, P. Vind. Bosw. 2.14 (Antin.; 247/8). Outside Egypt, we find it in an inscription from Rome of the Imperial age (IGUR II 1003.3), and (twice) in an unpublished inscription from Caria of the second century AD (information kindly supplied by Professor Thomas Corsten, on the basis of material selected for the forthcoming LGPN V).

This line contained the father's name, Ἀδραστ[ί]ωνος or Ἀδράστ[ου], followed either by μητρός and the mother's name or some other information about Adrastion, e.g. profession.

2-3 Φιλον[ί]κου τοῦ Ἡρακλεοπολί[του]. To date there has been no record of a village in the Oxyrhynchite nome bearing a name beginning with Philon— (or Philom—). The reference is probably to the village Philonicu in the Coite toparchy of the Heracleopolite nome (M. R. Falivene, The Heracleopolite Nome (Atlanta 1998) 246-8). This toparchy bordered on the Lower toparchy of the Oxyrhynchite nome, and inhabitants from this area had frequent contacts with their Oxyrhynchite neighbours (see Falivene, op. cit. 12. 116, and Pap. Congr. XV 208 n. 31; J. Rowlandson, Landowners and Tenants in Roman Egypt (Oxford 1996) 15 n. 37).

3 After the father's name Αμ[-, probably μητρός and the mother's name ending in -τος in the next line. If so, there would be no space for the lender's origo. He may but need not have been an Oxyrhynchite (for inter-nome loans, see R. S. Bagnall, Egypt in Late Antiquity (Princeton 1993) 140 n. 158, 75 n. 185).

4 ἐμετρήθην πα[ρὰ σοῦ. ἐμετρήθην is rare in the papyri; in the DDbDP it comes up in SB VI 9248 = ChLA XVIII 662.11 (II), a receipt for wheat supplied to a cavalry soldier; P. Corn. 44.4 (209), a receipt for rent in kind; and P. Cair. Isid. 31.5 (276), a granary receipt for tax.

The end of the line probably contained some additional information (purpose, manner, location?) connected with the receipt of the wheat, e.g. δάνειον, εἰς ἰδίαν χρείαν, εἰς σπέρμα, ἐν παραθέσει.

5 ἀρτάβας, l. ἀρτάβας. This is an odd error, given that the word is spelled correctly in 10. But one might wish to take a thickening at the cap of the putative sigma as an attempt to form the top (circlet) of rho.

ϰϣ[. Of the upsilon only the top half of the left diagonal is left, but ἐννέα, expected from 10, is certainly not to be read. It must come at the end of the line. ϰϣ[suggests ϰϣ[ν διαφόρῳ, ἡμιολία or the like, 'with interest'; cf. N. Lewis, TAPA 76 (1945) 127 n. 8, 128 n. 11.

6 τῷ ἐνεστῶτι ἐνά[του] ἔτους. Read (i) τῷ ἐνεστῶτι ἐνάτῳ ἔτει or (ii) τοῦ ἐνεστῶτος ἐνάτου ἔτους. If (i), this must be a reference to the date when the loan was made, the writer switching into the familiar genitive as if in a syntactically independent dating formula. But it would be unusual to have the date of the transaction specified at this point. If (ii), we would have to connect the genitives, i.e., the year, with πυροῦ in 5 (cf. e.g. P. Strasb. I 54.5ff. πυροῦ γενήματος τοῦ διελεθόντος ἐκκαίδεκάτου ἔτους - - - πυροῦ [ἀ]ρτάβας), but this should have been 'year 8', since the present year's crop has not been harvested yet.

7-8 μέτρῳ τῷ ϰῷ. The collocation occurs six times in the DDbDP, all in documents of the Byzantine period. The measure is often specified in order to guarantee the correct quantity when the grain is returned; see D. Hennig, Untersuchungen zur Bodenpacht (München 1967) 11.

8 παρ[α]δώσω. This compound usually refers to the return of goods in a deposit or lease: cow, boat, house, etc. (Preisigke, WB s.v. 3); for wheat in deposit, see P. Strasb. I 54.11-12 (153/4), XLII 3049 A12 = B15 (247). In loans, ἀποδώσω is the regular verb. παραδώσω is used in XLIX 3493 6, 21 = 3494 7, 27 (175), but these two loans of wheat are suspected by the editor to hide 'some surreptitious deal' (introd.).

μηνί, l. μηνί. For the gemination of medial nu, see Gignac, Grammar i 158.

12 πρᾶς(ς)ογτι κυρίως. The position of the phrase immediately after μοι invites ambiguity, but knowledge of the formula must have deterred misunderstanding.

The same phrase occurs in P. Dura 20.18 (121), 22.11 (133/4) (both have ἐκπράσσοντι), P. Babatha 11.11 (124), and perhaps P. Murabba'at 114 = SB X 10304.21 (171?). N. Lewis notes that κυρίως in this position is found only once among Egyptian papyri (P. Hamb. I 2 of 59), where 'it is doubtless significant that the transaction involves three Jews and a soldier' (P. Babatha 11.9-11 n.). In papyri from the Near East, κυρίως is also added to two other components of the praxis-clause—for emphasis, one assumes: representation, in P. Dura 29.12-13 (251) καὶ ἄλλῳ παντὶ τῷ | ὑπὲρ αὐτῆς κυρίως τὴν ὁμολογίαν ταύτην π[ρ]οφερομένων; and ownership, in P. Babatha 17.36-8 (128) ἀπό τε Ἰούδου καὶ τῶν ὑπαρχόντων αὐτοῦ πάντη πάντων, ὧν τε ἔχει καὶ ὧν ἂν ἐπικτή|σῃται κυρίως.

The existence of a deed allowed the creditor to start proceedings against the debtor immediately on default without having to obtain a judicial judgement first. The usual καθάπερ ἐκ δίκης is seldom omitted from the praxis-clause, but its absence did not seem to affect the way the praxis was carried out; see Wolff, Pap. Congr. XII 531. πρᾶσσοντι κυρίως is found in addition to the usual καθάπερ ἐκ δίκης (i.e., πράσسونτι κυρίως καθάπερ ἐκ δίκης) in two loans from the Arsinoite nome, P. Mert. I 6.28 (77 BC) and BGU XI 2116.10 = ChLA XI 465 (25/6). If this phrase imparts a particular force to the praxis-clause, it emphasizes the fact that the creditor is authorized to proceed.

12–13 παν]ταχοῦ. Although πανταχῆ ἐπιφερόμενον is much more common in this period (cf. 4828 ii 23), πανταχοῦ seems to be the reading of the papyrus. For the distribution of the two words, see B. E. Nielsen, BASP 27 (1990) 100.

16 Μάρκου Ἀντωνίνου. The absence of Αὐρηλίου must be a mistake; cf. O. Bodl. II 1478.1 (169?).

20] Traces of uncertain distribution and interpretation:]ωμη?].ομη?].ομαι? Month and day are expected at this point; we have considered reading [month ἐβ]δόμη, but δ is difficult.

4827. LEASE OF LAND

5 1B.38/J(n)

Plate XI

This text, complete except for the line ends, is a four-year lease of ten aruras of land classified as ‘royal’ and something else; see below, 7–8 n. The lease includes the usual crop rotation: the rent is payable in kind (30.5 artabas of wheat per year) for the two years in which the land is sown with wheat, and in cash (200 drachmas per year) for the two years in which it is sown with fodder crops; see J. Rowlandson, Landowners and Tenants in Roman Egypt (Oxford 1996) 240–43. The lessor is Phantias son of Sarapion, a former archiereus of the temple of Hadrian; see further 1–2 n. The lessee is an Alexandrian, which is uncommon.

The lease was drawn up as a ‘private protocol’, standard in Oxyrhynchite leases of this period. For the latest update on land leases from this area, see LXIX 4739 introd.

The back is blank.

'Phanias son of Sarapion, grandson of Phanias, former chief priest of the temple of Hadrian in the city of the Oxyrhynchi, has leased through his son Sarapion to Sarapion son of Sarapion, of the Sosicosmian tribe and Althaeac deme, for four years from the present fourteenth year, his half sharc of . . . and royal land at Isieum Panga from the allotment of Theophilus and Heracleides out of twenty aruras, which are ten aruras . . . side(?), on condition that in the fourteenth and sixteenth years he sow with wheat at an annual fixed rent of thirty and a half artabas of wheat, and that in the fifteenth and seventeenth years he plant with fodder crops at an annual fixed rent of two-hundred drachmas of silver, all free of every risk, the (guarding?) of the aruras being the responsibility of the lessee. And if any land is uninundated, an allowance shall be made to the lessee, the annual public taxes on the land being the responsibility of Phantias, who is also to retain control of the crops until he receives the annual dues. And the lease being confirmed, for the two years in which the land is sown with wheat the lessee shall measure the wheat into the public granary at his own expense, and an acknowledgement of payment free of all charges shall be issued to the lessor at the first measuring (of each year); and the lessee(?) shall pay the . . . money rent without delay. And the right of execution should rest against both the lessee and all his property. The lease is binding. Year 14 of Imperator Caesar Marcus Aurelius Antoninus Augustus Armeniacus Medicus Parthicus Germanicus Maximus, (month, day). I, Phantias son of Sarapion, grandson of Phantias, through my son Sarapion . . .'

1-2 Φαν[ί]ας Σαραπίωνος τοῦ Φανίου ἀρχιερατεύσας. A Phantias, ex-archiereus, is mentioned as an overseer of the bank at the Serapeum of Oxyrhynchus in VIII 1132 9-10 (after 162). He may have been related to a family of wealthy Oxyrhynchites, a member of which was Sarapion alias Phantias, sometime strategus of Arabia; see R. A. Coles, P. J. Sijpesteijn, CE 61 (1986) 108-10.

3 Ἀδριανείου. Mentions of the Ἀδριανείου of Oxyrhynchus occur in papyri of the late second and early third centuries usually in connection with former chief priests. This lease offers the earliest reference to the temple, mentioned again in LXXI 4828 (195), which attests Theon son of Theon, ex-archiereus. Two ex-archiereis of this temple, another(?) Theon (see 4828 3-4 n.) and Chaeremon, were chosen as representatives of the strategus for the opening of a will in 185 (P. Merton II 75.1; for the date see BL VI 78; also U. Yiftach, BASP 39 (2002) 162). The latest mention to date of an ex-archiereus of the Hadrianeum is in VIII 1113 3-6 of 203.

The Hadrianeum is mentioned again in a list of dues of c.205 (VII 1045 27); all later instances come from the fourth century. By that time it was no longer an active cult centre, as the change in the epithet from σεβασμώτατον to δημόσιον indicates. XVII 2154 14-15 tells us that it was used as a prison. Doorkeepers of the building (warders?) are mentioned in XLV 3249 12 (326), LIV 3764 14 (c.326), and P. Harris I 65.8-9 (342). Several texts show that hearings before the curator civitatis could take place in the Hadrianeum: LIV 3758 134 (325), 3767 1 (329 or 330), P. Harris I 160 = SB XVI 12629.2 (c.329-31) (in 3764 14, we have proceedings before an arbitrator). Apparently the λογιστήριον, which is also known to be the site of a prison, 'formed part of the premises of the Hadrianeum in Oxyrhynchus'; see L 3576 18-19 n. A list of buildings needing repairs dating from 316 (LXIV 4441 vi 12) informs us about its state of preservation.

On the cult of Hadrian in Oxyrhynchus see J. Whitehorne, ANRW II 18.5 (1995) 3067. For other temples of Hadrian in Egypt see G. Ronchi, Lexicon Theonymon (Milano 1974) 61-3, and D. Hagedorn, ZPE 97 (1993) 100 n. 12 (corrections in LXIV 4441 vi 12 n.).

Σαραπίωνος. To be sure, there are many names starting with sigma, but given that this person's father is 'Phantias son of Sarapion, grandson of Phantias', it is likely that the son took the name of his (paternal) grandfather. III 533 26 (II/III), Σαραπίωνος Φανίου, need not refer to the same person.

4-5 ᾿Αλεξανδρινός μείψ τῷ καὶ Ἀλθαιεῖ. The lessee was an Alexandrian citizen: ᾿Αλεξανδρινός and Ἀλθαιεῖς indicate phyle and deme respectively; see D. Delia, Alexandrian Citizenship during the Roman Principate (Atlanta 1991) 138-40. It is unusual to find an Alexandrian lessee in Oxyrhynchus. Rowlandson, Landowners and Tenants, mentions only one such case, in III 593 = SB XII 10780 (172/3), likewise a four-year lease but of only two aruras and at much higher rent. This is all the more surprising since 'longer lease-terms . . . do seem to be associated with tenants of lower status' (p. 257). Our man may be an entrepreneur (who sub-leased the land in turn) rather than a direct farmer.

5 εἰς ἔτη τετραετίας. Four-year leases are very common in this period, and in fact multi-year leases predominate in the second to mid third centuries; see Rowlandson, Landowners and Tenants Table 17, p. 327; 253–4. Crop rotation and long-term leases are directly correlated; see Rowlandson, op. cit. 255. Oxyrhynchite land leases directly comparable to the crop rotation of this lease (one crop in years 1 and 3, and another in years 2 and 4) are PSI IV 315 (136/7), XXXIII 2676 (151) ('royal' land), VI 910 (197), L 3589 (II); cf. also BGU IV 1017 (mid II).

7–8 μ[έρους 7] γῆς καὶ βασιλικῆς. The plot under lease was made up of land of two different tenurial categories: one whose name is lost in the break at the end of 7, and royal land. The former might have been another category of public land, which the lessor might have subleased from the state. But it is more likely that this was private land (ιδιωτικῆ), to which some royal land was attached. There is only one parallel among Oxyrhynchite land leases, PSI IX 1029 (52/3); see Rowlandson, Landowners and Tenants 89. In our text, there is no need to assume 'an epibole-like assignment'; 'in documents of later periods, individuals are frequently found holding small quantities of public land as well as larger quantities of private land' (Rowlandson, op. cit. 90, with n. 57).

8 περὶ τὸ Ἰεῖον Παγγᾶ. The name of the village is restored on the basis of the kleros in 9–10, known to have been located in its area. On this village, see above, 4824 9–10 n.

9–10 ἐκ τοῦ Θεοφίλου καὶ Ἡρα[κλείδου κλή]ρου. This κλήρος also occurs in XII 1502v 1–2 (c.260/61), in connection with Is(i)eion Panga; see Pruneti, Aegyptus 55 (1975) 182. For allotments with two names see F. Zucker in Festschrift Oertel (Bonn 1964) 105.

10–11 αἷ εἰς [7] μέρους. αἷ refer to the 'half share' of the twenty aruras; cf. e.g. BGU VI 1264.12 (215/214 BC). The break may have taken away a prepositional construction that specified the location of the land to be leased, e. g. ἐπὶ τοῦ ἀπὸ νότου/βορρᾶ/λιβὸς μέρους (ἀπηλιώτου would be too long). Cf. the description of the land under lease in XLIX 3489 10–11 (72), which is another lease of a part of a larger plot of land: ἀπὸ ἀρουρῶν ἐν[ε]α ἐκ τοῦ ἀπὸ βορρᾶ μέρου[ς] | ἀρούρα[ς π]έντε; similarly P. Mil. Vogl. II 78.8–9 (Ars.; 138/9), P. Hamb. I 65 = SB XVIII 13995.15–24 (Ars.; 141/2), IV 728 7–8 (142), SB VIII 9918.4–6 (Oxy.; 180). Alternatively, μέρους may refer to the lessor's 'half share', as in 7, but we do not see how to fill the break.

14–15, 17–18 On Oxyrhynchite rent levels, see Rowlandson, Landowners and Tenants 247 ff. The rent in kind due for the 10 aruras, 3 art./ar., is very low, virtually the same as, if not lower than, the dues for public land; see Rowlandson's Fig. 4 (p. 249). But the 20 dr./ar. presupposed for the fodder rent is normal; see Rowlandson's Fig. 5 (p. 250). But 'after the first century AD. . . leases which charged the lowest rents were precisely those in which the tenant was obliged to pay a cash rental on his fodder crop' (Rowlandson, op. cit. 251).

17 ἀπ[ο]τάκτου. On the term, see LXVII 4594 8–9 n. Here it is used both for the rent in kind as well as the money rent, without those being specified as ἐκφόριον and φόρος. For ἀποτάκτου = ἐκφορίου ἀποτάκτου, cf. I 101 54 (142), L 3589 6, 7 (II); there is no such example for φόρος. (In BGU IV 1017.9 restore ἐκφορίου ἀποτάκτου, not φόρου) ἀ. [NG].)

17–18 ἀργυρίου δρα]χμῶν. The line would be too short without ἀργυρίου (cf. IV 729 31) but rather long with it (cf. XXXI 2584 13).

19–20 It is unclear what is lost at the end of the line. We have considered restoring τῆς [δὲ τηρήσε]ως; cf. XLIX 3488 27–30 (70) τῆς κατ' ἕτος | ἀπεργασίας τῶν χωμάτων τῶν | δέκα ἀρουρῶν καὶ τηρήσεως ὄντων | πρὸς τὸν μεμισθωμένον, but in that text τηρήσεως refers to the dikes and not the aruras. (A clause referring to the lessee's responsibility for the ἀπεργασία χωμάτων and the ὑδροφυλακία occurs at this point in L 3589 10–11 (II).)

21–3 On the ἄβροχος clause see J. Herrmann, Studien zur Bodenpacht im Recht der graeco-ägyptischen Papyri (München 1958) 161. For four-year leases with this clause, see T. T. Renner, BASP 7 (1970) 24 n. 5.

24 πρὸς τ[ὸ]ν Φ[ανίαν]. We mostly find πρὸς τὸν μεμισθωκότα; for the construction here, cf. XLIX 3488 37 (70), XXXVIII 2874 21 (108), P. Turner 25.25–6 (161), etc.

24–5 ὃν καὶ] κυριεύειν τῶν καρπῶ[ν]. On this clause, see Herrmann, Studien zur Bodenpacht 140–42; A. Kränzlein, Pap. Congr. XIII (München 1974) 215 ff., and ZPE 113 (1996) 230–32.

25–6 ἕως ἂν τὰ ὀφειλόμενα κομίσηται. Cf. SB VI 9918.16 (179/80). The usual expression is ἕως τὰ κατ' ἔτος ὀφειλόμενα κομίσηται, but there is not enough room for κατ' ἔτος in the break.

27–8 τ[ῆς ἐν πυρῶ] διετίας. Restored after VI 910 51 (197). τ[ῆς τοῦ πυροῦ], after XVIII 2188 20 (107), is also conceivable but less likely.

27–35 It is remarkable that there is no reference to when the rents will have to be paid, though see 34 n.

28–30 The provision for the tenant to deliver the rent in kind to the public granary 'at his own expense' is not common; see Rowlandson, Landowners and Tenants 226 n. 68. Usually rent was paid on the threshing floor of a near-by village. Here this may be due to the fact that the land leased is partly 'royal' (e.g., it was convenient for the lessor to receive his rent at the granary so as to pay directly the dues on the public land), though such a provision was not always connected to sublet public land. Rowlandson, op. cit. 274, suggests that the lessor may sometimes have considered it convenient for the rent to be directly deposited into his account at the public granary.

30 ταῖς ἡμέραις, which is more common, does not seem to be a possible reading.

καὶ θέμα. Cf. SB XIV 11281.20–21 (172), LV 3800 30 (219), P. Ups. Frid. 5 i 14 (261). There is not enough space to restore τούτων after θέμα, as in SB XII 11081 = LXVII 4595 34 (261).

30–33 On the clause referring to a θέμα see D. Hagedorn, ZPE 25 (1977) 197–8. (The translation of LXVII 4595 33–4 presupposes a somewhat different interpretation.)

32–3 ὑπὸ τ[ῆν πρώτην] μέτρησιν. Cf. I 101 33 (142), SB XIV 11281.21–2 (172), LV 3800 31 (219), P. Ups. Frid 5 i 16–17 (261). Other documents specify that this 'first measurement' is to be of 'each' (ἐκάστου; L 3591 39 (219), LXVII 4595 32 (261)) or of the 'present' (ἐνεστῶτος; XXXVI 2795 23–4 (250)) year.

33–4 τὸν δὲ . . . σα[α.β ἀρ]γγυρικὸν φόρον. Parallel documents are of no help in restoring the damaged part (συνα[γόμενον is not a possible reading).

34 ἀποδότ[ω ὁ μεμισθωμένος(?). The restored ὁ μεμισθωμένος is well paralleled but is long for the space. However, this element is missing from LV 3800 32–4 (200) καὶ ἀποδότ[ω τὸν κατ' ἔτος ἀργυρικὸν φόρο(ν) | μηνὶ Παῦνι; cf. also BGU XIII 2340.16–17 (Oxy.; III). We could have a reference to when the rent is paid, a reference not supplied elsewhere in the text.

42 The name of the month is lost. According to Herrmann, Studien zur Bodenpacht 96, it was common practice in the Oxyrhynchite nome to draw up leases in the first four months of the Egyptian year (Thoth, Phaophi, Hathyr, Choeac); see also Rowlandson, Landowners and Tenants 218–19 and n. 45. Of these four months, the name of Thoth is too short to restore in the break.

44 We expect μεμισθωκα ὡς πρόκειται at this point, but no part of it can be confirmed on the traces.

4828. LOAN OF MONEY

22 3B.11/D(22–24)a

10.5 × 12.5 cm

27 March – 25 April 195

The contract was written in duplicate by the same clerk, one column for each copy (for a catalogue of duplicate papyri, many of which are loans, see B. E. Nielsen, ZPE 129 (2000) 187–214). The first column has lost the line-beginnings, while of the second we have virtually full line-length; a few lines are lost from the foot. The two texts are identical apart from some different line divisions. Cf. 4829.

The loan is drawn up in the form of a cheirographon, common at Oxyrhynchus. The sum borrowed is 220 drachmas, at the regular interest of 1% per month; the term is seven months. The borrower, whose name is not preserved, originates from an Oxyrhynchite hamlet. The lender, Theon son of Theon, is a former archiereus of the temple of Hadrian.

The writing runs along the fibres; the back is blank.

I acknowledge that I have received from you, from hand to hand out of your house, two hundred and twenty drachmas of imperial silver coinage as capital, at the interest of one drachma for each mina for each month, from the present month of Pharmuthi of the current 3rd year. These I shall repay you on the thirtieth of the month of Phaophi of the coming 4th year without any delay. If I do not repay you at the appointed time, I shall forfeit these to you with the addition of one half and interest for the period overdue, you having the right of execution against me and against all my property as one does when bringing a dike. This contract, written in duplicate, is binding wherever it may be produced and for whoever produces it on your behalf. Year third of Emperor Caesar Lucius Septimius Severus ...'

ii 2 ἀπὸ τοῦ Μονίμου ἐποικίου. This settlement was situated in the north-east of the Upper toparchy, near the village of Sco (see P. Oxy. Hels. 41.7). See Pruneti, I centri abitati dell'Ossirinchite 107; Calderini-Daris, Dizionario iii 293-4; Rowlandson, Landowners and Tenants 11.

2-3 Θέωγι Θεώνος. This person most probably recurs in XLV 3251 2-5 θε[...].εω[...].ἀπὸ Ὀξυρ[ύ]χων πόλεως ἀρχιερατεύσαν[τ]ι | τοῦ ἐν τῇ αὐτῇ πόλει σεβασμιωτάτου | Ἀδριανείου; the editor tentatively read Θέω[νι] Θεών[ος], which now seems to be confirmed. A further implication is that we may date 3251 to 202/3, and exclude the other possible dates mentioned in introd. P. Merton II 75.1 (Oxy.; 185; see BL VI 78), which attests one Theon, ex-archiereus, may refer to this same person.

In 3251 2, before the putative Θέω[νι], one may read -]λίτου ν[ο]μ[ο]ῦ (...). του... ed. pr. (NG). This text is an acknowledgement of debt, 'incurred through arrears of farm rents', and 'in effect a deed of loan in kind and money'. 4828, which attests Theon lending money to a resident of an Oxyrhynchite hamlet, moves in the same world. It should also be noted that the inventory number of 4828 is fairly close to that of 3251 (22 3B.14/G(7-10)b; they come respectively from the 11th and 14th tin-boxes filled with papyri in Grenfell and Hunt's third excavation season at Oxyrhynchus), which may imply proximity in the rubbish mound where they were found. (In view of the location of the village Monimu, in the south of the Oxyrhynchite nome, in 3251 2 perhaps restore Ἐρμοπολίτου ν[ο]μ[ο]ῦ).

3-5 ἀρχιερατεύσαντι τῆς Ὀξυρυγχειτῶν πόλεως σεβασμιωτάτω Ἀδριανείου. The omission of τοῦ after ἀρχιερατεύσαντι is probably a scribal blunder (cf. 4827 2-3 and 3251 3-5, cited above).

5 Ἀδριανείου. Cf. 4827 3 n.

19-20 τῆς πρ[άξε]ώς σου. We would expect the dative σου. The genitive is also attested in II 319 = SB X 10238.16 (37), II 269 i 10 (57), O. Brux. 13.10 (II), XII 1474 18 (216), PSI VI 702.10 (III), P. Bad. II 27.8 (316), P. Gen. I² 12.18 (383).

4829. ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF INDEBTEDNESS

16 2B.47/F(d)a

9.3 × 13.6 cm

Late third century

Aurelius Dionysius, gymnasiarch and bouleutes of Oxyrhynchus, acknowledges that he owes four hundred drachmas to Aurelius Seuthes. The nature of the original transaction (see 11–12) that lies behind Dionysius' financial obligation is not known.

The text was written by the same scribe in duplicate, each copy occupying a single column, with both copies remaining attached to each other. The texts of the two columns are essentially identical; only line divisions do not always correspond. Cf. 4828.

The lines of the second column overrun a vertical repair-strip of papyrus c.1.5 cm wide. The patch is of lighter colour, and the writing does not run smoothly across its vertical fibres, and now appears badly abraded. The sheet was folded vertically down the centre. The back is blank.

(col. i) 'I, Aurelius Dionysius, gymnasiarch, bouleutes of the splendid city of the Oxyrhynchites, son of Sarapion, grandson of Dionysius, ex-gymnasiarch, ex-prytanis of the same city, to Aurelius Seuthes son of Horion, mother Annis, from the same city, greeting. I acknowledge that I owe you four hundred silver drachmas of imperial silver coinage as capital, which have been shown to be a debt in my name in the balancing of the account; these I shall pay . . . every month from the current month of Choeac of the present year . . .'

i 1–2 Ἀυρήλιος Διονύσιος. This appears to be a further instance of the practice of naming a man after his paternal grandfather (cf. 4–5); see D. Hobson, BASP 26 (1989) 157–68. An Aurelius Dionysius, bouleutes, is attested in XLIV 3171 9 of 225–50 (see BL VIII 266), and an ex-gymnasiarch of this name in LXIX 4747 3–5 (296). Some other persons by the name of Dionysius are also known to have been gymnasiarchs in third-century Oxyrhynchus, but all have an alias; see P. J. Sijpesteijn, Nouvelle Liste des gymnasiarques des métropoles de l'Égypte romaine (Stud. Amst. XXVIII: Zutphen 1986) s. n.

2 βο]υλευτής. That Dionysius' father was a member of the bouletic class too (ex-prytanis) is further evidence for the strong hereditary tendency regarding eligibility for membership of the boule; see A. K. Bowman, The Town Councils of Roman Egypt (ASP XI: Toronto 1971) 30, and M. Drew-Bear, CE 59 (1984) 316–17. The same holds for the office of the gymnasiarch.

3–4 τῆς λαμπρᾶς Ὁξ[υρ]υγγειῶν πόλεως. This honorific title of Oxyrhynchus provides a terminus post quem, i.e., c.269; see D. Hagedorn, ZPE 12 (1973) 281 ff. After the introduction of the honorific formula λαμπρὰ καὶ λαμπροτάτη in 271/2, and until its disappearance from the documents early in the sixth century, the plain formula (λαμπρά) was exceptional; see Hagedorn, loc. cit. 285–8, and cf. some fourth-century examples in LIV 3748–9, 3751–2, 3760. Thus there is a good chance that 4829 belongs in the period c.269–72.

4 υἱός. For this use of υἱός, see D. Hagedorn, ZPE 80 (1990) 277–82.

Σαραπίωνος. An Aurelius Sarapion, agoranomus and bouleutes, is attested in 3171 (cf. above, 1 n.). Gymnasiarchs called Sarapion and with no alias (cf. 1–2 n.) in third-century Oxyrhynchus are attested in XIV 1665 1, 28 (III) and LXI 4119 3 (c.270).

7–8 Ἀυρηλίω Σεύθη Ὁρείωνος. It is tempting to identify this Seuthes with one of those already known. The most prominent of these is Ἀυρήλιος Σεύθης ὁ καὶ Ὁρίων, a gymnasiarch in 297/8? (XLV 3246 6), and the earliest known curator civitatis of Oxyrhynchus (already in office in 303); see LIV p. 222, and LXIII 4354 introd. In that case, our document would refer to the period when Seuthes had not held any office. A difficulty is that here Ὁρίων is a patronymic, whereas when Seuthes appears in an official capacity this name is an alias, while the patronymic is never mentioned—but this is normal in documents addressed to officials. One could assume that Seuthes took a second name after his father's (for this practice, see Hobson, BASP 26 (1989) 166–8), and that in his earlier attestations his alias was omitted (cf. R. Calderini, Aegyptus 21 (1941) 249–52). Another(?) Seuthes, clearly a person of some standing, is attested in the small Oxyrhynchite archive of Philantimos, which spans the years 296–307; see P. Harris II 230–4 introd., where other references to this name in Oxyrhynchite documents are collected. Any of these persons could be the Aurelius Seuthes of P. Mich. XIV 676.25 (Oxy.; 272), an application for membership of the gymnasium (epikrisis) that he submitted in the capacity of an orphan's guardian.

8 Ἀννίδος. The female name Ἀννίς has occurred in four other documents, all of them Oxyrhynchite: PUG I 22.3 (345), LXIII 4398 13 (553), SB XVI 12585.1 (557), and P. Hamb. III 221.11 (580). Onomastica have it oxytone to distinguish it from the commoner male name Ἀννίς (gen. Ἀννίδος and Ἀννεως) (the accent should be corrected in LXIII 4398 13).

10 The scribe first wrote a, perhaps in anticipation for ἀργυρίου, but immediately crossed it out.

11 ἐν ἐμοί. For the specific function of this prepositional phrase, meaning 'in der Hand, Macht, Gewalt, zur Verfügung jemandes', see Mayser, Grammatik ii.2 395–7 (§116 Ib, δ), who specifically connects the usage with debts ('auf einem Namen lautenden Schuld').

12 ἐκ] λόγου συνάρσεως. In this context συνάρσεις should mean 'revised reckoning, balancing'. The collocation ἐκ/ἀπὸ λόγου συνάρσεως is also attested in P. Mil. Vogl. IV 227 = P. Kron. 16.13–14

(138), P. Fouad 26.53 (158/9; see BL VI 40), P. Laur. II 25.8–9 (293/4). On κύναρις in the papyri, see P. Laur. II 25.8–9 n., and CPR XIV 43 ii 1 n.

13 Ἐβαστ[ο]ῦ would imply that the document was written in the time of a sole emperor, though there are exceptions to the rule; see XLIV 3198 9 n.

14 δραχμὰς τετρακοσίας. The amount is divisible by four, which means that it was payable in billion tetradrachms.

15 τάξομαι. For the use of this verb in loans of money, see D. Hagedorn, J. D. Thomas, ZPE 11 (1973) 137 (n. 1. 7).

16 Perhaps read ϰῶ[ν] τ[ό]κοις δραχμια[ί]οι[ς]. The set expression for the usual rate of interest, namely 1% a month, commonly begins τόκου δραχμιαίου, but the formula ἐν τόκῳ/τόκοις is well attested and means 'including interest'; see N. Lewis, TAPA 76 (1945) 129, 131, 135 [= On Government and Law in Roman Egypt: Collected Papers of Naphtali Lewis 17–30]. An objection to this reconstruction could be raised by the grammar, namely that after ὡν τάξομαι one would expect a noun, e.g. τόκου, or the amount of money paid in each month, e.g. δραχμὰς ἑκατόν, unless this was postponed for the beginning of line 20. One could also have expected in 16–18 the number of monthly instalments in which the debt would be paid as well as the amount paid in each of them, as for instance in I 98 16–17 (141/2) ἐν καταβολῇ μηνῶ(ν) πεντήκοντα or P. Oxy. Hels. 43.15–16 (III) (ἐν καταβολῇ ἐν μηνὶ [δὲ]καε[νν]ε[α] ἐφεξῆς), but such a formula does not seem to suit the traces.

17 One may restore ἐ[κ]άστῃ[ς] μ[ην]ῶς, assuming that ε was written at the end of 16. For this collocation, see P. Ups. Frid 3.5–6 n.

17–18 τοῦ μ[ην]ὸς ἐκάστο[υ]. This formula was particularly favoured by Oxyrhynchite scribes in acknowledgements of debt, while in the other nomes the formula more frequently employed is κατὰ μῆνα ἕκαστον.

20 At the beginning of the line the upper half of an upright is visible, topped by a hook facing left. It could be either κ or the symbol for ἔτους.

20–22 In these lines the interest for the excess period may have been mentioned. One may think e.g. of ἐὰν δὲ μ[ην]ὴ ἀποδῶ ἐκτίσω τοῦ ὑπερπεσόντος [χρόνου] τ[ό]κου (or ἴ[σ]ου) τόκου κ[αθ]ὰ[περ] ἐκ δίκης, but the putative omicron in 21 is difficult, while the trace at the start of 22 does not seem to admit tau or iota.

I voluntarily undertake to lease from the present month of Choeac of the current year 103/72 of the tenth indiction, the . . . belonging to you . . .’

Back: (2nd hand) ‘Lease of Theon— daughter of Apion . . .’

1–3 On the consulship, see CLRE 386–7 (cf. 388–9); *CSBE*² 195.

4 Φλαουῖω Αρχαϊλάω (l. Αρχελάω). This person may recur in the contemporary P. Rain. Cent. 93 (426/7), possibly of Hermopolite provenance; cf. ll. 3–4 -ίτο]υ νομοῦ καὶ Αρχαΐλαος | [?] Ὀξυρυχίτου.

Most post-Ptolemaic instances of the name Αρχελάος come from Oxyrhynchite documents. The spelling with -αι- is also attested in X 1255 4 (292) and P. Rain. Cent. 93.4 (cited above).

5 Φοιβ[άμμ]ωνος. It seems that Phoebammon was alive at that time, and that his rank was not as elevated as his son’s. Of persons of this name attested in contemporary documents, we may note an Oxyrhynchite navicularius addressed as A[ύ]ρ[ή]λ[ι]ος (l. A[ύ]ρ[η]λίω) Φοιβάμμωνι Ἀντιόχου ναυάρχου (l. -ω) in P. Heid. IV 306.4 (413); cf. also LVI 3862 24 (IV/V) πλοῖον Φοιβάμμωνος (Φοιδάμμωνος ed. pr., but see ZPE 123 (1998) 191), though this could be another Phoebammon. Fl. Phoebammon, curator civitatis of Oxyrhynchus some time in the late fourth or early fifth century (SB XVIII 13158.1), is probably a different person. The same applies to the Oxyrhynchite vir clarissimus attested in P. Mert. I 41.2, 9, 14 of c.406 (see BL VIII 208), unless the curator had meanwhile obtained the clarissimate.

5–6 ἀπὸ τῆς . . . Ὀξυρυχιτῶν πόλεως. In view of this passage, I must qualify my statement, ‘[i]n Oxyrhynchite legal documents of that date, viri clarissimi, curiales and other eminent persons were not normally given an indication of their origo in the manner of the less privileged ones, who would be referred to as “Aureli— X . . . from the . . . city of the Oxyrhynchites”. Instead, they were described with reference to the area in which they held office (e.g. πολιτευόμενος τῆς . . . Ὀξυρυχιτῶν), and/or land’ (ZPE 141 (2002) 160). But perhaps here we only have an exception. Things of course changed with the further devaluation of the clarissimate in the later part of the fifth century (cf. e.g. XVI 1891 2–3, of 495).

7 Θεωνο . . . Cf. 14. Perhaps Θεωνοῦς, for Θεωνούτος (Θεωνοῦς does not seem to be a possible reading). If it is not an orthographic variant of the common name Θεανοῦς, Θεωνοῦς is a new name.

7–8 χωρὶς κυρίου χρηματιζούσης. This is a late instance of the formula, on which see J. Beaucamp, Le Statut de la femme à Byzance (4^e–7^e siècle) ii (Paris 1992) 197–204 (this is an example of ‘formule I’, discussed on p. 201), and J. Sheridan, BASP 33 (1996) 117–31.

10 The wording suggests that this was a lease of a building; see LXVIII 4682 8–9 n.

12 τὴν διαφέρουσαν [κοι. οἰκίαν or ἐξέδραν are the strongest candidates to restore in the break.

'After the consulship of Flavius Felix and Flavius Taurus, viri clarissimi, on the third Epagomenal day of Mesore.

'Aurelius —dorus son of Zacharias, from the hamlet of Xenarchus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, to Aurelius Phoebammon son of . . . , from the same city of the Oxyrhynchites, greeting. My previous contract being valid, in accordance with the faith of it, I acknowledge that now too I have received from you on loan from hand to hand from your house, for my personal and pressing need, one unalloyed approved solidus of imperial gold of full weight, total 1 solidus, as capital, on condition that I shall provide to you for the interest on this until the end of the term stated below half a centenarium of pure leafy woad. And I shall be bound to pay back the aforementioned capital of one solidus of gold, being free of all risk, together with the interest, in the month Phaophi of the coming year 106/75 of the thirteenth indiction without delay, you having the right of execution against me and against all my belongings as if by legal decision . . .'

6–7 κυρίου ὄν]το[ο]c] καὶ β[εβαί]ου τοῦ π[ροτ]έρου μ[ου γραμματείου, τῇ πίστ]ε[ι αὐτοῦ ἀ]κολούθ[ω]c. References to earlier loans that had not been repaid by the time a new agreement was made are not uncommon; see CPR VII 40.5–7 n., LXVIII 4702 8–9 n. The expression τῇ πίστει αὐτοῦ/-ῶν ἀκολούθως also occurs in XXXIV 2718 9 (458) and LXVIII 4702 9–10 (520). Pace W. Schmitz, Ἡ πίστις in den Papyri (Diss. Köln 1964) 111, it is doubtful whether this is only a formula with no legal force.

11–12 ἐπὶ τῷ με παρασχέιν [ο]ι ὑπὲρ δι[αφό]ρου . . . προθεσμίας. See below, 4835 16 n.

13 ἱσάτωσ. The ἱσάτις, 'woad' (often called 'indigo'), is a plant known in botany as isatis tinctoria. This plant, originally coming from the Orient, furnished the blue-dye pigment commonly used in antiquity throughout the Mediterranean basin. Because of its important role in trade, the plant came to be used also as a kind of currency. See J. B. Hurry, The Woad Plant and Its Dye (1930); J. B. Forbes, Studies in Ancient Technology iv (1956) 108; further literature is cited by D. Hagedorn, ZPE 17 (1975) 86 n. 5.

There are several instances of ἱσάτις in the papyri: II 280 14 (88/9), X 1279 17 (139), I 101 12 (142), P. Mert. I 17.12, 22 (158), BGU IV 1017.11 (II), LVI 3874 20 (345/6?), P. Laur. III 83.1 (c.350), XLVIII 3428 19, VII 1052 19–25 (both IV), P. Hamb. IV 267.5 (c.336–48), III 228 passim (VI). However, this is the first text that specifies the standard requirements concerning the quality of the plant: it had to be 'leafy' (ἔμφυλλος) and clean from other plants or dirt (καθαρά). In fact, there is evidence that on other occasions woad could be sold after having been pressed and shaped into 'masses' (μάδια) of fermented paste; see J. Gasco, ZPE 60 (1985) 257–8. In addition, certain land leases contain a clause that permits the tenant to choose the crop to be sown, but forbids the cultivation of woad and other dye plants, possibly because they were subject to state monopoly; see D. Hagedorn, ZPE 17 (1975) 85–6, and J. L. Rowlandson, Landowners and Tenants in Roman Egypt (1996) 236.

There is no information on the price of woad in Egypt at that time, so that it is impossible to deduce what rate of interest the half centenarium of woad represented. The standard and most common rate of interest was 12% per year, but the papyri attest rates of up to 25%. It is worth noting that in the Roman period the rates of interest in kind were normally much higher (up to 50%) than the rates of interest in cash; see D. Foraboschi, A. Gara, Pap. Congr. XVI (1981) 335–43. If the rate of interest here were 25%, the price of one centenarium of woad would be half a solidus.

κεντηναρίου. The term (Lat. centenarium) indicated a measure of weight equivalent to a ‘quintal’, that is, one hundred λίτραι. See P. Vindob. Worp 23.5 n., and S. Daris, Il lessico latino nel greco d’Egitto (1991²) 53.

τὸ ἥμισυ. The use of the article appears to be unnecessary.

16–17 Phaophi of Oxyrhynchite era year 106/75, indiction 13 = 28 September – 27 October 429; see *CSBE*² 141, 159.

4832. LEASE OF A SYMPOSION

41 5B.88/E(1–3)

15.8 × 18.8 cm

12 January 436

A lease of a symposion situated in a district of Oxyrhynchus apparently not known otherwise. Both parties to the transaction are women, natives of the same city; for women involved in leases of urban property, see H. Müller, Untersuchungen zur ΜΙΣΘΩΣΙΣ von Gebäuden im Recht der gräko-ägyptischen Papyri (Köln 1985) 102–9, esp. 108–9 for the Byzantine period, and J. Beaucamp, Le statut de la femme à Byzance (4^e-7^e siècle) ii (Paris 1992) 238, 425–7, 447–8. The contract breaks off where the amount of rent is expected.

The consular date of this text is of some interest: it appears that as late as 12 January 436, a scribe in Oxyrhynchus still dated by the consuls of 434. This is the first instance of a second postconsular year in fifth-century Egypt. See below, 1–2 n.

'To Aurelia . . . , daughter of Martyrius, from the splendid and most splendid city of the Oxyrhynchites, from Aureliae Theodora, daughter of Heracles, and her daughter Martyria from the same city. We voluntarily undertake to hold on lease upon mutual security from the first day of the following month Mecheir of the present year 112/81 of the fourth indiction the whole apartment, with all appurtenances, belonging to you out of a house situated in the same city of the Oxyrhynchites in the quarter of . . . ; and we shall pay as rent on mutual security . . .'

Back: 'Lease of Theodora and her daughter . . .'

1-2 Fl. Arcobindus and Fl. Ardabur Aspar were the consuls of 434; see CLRE 402-3 (cf. 404-5), and *CSBE*² 196. The conversion of the date to 12.i.436 is secured by the reference to 'the present year 112/81 of the fourth indiction' (10-11), which began on 30.viii.435. This is the earliest example of the use of a postconsulate in a second postconsular year; for other such datings by second postconsulates, see *CSBE*² 88-90.

The consuls of 435 have not been attested in a papyrus of this year. Dr Rea points out that in view of 4832 it seems likely that CPR X 114 refers to the postconsulate of Theodosius Aug. XV et Valentinianus Aug. IV coss. 435, and thus dates to 436.

1 Ἀρεοβίνδου. The scribe first wrote ι after ε, which he immediately corrected. In P. Strasb. I 1.1 (Herm.; 434; see BL I 403, VIII 413) the name is spelled as Ἀριόβιντος, and in P. Select. 15.1 (Heracl.; 435) as Ἀριόβινθος.

2 Ἄς[περος]. The consul's name is restored in the form attested in P. Strasb. I 1.1 and P. Flor. III 315 = SB XXII 15493.1. (Ἄςπερος) should probably be preferred to Ἄσπέρ(ου) in P. Select. 15.1.)

5-6 πα]ρ[ὰ] Ἀύρηλιῶν Θεοδώρας Ἡρακλέου κ[αὶ] τῆς θυγατρὸς Μ[αρ]τυρίας. The fact that the name of Martyria's father is not mentioned might suggest that she was an ἀπάτωρ; but we know very little about ἀπάτωρες in this period.

8-9 ἐξ ἀλληλεγγύης. Cf. 15. On the origins of the term see C. Préaux, CdÉ 41 (1966) 354-60. H. J. Wolff in Studi in onore di Edoardo Volterra iii (1971) 734-56, esp. 738-46, has argued that this clause was superfluous, and its omission did not have any juristic effect upon the agreement; it was 'kein "Institut" mit eigenen Konturen und Funktionen, sondern ein blosses Bild, eine lediglich konstruktive Denkform, in der die solidarische Haftung der Schuldner einen bequemen und kurzen Ausdruck fand'. See also Müller, Untersuchungen zur ΜΙΣΘΩΣΙΣ 114.

10 τοῦ ἐνεστῶτος ἔτους ριβ πα. Oxyrhynchite era year 112/81, coterminous with indiction 4, ran from 435 to 436; see *CSBE*² 142.

12ff. ἀπὸ οἰκίας κτλ. On the subdivision of urban property in this period and its transformation into a source of income, see H. Saradi, BASP 35 (1998) 17-43.

13 ἐπ' ἀμφόδου . . . ον . . . ου. We have not been able to read the name of a known ἀμφόδον in the traces (see the list in S. Daris, ZPE 132 (2000) 211–211).

ὀλόκληρον. This may imply that a subdivided symposion could be the object of a lease; cf. the donation of a half symposion in P. Münch. I 8 (c.540; see BL VIII 226), and the sale of the same half symposion in P. Münch. I 9 (585), and P. Lond. V 1733 (594). There is evidence that subdivided cenacula (see next note) were leased in early imperial Rome; see B. W. Frier, JRS 67 (1977) 28–9.

14 κυμπόσιον. A κυμπόσιον was a dining-room in a private house, a banqueting hall exploited commercially; or, especially in the Byzantine period, an apartment used for dwelling, synonymous with Lat. cenaculum; see G. Husson, OIKIA (1983) 267–71, and Saradi, BASP 35 (1998) 34–6. For the use of the term in the sense of 'apartment' in Coptic documents, see A. A. Schiller in Studi in onore di Vincenzo Arangio-Ruiz iv (1956) 366.

χρηστηρίης, l. -οις. On the interchange of η with οι, see Gignac, Grammar i 265; the same spelling is attested in PSI VI 707.10, 12 (351).

The beginning of a lease that probably concerned city property; both parties, i.e. the church of St Mary (lessor), represented through the priest and steward Calamon, and Aurelia Sophia (lessee), are said to be located or reside in the city of Oxyrhynchus. The other details of the transaction are lost. The papyrus offers the first Egyptian record of the consulate of Flavius Petrus (see 1–2 n.).

1–2 For the conversion of the date, see *CSBE*² 147. The indiction figure and the length of the break in 1 indicate that the consul was Flavius Petrus, on whose consulship see CLRE 566–7 and *CSBE*² 204. Only his posconsulate was attested previously, while the year 516 had yielded no papyri with consular formulas.

3–4 τῇ ἁγίᾳ ἐκκλησίᾳ καλουμένη τῆς ἁγίας Μαρίας. This church is probably dedicated to the Virgin Mary rather than to a saint of this name; cf. XI 1357 30, 45, [68] (535/6) (re-ed. A. Papaconstantinou, REByz 54 (1996) 135–59); see also Papaconstantinou, JJP 30 (2000) 84. Apart from 1357, the church of St Mary in Oxyrhynchus is attested in I 147 1 (556) and XVIII 2197 11 (VI). It is unclear whether it is to be identified with the church of ἁγία Μαρία in P. Wash. Univ. I 6.5 (Oxy?; VI—see BL VIII 508). It should also be noted that SB I 1977 (V/VI) does not refer to a church; see A. K. Bowman, etc. (eds.), Oxyrhynchus: A City and its Texts (London 2007) 366 n. 2.

6 τοῦ ἐλλαβεστάτου. For this title, typical of clergymen, see B. Mutschler, ZPE 94 (1992) 107.

Καλάμωρος. The accentuation is according to Pape-Benseler, Griechische Eigennamen s.n. This is only the fourth attestation of the name in the papyri, and the second in papyri from Oxyrhynchus. It is also known from Coptic sources; see G. Heuser, Die Personennamen der Kopten (Leipzig 1929) 14, 60.

7 πρεσβυτέρου καὶ οἰκονόμου. Priests often figure as stewards of churches; see G. Schmelz, Kirchliche Amtsträger im spätantiken Ägypten (München/Leipzig 2002) 163–4. On οἰκονόμοι, see further E. Wipszycka, Les Ressources et les activités économiques des églises en Égypte du IV^e au VIII^e siècle (Bruxelles 1972) 135–41.

7–8 τοῦ αὐ[το]ῦ τόπου. For the term τόπος denoting a church, see Papaconstantinou, Le Culte des saints en Égypte des Byzantins aux Abbassides (Paris 2001) 269–70, 272; cf. also E. Bernard, ZPE 98 (1993) 103–10.

8 Ἀύρηλία Σοφία. Women often appear in leases of urban property; see Müller, Untersuchungen zur ΜΙΣΘΩΣΙΣ von Gebäuden im Recht der gräko-ägyptischen Papyri 102–9; Beaucamp, Le Statut de la femme à Byzance 238, 425–7, 447–8; A. Rabinowitz, BASP 38 (2001) 57–8.

9 καταμένουσα ἐνταῦθα. The origo of Sophia, presumably different from Oxyrhynchus, is not indicated. For longer-term changes of residence in Byzantine Egypt, see J. G. Keenan, GRBS 42 (2001) 57–82.

10 The traces seem to suit ἐν τῇ. After that, we cannot confirm any text.

The top of a document addressed to Fl. Apion II. Traces of the endorsement are visible on the back, but are too scant to reveal the exact nature of the document. The papyrus comes from a layer that has produced no other papyri with apparent connections to the Apion estate.

The only claim of 4834 to a minimum of distinction is that it extends by some two months the period in which Oxyrhynchite scribes referred to the first consulate of Iustinus II, whose second consulate in 568 appears not to have been known until several months later; see further 1–3 n.

1–3 The regnal and consular formula of Iustinus II attested here is known only from Oxyrhynchite documents of 566–8; see *CSBE*² 210 (consular 2B), 254–5 (regnal 3). This is its latest occurrence, taking the place of I 199 descr. = P. Lond. III (p. 279) 778 of 28 July 568. Some time after that, Oxyrhynchite scribes revised the date clauses by adding a reference to the second consulate of Iustinus II, held in 568; this is first attested in I 134 of 9 June 569. (The regnal clause in 4835 2–5 is a case apart; see the note there.)

Aurelius Phoebammon, from the previously unknown epoikion of Peneb, contracts with Aurelius Menas, a servant (παῖς; see 9 n.) of the Apion estate, for a loan of one solidus less five carats. The loaned sum bears no interest and is to be returned in two months' time. On sixth- and seventh-century loans in general, especially their juristic aspects, see H. Preissner's dissertation Das verzinsliche und das zinslose Darlehen in den byzantinischen Papyri des 6. und 7. Jahrhunderts (Erlangen 1956), and cf. J. Frösén in CPR VII pp. 152–65.

The document is written along the fibres and is almost complete, missing only the rest of the debtor's subscription, the amanuensis' statement, and possibly a notarial signature at the bottom. Despite the practiced appearance of his hand, the scribe's spelling and grammar are careless and deficient (see below). He also makes some inadvertent omissions, e.g. of the regnal year number (5), the infinitive governed by ἐπὶ τῷ (16), and the first half of a whole legal clause in 19–20. His dating formula as it stands is unparalleled after 568 in Oxyrhynchus, but this is probably also due to oversight (see 2–5 n.). For the sake of readability, the text with its original peculiarities is printed alongside a normalized version.

'643. In the reign of our most godly and most pious master Flavius Iustinus, the eternal Augustus and Emperor, in the month Phamenoth 25, indiction 7.

'Aurelius Phoebammon son of Ioannes, mother Martha, from the hamlet Peneb of the New City of Iustinus, to Aurelius Menas, servant of the glorious house, from the New City of Iustinus of the same nome, greeting. I acknowledge that I have received from you on loan from hand to hand for my personal and pressing needs one gold solidus, total 1 gold solidus less 5 (carats) as principal, on the condition that I (return it) to you in the month of Pachon of the present seventh indiction, without delay and without any dispute. (This deed) written in one copy (is normative), and upon being asked the formal question, I assented.'

'I, Aurelius Phoebammon, son of Ioannes, the aforementioned, received the one gold solidus less five carats . . .'

Back: 'Deed of Phoebammon son of Ioannes, mother Martha, from the hamlet Peneb . . .'

Orthography. The spelling irregularities displayed by the scribe beyond commonplace phonetic spellings (itacisms, $o > \omega$, $ai > \epsilon$) can be summarized as follows (references to F. T. Gignac, Grammar i, are given in parentheses):

2	$\epsilon i > \epsilon$ (257-9)
2	$o > v$ (293-4)
3, 7, 12, 25	$\eta > \epsilon$ (242-4)
4	$av > a$ (226-8)
4	$av > \rho$
4, 12	$\kappa > \gamma$ (79-80)
6, 7, 21, 25	$oi > i$ (272)
7, 16	$\epsilon > \epsilon i$ (256-7)
9, 17	$\delta > \tau$ (81-2)
9	$ou > \omega$ (208-9)
10	$o > ov$ (212-13)
12	$ai > oi$ (275 c.3)
13	$\epsilon i > oi$ (273)
14	$\gamma\kappa > \gamma$ (116)
16	$\epsilon > oi$ (274 n. 1)
18, 23	$o > a$ (287-9)
18	$v > \epsilon$ (273-4)
20	$\epsilon > \eta$ (244-6)
20	$\eta > \omega$ (cf. 293)
22	$\mu\mu > \mu$ (157)
22	$o > oi$ (201)

In addition, we find deficient spellings (e.g. 4 <αἰ>ωνίου, 12 <οῦ>, 13 <ἰ>δ(ἰ)αc), confusion and wrong use of cases (3, 4, 6, 7, 16, 19²), incorrect gender and number agreement (e.g. 8), and wrong division of words between lines (4-5, 14-15). Many of these anomalies point to strong 'bilingual interference'; see F. T. Gignac, JCS 28 (1985) 155-65.

1 χμγ. This Christian symbol, which first appears in Egypt in the early fourth century, has been variously interpreted, most plausibly as an isosephic representation of the phrase θεὸς βοηθός or as an abbreviation for Χ(ριστὸν) Μ(αρία) γ(εννᾶ) or Χ(ριστὸς) μ(άρτυς) γ(ένηται). For recent bibliography, see CPR XXIII 34.1 n.

2-5 For the conversion of the date see *CSBE*² 151, 162. Besides omitting the consulate/post-consulate and the regnal year number '9', this dating formula is peculiar. It seems to correspond, but with the omission of καὶ ὑπατείας, to formula 3 in *CSBE*² Appendix F p. 254; but in Oxyrhynchite documents the latter is found exclusively within the years 566-8, i.e., 'before Justinus' second consulate in 568 was known in Egypt' (*CSBE*² 254-5). Thereafter, dated Oxyrhynchite documents always use the more elaborate formula 4 of *CSBE*² Appendix F p. 255. We must therefore assume that the scribe inadvertently omitted μεγίστου ἐνεργέτου after δεσπότης and the reference to Iustinus' second consulate, both of which are found in formula 4. Cf. LXX 4796 1-4 n. for a comparable oversight in a dating formula, and P. Mich. XV 734 (572) for the omission of Iustinus' consular formula.

6-7 Αὐρήλιος Φιβάμμωνος (l. Φοιβάμμων) υἱὸς Ἰωάννης (l. Ἰωάννου). An Aurelius Phoebammon son of Ioannes appears in LXII 4351 14 (late VI), one of a group of men agreeing to assist the phrontistes of Pakerke in collecting money and grain taxes from the Apiones' holdings there. However, the fact that he writes his own subscription in 4351 cautions against identifying him with the apparently illiterate Aurelius Phoebammon of our document, whose subscription (21 ff.) is written by the scribe of the body of the contract.

8 Πηγηβ. A new place name.

τοῦ Νέου (l. τῆς Νέας) Ἰουστίνου πόλεως. This is the new and short-lived name of Oxyrhynchus during the reign of Iustinus II. For a list of instances, see LXII 4350 5 n., to which add SB XII 11079.7 (571), LXIX 4754 6 (572), LXX 4789 8 (576), 4791 6 (578); cf. also the proposed restoration of P. Laur. III 75.9-10, 13-14 (574) in BL VIII 165-6. The name may have been adopted in response to a favour or privilege granted by the emperor to the city.

9 Αὐρηλίω Μηνᾶ πετί (l. παιδί). The terms παῖς and παιδάριον are notoriously ambiguous as status designations (see the extensive bibliography cited in J. Beaucamp, Le Statut de la femme à Byzance ii (Paris 1992) 58 n. 38), but here the gentilicium 'Aurelius' a priori excludes the possibility that this individual is a slave. Likewise, it has been argued that the παιδάρια of the Apion estate who are recipients of salaries in XIX 2244 fr. 1, P. Princ. II 96, and LVIII 3960 28 are not likely to be slaves; see T. Hickey, A Public 'House' but Closed (diss. Chicago 2001) 169-70, and N. Gonis, ZPE 150 (2004) 200-1. 'Servant', however, remains vague and does not indicate Aurelius Menas' exact function(s) within the estate. There are sufficient examples to show that the term need not refer to menial or 'domestic' servants but could designate estate employees of all sorts, including ones involved in the administration and management of the estate: I 138 23-4, 32-3 (610/11), παῖδες mentioned alongside superintendents and secretaries (τοῖς . . . διοικηταῖς καὶ . . . χαρτουλαρίοις καὶ παισὶν ἀπερχομένοις εἰς οἰανδήποτε γεουχικὴν χρείαν); P. Princ. 96, a number of παιδάρια are also μειζότεροι; P. Cair. Masp. III 67327.22, 37 (539), two individuals are referred to as παιδὸς καὶ φορολόγου and παιδὸς καὶ προνοητοῦ respectively; CPR XIV 41 (VI/VII), various estate personnel under the heading of παιδαρίων (μείζονες, water-work engineer, 'cashier', tax accountant, notary, cooks). See also J. Banaji, Agrarian Change in Late Antiquity (Oxford 2001) 186 n. 107.

9-10 τῷ ἐντώξῳ (l. τοῦ ἐνδόξου) οἴκῳ. So far as we can tell from other evidence, in Oxyrhynchus this phrase (= domus gloriosa) always refers to the patrimonial estate of the 'Apion' family; see R.

Mazza, L'Archivio degli Apioni (Bari 2001) 83. The head of the estate at the date of this document (574) is the so-called Apion II, consul in 539 (d. 578).

13–14 εἰς δας (l. ἰδίας) μου καὶ ἀναγκαιᾶς (l. ἀναγκαιᾶς) μου χρήας (l. χρείας). The repetition of μου is uncommon and probably a mistake.

15 γί(νεται) χρ(υσοῦ) νο(μικμάτιον) α π(αρά κεράτια) ε κεφαλέου (l. κεφαλαίου). Since there is no positive or negative mention of interest and the loaned sum is qualified as a 'principal', we could assume that the loan bears no interest. This period has produced a significant number of loans that do not mention interest or are qualified as 'interest-free'; for Oxyrhynchite examples, cf. XVI 1970 (554), 1892 (581), P. Münch. III 98 (593/4) [26 ἀτοκί], LXVI 4535 (600), PSI I 63 (624?). Such loans were of course already common in Ptolemaic and Roman times, although P. Pestman, JJP 16–17 (1971) 7–29, has argued that many loans described as ἀτοκα probably calculated the interest together with the principal. Whether this practice was maintained in the later period remains unclear. A factor also worth considering in this period is Christianity's prohibition of usury (see Preissner, Das verzinsliche und das zinslose Darlehen 60–73), but given the widespread existence of loans with interest it is difficult to assess its concrete impact.

π(αρά κεράτια) ε. It is impossible to read π(αρά κεράτια) ς (which would imply the Oxyrhynchite δημόσιος ζυγός), for the top of ε cannot be interpreted as an extension of the diagonal of π(αρά); note the change of angle and the loop at the top, and compare e.g. the epsilon of πόλεως at 11.

16 εἰπὶ (l. ἐπὶ) τῷ μοι (l. με) (< . . .) σοι. The scribe inadvertently omitted the infinitive dependent on ἐπὶ τῷ. This phrase is seldom used in the promise-to-repay clause, but usually figures in loan contracts to specify the interest rate on the capital, e.g. ἐπὶ τῷ με/ἡμᾶς χορηγεῖν καὶ διδόναι καὶ παρασχεῖν σοι ὑπὲρ διαφόρου/λόγω τόκου κτλ.; cf. LXXI 4831 11–12 (429), P. Select. 1.8–9 (454), XVI 1891 7–8 (495), PSI VIII 964.7–8 (VI), SB I 4498.14–15 (VI).

παρούσις (l. -σης). There is an unexplainable trace below upsilon, probably a stray mark.

19–20 ἀπλήν γραφής (l. -φείσαν). These syntactically incoherent words must stand for the common kyria-clause, i.e. κύριον τὸ γραμμάτιον ἀπλοῦν γραφέν. The feminine accusative perhaps arises from confusion with formulae in which the phrase is a direct object with a feminine noun such as ὁμολογία or χειρογραφία, e.g. SB XII 11231.18 (Oxy.; 549) πεποιήμεθα τὴν χειρογραφίαν ἀπλή (l. ἀπλήν) γραφ(είσαν). Cf. also T. Varie 10.8 (VII) κύριον τὸ γρ(αμματεῖον) ἀπλήν γραφείσαν (l. ἀπλοῦν γραφέν).

22 Ἰωάννου ὀ(?) πρω-. In the ligature between υ and π, it is unclear whether ο was intended.

23–4 νομικ[μάτιον]. Despite τά in 23, -μάτιον fits the space better than -μάτια.

25 μετρ(ός) (l. μητ-) Μάρθας. Although the specification of the mother's name in docket is unusual, it seems best suited to the traces here. Between the ε and ρ the upright of τ has apparently been abraded; the ρ of Μάρθας is almost completely obliterated in a lacuna, but the θ is virtually certain. Supposing a short blank space after the mother's name, perhaps read ἀ]πρὸύ (for ἀπό, as in 10) before ἐπικίου. The lost part of the docket probably specified the amount lent, i.e. χρ[υσοῦ] νο(μικμάτιον) α π(αρά) κερ(άτια) ε.

1 February 578

This appears to be the latest dated document of the time of the co-regency of Iustinus II and Tiberius II to make no mention of the latter's regnal count, contrary to the practice attested in all Oxyrhynchite documents of 576 and 577. This changed in 578, and the numbers of Tiberius' regnal years were introduced in the dating clauses; see LXX 4790, which remarkably dates from three weeks earlier than 4836. The date of 4836 may imply that the change was recent, and was not consolidated immediately. However, the errors in 2, 6, 7, and 9 may also suggest that this text is a mere aberration, the work of an inexperienced scribe.

Remains of the endorsement are visible on the back.

4837. SALE ON DELIVERY

To judge from the indiction figure, this text dates from the first regnal year of Mauricius, and is a curiosity. Unlike all other Oxyrhynchite documents of the early years of this reign, it makes no reference to Tiberius II, Mauricius' predecessor, whose postconsulate is usually mentioned after the regnal clause of Mauricius. This may reflect bewilderment at a time of dynastic and protocol change, though it seems more likely that it is due to an oversight on the part of the scribe, who was not well versed in the conventions of notarial documents, despite the stylized confidence of his script. This is suggested by another omission in the regnal clause (see 3 n.), the use of a formula not at home in this kind of document (see 4 n.), the impossible equation of the 'private' standard of Oxyrhynchus with that of Alexandria (see 12 n.), and not least the several phonetic and morphological errors.

The papyrus breaks off just before the full identity of the document is revealed; what remains points to a 'sale on delivery' or 'receipt for the price of . . .', but the name of the commodity is lost in the break.

'Aurelius Onnophrius son of Antonas, mother Maria Rachel, from the holding of . . . of the Oxyrhynchite nome, to Aurelius . . . son of Abra(a)mios, chief-servant of the city, greeting. I acknowledge that I have received from you now on the spot, for my own and pressing needs, (four?) solidi of gold by the private standard of Alexandria, for the price agreed (?) . . .'

Back: '. . . Rachel . . .'

1-4 On the regnal clause see above, introd. For the standard clause, see *CSBE*² 212, 258.

3 τοῦ αἰωνίου Ἀγούστου was omitted by oversight.

4 Month and day were lost in the break. There is room for restoring most month names; only Θώθ and Φαῶφι will certainly not do: the death of Tiberius II (13.viii.582) became known in Oxyrhynchus in the month of Hathyr, between 11 and 23 November (XVI 1976). Φαμενώθ and especially Φαρμουῦθι would fit only with difficulty,

The presence of οὔτ(ωσ) at this point seems unparalleled. οὔτ(ωσ) commonly concludes the headings of accounts or lists; perhaps the scribe had experience in drawing up accounts in which οὔτ(ωσ) came after the reference to the indiction, but he was scarcely familiar with contracts.

5 Ὀνοφρίου, l. Ὀννώφριος. On this name and its declension, see LXX 4796 14 n.

Ἄντ[ω]νᾶς, l. Ἄντωνᾶτος. This is the latest attestation of the name in a papyrus, previously last heard of in documents of the third century.

6 Μαρίας Παχήλ. This is apparently a double name, even if the expected τῆς καί is not written.

ἀπό κτήματος. This term suggests that the locality was part of a large estate (not necessarily of the Apion family).

8-9 ἀρχηπερέτου (l. ἀρχιπηρέτη?) τῆς πόλεως. Although ἀρχηπερέτου could refer to Ἀβραμίου, I am inclined to associate it with the contracting party whose name is lost, and take the genitive as a mistake for the dative.

On the office of ἀρχιπηρέτης see the short discussions in P. Münch. III 129.3 n. and in CPR XXIV 15.15 n, with references to earlier literature. The functions of the 'chief-servant of the city' are illustrated by P. Strasb. I 46-51 (566).

10-11 For the juxtaposition of ἐντεῦθεν ἤδη with εἰς ἰδίας μου καὶ ἀναγκαίας χρείας, cf. P. Münch. III 98.16-18 (593/4), PSI I 63.17-19 (624), X 1122.7-8, P. CtYBR inv. 358.2-3 (ed. ZPE 153 (2005) 171), P. Wisc. I 11.12-13 (all three of VII). Of these documents, the first two are loans, while the other three are 'sales on delivery'.

ἰδιωτ(ικῶ) Ἀλεξαντρίας (l. Ἀλεξανδρείας). These are two different standards, and are often distinguished in texts of this period: the one is the 'private', or rather 'particular', standard of Oxyrhynchus, while the other is the (heavier) standard of Alexandria. See K. Maresch, Nomisma und Nomismatia (Opladen 1994) 32.

12-13 One could read εἰς | [τὴν συναρέ]εσα[ν] [τ]ιμήν, but we need μοι after the participle; yet [τὴν συναρέ]εσα[ν] μ[οι] τ[ι]μήν is more difficult palaeographically. After [τ]ιμήν, we expect πλήρης or πλήρες, but we do not seem to have this. At the end of the line, one might try reading πλῆ[ρ]ης, but λ is most difficult.

14] Παχήλ .[. Metonymics are not often found in docketts, though cf. 4835 25.

Fragment of ancient Greek papyrus with handwritten text in a cursive script. The text is arranged in approximately 15 horizontal lines, though many are partially obscured by damage and holes. The script is a form of ancient Greek, possibly from the Hellenistic or Roman periods. The fragment is brown and shows significant wear and tear, with several large holes and irregular edges. The text is written in dark ink or pigment.

4827 (reduced)

Fragment of a papyrus scroll with ancient Greek text. The text is written in a cursive hand and is arranged in approximately 25 horizontal lines. The fragment is significantly damaged, with irregular holes and missing sections, particularly in the middle and lower portions. The ink is dark and the papyrus is a light tan color.

Fragment of ancient Greek papyrus with handwritten text in a cursive script. The text is arranged in approximately 20 horizontal lines, though many are heavily obscured by damage and ink bleed-through. The script is a form of cursive, possibly from the Hellenistic or Roman periods. The fragment is rectangular with irregular, torn edges, particularly at the top and bottom. The ink is dark, and the papyrus is a light tan color with visible fibrous texture. There are several small white spots, likely from insect damage or mold, scattered across the surface.
